Miss E. Jenkins' Greenhouse in the F. W. Vanderbilt Garden

More and more, it is the tendency to give the greenhouse a prominent location on the grounds. Here is one where the grounds were laid out by one of the finest Landscape Architects in the country, and the greenhouse given a focal point.

NOTES ON CULTURE OF FLORISTS' STOCK

CONDUCTED BY

John J. M. Farrell

Questions by our readers in line with any of the topics presented on this page will be cordially received and promptly answered by Mr. Farrell. Such communications should invariably be addressed to the office of HORTICULTURE.

"If vain our toil, we ought to blame the culture, not the soil."—Pope.

Asparagus

It will pay any florist to sow quite a batch of Asparagus plumosus, A. Sprengeri, etc. The seed should be sown now in pans within an inch of the top with sifted loam and leaf mold in equal parts, with a little sand. Press the material moderately firm and on this sow the seed, covering them about three times their diameter and again press the surface over. Place them in a temperature of about 70 degrees at night and keep them shaded until they come up when they can have all the light. When they have attained a size large enough to handle they should be moved singly into small pots, using fibrous loam, leaf mold and well-rotted cow manure in equal parts and placed well up to the light and in a temperature of 60 degrees.

Chrysanthemums

Stock plants of the older varieties should have care to assure good stock. Plants cannot be expected to throw healthy cuttings if they are hidden away from the sunlight. Stock plants should be brought up to the light at once, even if you have to throw something else out. It may seem quite early to begin propagating, but where there is any intention to grow show blooms or plants now is the time to begin. Again it is not at all unusual for a new variety to be condemned the first year because the buyer has propagated it late and to the utmost limit, and the plants have not had a chance to prove themselves. Many cuttings are permanently weakened by being left in the sand and allowed to make a weak, attenuated growth and long spindly roots. As soon as the cuttings have roots half an inch or so in length, get them out right away and pot into soil with a temperature not higher than 50 degrees at night.

Dracaena

Plants pressed every now and then into service soon lose their individual beauty and become shabby and useless even for this sort of work. Retail growers in whose line of business decorating with plants plays a prominent part, generally make free use of dracaenas. Cut into pieces of from one to two inches long, the thickest to be split lengthwise of the stems, the heaviest of the roots to be treated in the same way, and all these pieces to be strewn thinly over a bottom-warmed layer of pure sand. If kept moderately but constantly moist and bottom heat does not give out before that time little plants of half a finger's length will in 20 to 30 days work their way up through the top covering. A hothouse propagating case answers best, though a pretty warm corner of the common propagating bench covered with spare sashes will also do. Pot in two and a half or three inch pots, using soil, leaf mold and sand in equal parts, and place back in a warm house.

Mignonette

When the crop of spikes begins to show give them some liquid manure twice a week. It helps to develop the flower heads. Cut out any straggly or twiggy growth, keep the plants nicely tied up and disbud from time to time. Give the beds a good cleaning and then a top-dressing of cow or sheep manure mixed with equal parts of soil which will help the hungry surface roots to sustain the plants in a vigorous growth. To produce high-grade spikes the temperature of about 45 degrees should be kept during the night, as mignonette is a cool-blooded annual. The constitutional vigor of the plants depends to a great degree upon properly adjusted ventilation. Bench-grown mignonette should now be showing up well for this is the season when they produce the finest spikes and will continue good up to April. Give good culture from now on. It is well now to make a sowing in pots which can be planted out in a violet house or any other cool house in the spring.

Roses in Pots

All roses potted in November expected to be in bloom for Easter, must now be started into growth. In a temperature as low as between 40 and 45 degrees for about ten days there is much gained in the starting of active root fibres before the leaf buds show any appreciable new life; these roses want from about eleven to twelve weeks from start to finish and nearly five weeks of this for the development of the flower buds at their first appearance into open or opening bloom at the end of the course. Sixty degrees should be the maximum heat for Rambler roses, a few degrees less being preferable if time permits. Hybrid roses will invariably reach a more perfect finish in 55 degrees than in a temperature much higher. It is best to afford the greater amount required after the buds have formed, and five degrees higher during the last stages in forcing usually suffice to make good lost time.

Reminders

Any hydrangeas wanted for Easter should be brought into gentle warmth now.

Propagate heliotropes, salvias, geraniums and other bedders at all convenient times.

A sprinkling of soot and nitrate of soda on growing benches of smilax will improve their color.

Keep the surface soil cultivated between the violets and give occasional sprinkling of bone meal.

Pot pelargoniums very firmly and place them in a light house where the temperature runs about 55 degrees at night.

Cut back a few double petunias and place them in a light and warm position so they will produce plenty of cuttings.

Insurance of Holland shipments We have information to the effect that the Holland shippers have arranged to insure themselves against loss on shipments of plants and bulbs to this country. Something on this order was attempted last year, we think. The plan as now in operation is to cover damage or any deterioration to the goods in transit from any cause until they have reached their final destination. It is a question how long the arrangement may last. The object is to protect the Dutch shippers against claims by buyers for damage, which have been very frequent of late and its operation should be to the general advantage. Local buyers, unfortunately, do not always do their part to facilitate the process by promptly reporting to the Hollander when shipments are received in damaged condition. This may be often due to a lack of knowledge of the foregoing. All claims should be made immediately on arrival of the goods.

Are you paying too much? We have heard many complaints from business men who are in a position to know, of overcharging by express companies. Bulbs, plants, etc., are second-class express matter, but it would seem to be the practice of the carriers to charge first-class rates whenever they think they can "get by" and many shippers and receivers, either from ignorance or carelessness, are being mulcted right along by this form of petty robbery. It should be the business of every florist and seedsman to find out just what his rights are in this respect. Demand a rate book or at least the privilege of seeing it before paying expressage, so that the unfair practice be discontinued as much as possible. The explanation sometimes given by the carriers is that they do not know the case contents, but surely it is their business to know what they are carrying. Transportation companies will stand watching, as has been repeatedly shown, both as to weight and rate. Their 30-story office buildings and large investments in real estate are ever-present examples of their avarice. Are you paying too much?

Preventable losses From all accounts that have come to us about the Christmas and New Year business it would appear that much loss has been sustained in the aggregate by flower and plant growers and dealers, particularly in the large business centers during the holiday season just past. The weather played a large part in the trouble, transportation delays and freezing of stock in transit being prolific causes of complaint. Is it not possible to materially reduce the percentage of loss from these two causes at such times? We all realize the stupendous difficulties that confront the transportation companies at holiday time but the traffic in flowers is now large enough to warrant special attention the year through and more discriminating care in handling shipments than is usually bestowed on them. As to the second trouble—freezing of material in transit—the shippers themselves are sometimes far from blameless. The majority of cases of loss from freezing are preventable. However balmy the weather conditions may be at the time, all packing at this season of the year on goods to be sent by express or parcel post, should be done on the presumption that they will be exposed to excessive cold. Then, if goods are delivered frozen, carelessness on the part of the carriers will be apparent. Another cause of loss and bitterness this season was the recurrence of the old discredited foolishness of over-kept flowers. Argument or appeal is lost on some people. Just as sure as a holiday approaches, the fit seizes them and they are "at it again" regardless of the inevitable consequences to themselves individually and to the trade at large. What should be done with these idiots?

SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS —AND— ORNAMENTAL HORTICULTURISTS

NEW YEAR'S GREETINGS.

From Robert C. Kerr, President, S. A. F. and O. H.—1917

We are at the beginning of a new year, and again thinking of our friends. The splendid old year has gone, taking its many seasonable possibilities, but gives us in keeping a beautiful New Year. The three hundred and sixty-five days of the year just passed were filled to overflowing with many opportunities to acquire happiness by spreading sunshine among our friends. We wish our friends success.

And with the possibilities of this New Year comes a ray of hope for peace between the warring nations, our friends, our brothers; a conception of which, when accomplished, will consti-accomplished, will constitute success.

May the whole New Year be one round of friendships, joyous days of labor and tasks well done.

President R. C. Kerr is sending out a personal letter to each of the State Vice-Presidents, as follows:

My Dear Sir:

As president of the S. A. F. and O. H., I congratulate you upon your acceptance of the office of State Vice-President, and I believe your acceptance will warrant my earnest desire for full and hearty co-operation on all subjects of interest to our organization.

Do not overlook the fact that you are the headquarters representative in your state, and I have full confidence in your ability to serve our Society in an energetic and intelligent manner.

Of course, it is only natural for you to have the interests of your local organization at heart, but I sincerely trust, and in fact know that you will make special efforts to make the Society of which you are State Vice-President, one of the largest organizations in your territory. It is incumbent upon you to direct your attention to securing as many new members as possible, and of taking care of the various interests of the present members in a businesslike manner.

It is also your duty to get in touch with each and every member of our Society in your state and obtain their co-operation, which I am quite positive will be given you.

Have you considered that the next convention promises to be the largest gathering of our S. A. F. and O. H. that has ever been held in America? Just instill into the members in your state the fact that great things are in store for them.

It is natural for you to expect that this office will aid you in every possible way to make a success of your administration, which, of course, it is needless to say, we will most gladly do.

I know that we shall reap our reward at New York, and I would be unworthy of your consideration, should I think but that it was your co-operation and assistance which aided to make our administration a great success, which I am sure it will be.

It is for the above reasons that I am writing you this personal letter. Always bear in mind that I will assist you whenever called upon, or on other occasions when necessary. Do not let this opportunity for service stray from your doorway.

Yours respectfully,

(Signed) R. C. KERR,
President of S. A. F. and O. H.

tute once more, joy, smiles, laughter and work, which leads to their success.

The heart of every American florist goes out in sympathy to our fellow craftsman who are located in the warring nations. Let us each and all wish for an early peace, in order that it may alleviate suffering humanity and restore prosperity and happiness among them.

And may the widened circle of our S. A. F. and O. H. organization in our own land give the New Year distinction in our calendar, as that in which the blessings and good of the organization were made more manifest than ever before to the communities which have been fortunate to have had the S. A. F. and O. H. in trust.

I wish each and all success, or better still, may each one realize his own ideals in his own life, which, when

THE HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY OF NEW YORK.

An exhibition of this society will be held on January 13 and 14 at the American Museum of Natural History. The monthly shows have usually been held for the afternoon only, but it has been decided to try the experiment of holding them for two days. This one will be open on Saturday afternoon, and also on Sunday afternoon. There are classes open to all and others restricted to non-commercial growers. Prizes are offered for cut flowers of orchids, carnations, sweet peas, Buddleia asiatica, schizanthus, and antirrhinums. Premiums are also offered for primula and begonia plants. Special prizes may also be awarded by the exhibition committee for unusual exhibits, and such exhibits are requested.

There will be a lecture at 4 on Saturday afternoon, the 13th, on "Darwin and Other Tulips" by John Scheepers. This will be illustrated with colored lantern slides. Schedules are now ready for distribution, and may be had by addressing the secretary, George V. Nash, New York Botanical Garden, Bronx Park, N. Y. City.

AMERICAN CARNATION SOCIETY.

Prospective exhibitors at the American Carnation Society meeting, January 31 and February 1, will kindly bear in mind that entries in the competitive classes will close on January 22. A penalty of $2 will be imposed on each entry made after that date. Please mail your entries early and make entry in every class in which there is a possibility of your showing. That will save you expense and the secretary work and confusion. The premium schedule has been mailed out. If you need another, drop the secretary a postal.

Everything points to a successful convention. Word comes from every direction of large delegations. The local society is planning entertainment for a large attendance and is leaving nothing undone to make your stay both pleasant and profitable.

"Carnation Yellows" will again be up for discussion. Another subject will be "How can we improve the marketing of carnation blooms?" Please come prepared to give your views.

The variety "Prosperity" is offered for registration by Arthur Cowe, Berlin, N. Y. If no objections are filed with the committee requiring the withdrawal of the name, the registration will become complete January 30, 1917. The following is a description:

The plant is tall, most striking, and attractive. Its massive proportions, broad, heavy foliage of a rich green, erect and vigorous habit of growth, give evidence of a strong constitution. Flowers are large. Color is a bright rose shading to madderlake, except the last segment, which has a chamois-

CLUB AND SOCIETY NOTES

The next meeting of the Cincinnati Florists' Society will be held on Monday evening, January 8.

Richard Rothe gave an illustrated lecture on "Rock Gardens" at the regular monthly meeting of The Florists' Club of Philadelphia January 2nd.

At the November meeting of the Florists' and Gardeners' Club of R. I. a motion was made to the effect that the club disband. This proposition was taken up at the meeting on December 21, with the result that a unanimous vote was given not to disband. The club is in a good financial condition, better in fact than for a number of years.

The Philadelphia local committees of the Rose Society had a meeting on January 4th. The holiday rush being now over, active advance work for the Rose Show is the order of the day. The whole board of the society met at the Bellevue on January 3rd and added still more to the enthusiasm. A fine show is assured. Now we've got to make a big fuss about it to get the necessary attendance. G. C. W.

CULTURE OF BOGONIA REX.

Editor of HORTICULTURE:

Dear Sir:—Would like to know if any of your experts can give me any information regarding the cultivation of Begonia Rex. Can they be successfully grown in a Cattleya house? Yours very truly, A. J. P. New Jersey.

Begonia Rex requires a light, rich soil, plenty of moisture and a shaded position in the greenhouse. The following mixture I have found to give good satisfaction.

Fibrous loam with well-rotted cow manure, leaf soil and sharp sand with a little fine ground bone.

If large plants are required they should be repotted whenever the pots are filled with roots. In summer it is well to keep the pots sitting on moss, kept moist. They respond to liberal feeding with cow or sheep manure water. They will do well in a temperature of 55 to 60 degrees at night, with a rise of 10 to 15 degrees by day. I should say that they can be grown in a cattleya house. DAVID F. ROY, Marion, Mass.

A BIG WEEK PLANNED AT ITHACA.

The Department of Floriculture at Cornell University is arranging an interesting program for Farmers' Week, which comes this year from February 12 to 17, inclusive. The program is arranged to include a wide list of subjects so that some phase may be of interest to all visitors.

On Tuesday, February 13, at 9 o'clock, Miss L. A. Minns will speak on "Some Books Every Garden Lover Should Own." At 10 A. M. Mr. E. C. Volz will discuss "Methods for Prolonging the Keeping Qualities of Cut Flowers," and he will be followed at 11 A. M. by Mr. C. L. Thayer on "Hardy Lilies."

On Wednesday the New York State Federation of Horticultural Societies and Floral Clubs will hold a meeting at Ithaca and the following program will be presented: At 9 A. M. "Roses in Greenhouses and Their Breeding" will be discussed by Professor E. A. White; at 10 A. M. Professor David Lumsden will speak on "Orchids and Orchid Breeding." The Department of Landscape Art has arranged for a lecture at 11 A. M. by Mr. Henry Hicks of Westbury, Long Island, on "Making Home Grounds Attractive." At 12 o'clock an informal luncheon will be held for delegates from the affiliated societies. The afternoon program will consist of a discussion of "Garden Roses and their Culture," by Dr. A. C. Beal, and "Diseases of Roses" by Dr. L. M. Massey. This will be followed at 4 P. M. by a business meeting of the Federation.

On Thursday at 9 o'clock Dr. R. Matheson will speak on "Insects Which Attack House Plants, and Their Control." At 10 o'clock Professor David Lumsden will discuss "The Value and Management of Amateur Flower Exhibitions." At 11 o'clock Dr. A. C. Beal will speak on "Outdoor Sweet Pea Culture." The afternoon will be devoted to a lecture and demonstration of Flower Arrangement by Professor E. A. White, followed by a round table on questions relating to flower growing.

The program on Friday is arranged more particularly for amateurs. At 9 A. M. Professor Lumsden will discuss "The Home Flower Garden and its Care." At 10 A. M. Mr. E. C. Volz will speak on "Native Plants for the Home Flower Garden." At 11 A. M. Miss L. A. Minns will speak on "Bulbs for Indoor Planting," followed at 12 o'clock by Mr. C. L. Thayer on "Bulbs for Outdoor Planting." In the afternoon there will be a demonstration on various phases of plant work, such as the making of window boxes and baskets, rose protection and pruning, bulb planting, propagation of plants by cuttings and seeds, and soil preparation.

In connection with the above program there will be an exhibition of students' work in table decorations, plant baskets, bouquets, and other cut flower arrangements in the Floricultural Building on Wednesday and Thursday, February 14 and 15. There will also be an exhibit of roses, carnations, violets, sweet peas and other florist crops which will be shown by various specialists in cut-flower production in the eastern states.

DISASTROUS FIRE AT J. C. MONINGER CO. FACTORY.

Fire destroyed the main factory building of the J. C. Moninger Co.'s plant at 912 Blackhawk street, Chicago, on Saturday, December 30. The origin of the fire has not yet been determined but was first discovered at 3 P. M. when nearly all employees were away, it being the custom to shut down the plant at one o'clock on Saturdays. The building is a five story one and was filled with valuable machinery and a large amount of materials for the coming season's work, and many important draftings and other papers pertaining to greenhouse construction. At this writing the papers and books are being taken out as fast as possible. The ice-covered walls are still standing but the loss will be a heavy one and no reliable estimate can be made as yet. It is a sad coincidence, that Nicholas J. Rupp, treasurer of the firm, whose obituary is on another page, lay dead at the time of the fire and firemen were still at work while the funeral was taking place on Sunday.

The John C. Moninger Co. was organized in 1868 and during the almost half century of its existence, has built up such a business that even so great a disaster as the fire will cause but a brief interruption. E. F. Kurowski is president of the firm and his son Rudolph Kurowski is general manager. All orders now in will be taken care of and future orders will be provided for so there will be no delay in the spring work.

FLOWER POTS.

A. H. Hews & Co., Inc., of Cambridge, Mass., the oldest and largest manufacturers of flower pots in the world, tell us that for the year 1916 their product and sales have been the largest in the history of the company. Coincident with this condition extraordinary increased costs of labor and material have been most discouraging and necessitated some increases in selling prices.

They have recently discontinued their jobbing business in glassware, woodenware, crockery and other household-ware lines, to devote their entire interest to their flower pot manufacturing industry and have taken steps to increase their capacity by adding new machines, kilns, and drying rooms on the property that was devoted to storage for their jobbing business.

Several customers throughout the country have suffered by delays in shipments and transportation during recent months owing to phenomenal demands but the Hews Company now believes it is sufficiently equipped to take care of all demands hereafter. Owing to congestion of requirements of commercial florists coming periodically twice a year it is always urged to place orders for shipment far in advance to assure pots being on hand when wanted. Many florists overlook this and suffer delay because it is a physical impossibility for any factory to ship every order within a two months' period in spring and fall.

It is interesting to learn that the Hews Company used 8,843 tons of clay, 1,653 tons of coal and employed an average of 95 men for their sole industry of manufacturing flower pots during the past year.

The Hews Company are members of the Association of Centenary Firms and Corporations of the United States

Obituary

Mrs. M. M. Ayres.

We regret to announce that Matilda Mallee Ayres, for many years proprietress of Ayres Floral Co. store, St. Louis, Mo., her successors still holding on to that name, died on Friday, Dec. 9, and was buried January 1st. Mrs. Ayres was the only lady member of the St. Louis Florist Club. When recently retiring from active business she sent in her resignation and the club made her an honorary member. Mrs. Ayres was a very expert artist and was an intense lover of flowers. Her funeral was largely attended and floral offerings numerous.

hospital, Chicago, December 27. His life had been spent in Chicago, where he was born fifty-three years ago and in whose schools he was educated. His business life also was lived in his home city where he devoted all of his best years to the development of greenhouse construction and to him the trade is greatly indebted for many of the modern methods now generally adopted in building.

Mr. Rupp, while still in the prime of life and loving to wrestle with the problems of business, became ill last summer and gradually grew worse till a very serious operation was decided upon as a last resource and which he endured without anesthetic. It was found that the appendix had caused his illness and though he lived four days he had not strength to recover. Mr. Rupp was the leader in the reorganization of the J. C. Moninger Co. in 1893 and was actively in charge of the business till illness prevented. To his skillful management is largely due the commercial leadership of the company he organized. Two years ago his son Walter took his place as secretary and now will also succeed him as treasurer. Mr. Rupp leaves a widow, one son and two daughters. The funeral was held from the residence 3508 Janssen Ave., Sunday and the pall bearers were all employees. Interment was in St. Lucas cemetery.

TO STANDARDIZE TRADE TERMS AND PRACTICE.

A committee of the Ornamental Growers Association with H. P. Kelsey of Salem, Mass., as chairman is preparing a report in the endeavor to standardize trade terms and trade practice in the nursery business. This report would apply also to all horticultural trades and professions, covering particularly florists, seedsmen and fruit growers' activities. In compiling a list of trade terms both as to description of plants in catalogs, grading of plants in the field, and for sale, shipping tags and marks, foreign trade terms, import and export custom and usage, it is desired to make a report as comprehensive as possible, and Mr. Kelsey asks that if any of our readers know of any such lists and will kindly give him the references it will aid the committee very much in its work. A list of trade terms in any line of business would help out considerably.

WEEBER & DON'S New Annual Hybrid Poppies

These poppies by far outclass all of the annual varieties, of this beautiful family of flowers. It originated from the carnation flowered type, but surpasses it with its enormous size blooms, a large portion of which are extra frilled, together with its wonderful profusion of shades and tints fantastically edged and striped with brilliant shades of reds and pinks. Pkt. 25c.

THE IRON SAFE CLAUSE IN YOUR INSURANCE POLICY. DO YOU KNOW WHAT IT MEANS.

Inasmuch as every reader hereof, if he carries insurance on his stock and fixtures, is bound by what is known as the iron safe clause of the policy, the following letter and my discussion of it should be of universal interest:

On the 10th of October our store was totally destroyed by fire, oil heater explosion in the evening.

That same day we had sold to a man from Detroit. He had asked to see our books and invoice. Same were accidentally let out of safe in desk and burned up, we just getting out of upstairs with our lives. We had $9,000 insurance in four companies; they refuse settlement because of iron safe clause.

The bank has totals of invoice, also a check record of all our business. In this way we can prove our loss was nearly twice our insurance. We have procured duplicates of our bills bought last year also.

Indiana.

As I said, practically every—in fact I suppose literally every—insurance policy on stock and fixtures contains the iron safe clause. It is one of a trio of three familiar clauses which now appear in all insurance policies. The first requires the insured to keep a complete set of books. The second requires him to take an inventory, at least once a year, and the third is the iron safe clause, which requires the keeping of the books, at night when the store is closed, in an iron safe. These three provisions are usually in some such form as this.

It is a part of the conditions of this policy that the insured shall keep a set of books showing a complete record of business transacted, including all purchases and sales, both for cash and credit and take an itemized inventory of stock on hand at least once every year; and it is further agreed that insured will keep such books and inventory securely locked in a fireproof safe at night and at all times when the store mentioned in this policy is not actually open for business. It is further agreed that in event of loss, insured will produce said books and inventory. Failure to comply with these conditions shall render this policy null and void and no suit or action at law shall be maintained thereunder for any loss.

The importance of the above correspondent's question can now be seen.

The iron safe provision has been upheld in almost every State, and there is now no question as to its validity. I have reason to believe that thousands of merchants—not always the smallest ones, either—ignore this provision entirely. If they do, and fire results, and by reason of the fire they cannot produce their books and inventory, or any good substitute for them, they will lose their insurance without a doubt. The policy is only void, however, when failure to keep the books in the iron safe results in inability to produce the books after a fire. If the books and inventory are rescued, the policy stands, even though they were not kept in the safe. The theory of this clause is perfectly sound. It is that the books and the inventory are the best evidence of what goods were on hand at the time of the fire. And a merchant who carelessly sacrifices that evidence will not be permitted to guess at what he had on hand.

The iron safe clause is in force only when the store is closed for business. As long as it is open, no matter what hour it is, the books need not go in the safe.

I find from an examination of the cases that there is a tendency on the parts of the courts to prevent insurance companies from being too technical about the iron safe clause. In other words, from laying any traps for their customers. The courts realize the need of the very best possible evidence of what properly has been destroyed by a fire. And they will not shield the business man who carelessly loses that—where the loss is vital. But there is quite a number of cases which hold that where the failure to keep the books in a safe did not prejudice the insurance company, in other words, did not make it liable to have to pay too much damage, the policy will be allowed to stand. For instance, in one case, a merchant had kept regular books and taken inventory as he was required to do, but a fire struck him one night when some of his books were out of the safe, and the latter were destroyed. The insurance company pleaded the iron safe clause and refused to pay, although everything bearing on the fire which the burnt books had contained could be supplied from other records. The court refused to invalidate the policy for such a season, ruling that the loss of the books was not vital since there were duplicate records of all they contained.

Another case bore considerable similarity to the correspondent's. A store which was covered by a policy containing the iron safe clause was closed one night, but the proprietor stayed behind to take an inventory. The books were accidentally left out and destroyed by a fire which occurred while the proprietor was actually working there, and the insurance company refused to pay. Here, too, the merchant could furnish from other records all that the destroyed books would have shown.

The court said it must pay, because the destruction of the books did not deprive the company of any information about the goods on hand at the fire; all this was forthcoming from duplicate invoices.

As I understand the correspondent's case, the store was closed for business, and some of the books were out of the safe, and were destroyed by the fire. The occupants of the floor above barely escaped with their lives. If the goods on hand at the time of the fire can be shown by other records, and if all the information which the books would have given can be supplied in some other way, I believe that the court will probably rule that the object of the iron safe clause, i. e., the supplying of complete information regarding goods on hand, has been fulfilled, and the policy will not be invalidated. But I apprehend that it will be a close call.

RETAIL TRADE IN NEW YORK.

Max Schling of New York writes that when his Christmas business stopped as a Christmas rush, it began to be a New Year's rush, and there was no intermission between the two holidays. He says "We have at present in New York, a scarcity of the early bulb stock, and to a certain extent, a scarcity of some other stock, but this scarcity is not based on an insufficient production, it is only based on a splendid business, it is based on the immense increase of buyers in New York; the exceedingly large number of travelers stopping in New York, possibly most of whom generally traveled in Europe.

"The imaginative scarceness of azaleas or any other plants is not existing. If you should consult the different growers, and they should tell you the truth, then they will tell you that they grew more stock than the previous year, and sold all the stock out. If stock had been scarce they would not have done as they did, a much bigger business than any other year. Certainly it is in the interest of the seller—in this instance the grower—to tell the buyer—that means the florist—'stock is scarce, hurry up and place your order.' The most florists, even the timid ones, were taken by that suggestion and were prepared that they might not get all they ordered and so ordered more than they intended. I hope that each one was lucky enough to dispose of all he ordered, because I am pretty sure that each one did get what he ordered and possibly more.

"It might be of interest in general to the trade, that I base my buying for holidays on the sales of the three months previous to the holidays—in this instance, September, October and November, and the increase in business of these three months against the three months of the previous year, gives me the rate at which I have to increase my buying for the holidays.

A proof that stock was not scarce is following: I worked up a very good New Year's business just the same as I have always had a splendid Christmas, but this year I was prepared to change plant orders for New Years possibly into flower orders in case I should run short on stock, and I also prepared for selling palms, ferns, anthuriums, philodendrons, specimen marantas, and other good-keeping house plants, but the day after Christmas I had call after call from growers and I secured $1,400 worth of flowering plants, and was not forced to talk my customers into something else than they were used to, and the business was so good that I even sold all my palms and other stock which I had secured as a precaution in case flowering stock should be scarce.

"Of scarcity, we did not feel anything, and I hope it will always keep up at the same rate; that my brother florists will believe in the scarcity and, in consequence, buy liberally and sell out always, as it seems they did everywhere this Christmas."

NEWS ITEMS FROM EVERYWHERE

CHICAGO

Three of the smaller greenhouses and a part of the conservatory in Oakwoods Cemetery in the south side of Chicago were destroyed by fire the night of December 30. Loss is estimated at $10,000.

News of the death of Nicholas J. Rupp, treasurer of the John C. Moninger Co., was heard with regret in the market on Friday and was followed the next day by word that their large five-story factory was burning. It would seem that this firm was having a sad closing to the old year.

The chief topic of conversation and principal cause for anxiety among the growers continues to be the coal situation. No matter what amount of coal has been contracted for, the clause covering transportation of same places the business of the greenhouse men at the mercy of the railroad companies and many times every dollar the growers have invested in perishable stock is jeopardized by the coal shortage.

The custom of sending flowers to the offices of city officials, at the time of their installation, is one that is growing in favor and the prominence of such events in the newspapers is a good advertisement for the local florists. A large space was given on December 30 to the picture of a member of the board of review, sitting among a collection of flowers which included great bunches of American Beauties and some handsome designs, one of the largest of which was a ladder, the rounds being lettered from the bottom up, "business man" "lawyer," "board of reviews" and at the top "success."

WASHINGTON, D. C.

In addition to having been named as a member of the general Inaugural Committee J. Henry Small, Jr., has been appointed a member of the Court of Honor Committee. The Court will occupy the space between 15th and 17th streets, and will be decorated with enormous quantities of spruce trees, roping, and pot plants in full bloom, the latter depending upon weather conditions.

That business was exceptionally good was evidenced by the fact that Fred H. Kramer posted in his stores placards stating "No C. O. D. Orders Sent Out During the Holidays." Mr. Kramer also turned down telephone orders at the main store the two days preceding Christmas. Nor would he take orders for anything not in sight with the great difficulty in getting certain of the flowers, such as American Beauty roses and other reds. He instructed his sales people to sell only that which was in the icebox or on the floor, or known to be on the way from the greenhouses.

BOSTON.

C. Cuneo has opened a new flower store at 723 Washington street.

On account of the numerous municipal inaugurations which have been staged during the past week many suburban florists have been very busy.

Cornelius Boothman made his initial bow to the political world last Tuesday when he took his seat in the State House as the representative from the third Berkshire District. He is the son of A. J. Boothman, florist of North Adams.

The Horticultural Club of Boston at its regular monthly banquet on the evening of January 3, extended parting good wishes to its secretary, E. H. Flower Market Report

The customary post-holiday calm has thus far failed to materialize, and business is going along well. New Year trade was above par, both in respect to volume and prices obtained. Short lengths in all varieties of roses are almost non-existent. White roses and carnations are moving slightly better than last week and pink is a trifle more quiet. Hadley, Ophelia and Killarney are the head liners for the week. Benora and Matchless are the star performers in the carnation line. Special and extra Beauties command goodly prices. Lily of the valley fluctuates. Violets are being shipped heavily, as are paper white and yellow narcissi. Lilies were especially active the earlier part of the week but brightened up considerably later on. A few wall-flowers are to be seen but are extremely dull. The general tone indicates a healthy steady demand for the staples without fear of any serious decrease for the near future.

The Christmas business BUFFALO was good though it could have been better and would have been had it not been for the severest snow storm that this city and locality has seen in many a day, and this unfortunately came upon us Friday. The city was completely tied up, shipments of flowers from Eastern sections being two days in transit and even stock shipped from 25 miles distance could not be located for three days. The deliveries of both wholesaler and retailer on Friday and Saturday were handicapped by the severe snow, and plants and flowers were frozen and had to be replaced. Accidents to automobiles were common. The express companies would not accept shipments going out and there was much inconvenience to the out of town merchants. Blossoming plants, especially poinsettias in single blooms and pans, were scarce, also very few azaleas were had, and cyclamen were much in bud. There was the usual amount of Boston ferns, araucarias, primulas and others which shared in the demand. The disappointing part of the Christmas business was the sale of Beauties; orders could not be filled for mediums and shorts; only specials were had and the market could not dispose of many at the high quotations. In many cases Ophelia, Killarney, Milady and Hoosier Beauty filled the order and consequently Beauties remained in the coolers. The supply of roses in general was good, quality fine and sales satisfactory. Sales in lily of the valley were five per cent less than previous years, and violets arrived too late for a cleanup. Carnations were in rather short supply and prices ruled high though there were enough to fill the wants. There were plenty of narcissus, stevia, smilax, Adiantum Farleyense and other greens. The sale of laurel, pine, holly and all artificial material was five per cent greater than a year ago.

Christmas sales left the CHICAGO market pretty well cleaned up, so far as good stock was concerned and daily shipments during the week following have found ready sale. Local social events have called for a fair share of the best the market produced and added to this was a splendid shipping trade which assured good prices for all the growers could cut between Christmas and New Year's. As the books have been footed up the sales for Christmas have amounted to even more than at first estimated, and the record will be one to look back upon with pleasure. Carnations are back to normal price again, the fancy prices having taken the inevitable slide and it was here that wholesalers had the most difficulty with "pickled" stock. There is a good supply of roses which includes practically all the new and standard varieties and quality is fine. American Beauties are equal to demand. A few late pompon chrysanthemums are left. Orchids, violets, gardenias and other flowers give variety for the buyers to select from.

Throughout the CINCINNATI Christmas holidays business was good.

Receipts were heavy and would satisfy all wants. The demand from out of town for stock is heavy. Excellent roses may be had in fair quantities. The supply, if anything, is somewhat heavier than before the holidays. Carnations are also in a good supply. Some poinsettias are still coming in but the chances are that the cut will not last many days longer. Roman hyacinths and freesia are in the market and with narcissus constitute the list of small bulbous offerings. Sweet peas have shown considerable improvement. Lily of the valley is plentiful.

New York's second

NEW YORK big holiday was in many respects a repetition of that a week previous. Prices on most things were somewhat lower and on red roses, red carnations, etc., they were practically cut 50 per cent for fresh material, while for the surplus held over from Christmas "job lot" figures were the only alternative. Contrary to previous expectations, lily of the valley was a very draggy commodity. Lilies, paper white narcissi and white material generally moved slow and in truth everything dragged along very discouragingly until Sunday night when the demand freshened up and on New Year's day a fine trade was done. But the retail stores, particularly those of the better class, bought only "from hand to mouth" the Greek stores being the only ones apparently willing to take any risks in stocking up. Quite a few chrysanthemums are still in evidence. Buddleia asiatica, orange and yellow polyanthus narcissi, tulips, anemones, white lilacs, double flowering peach bloom, camellias, ericas of several species are all more or less in evidence in either plant or cut flower state. In fact, there is very little missing at this date which one is accustomed to see at Easter.

The story of New

PHILADELPHIA Year week is almost a repetition of that for Christmas week except that prices did not rule quite so high. The volume of business was very large and everything cleaned up well with the exception of perhaps White Killarney roses. Paper white narcissi and stevia went better and the glut on these seems now about over.

The week following

ST. LOUIS Christmas saw a drop in the price of flowers.

Carnations especially fell down. Roses, with the exception of pink and white Killarney, sold well. Reports from various sources show that in many instances the sale in cut flowers were not as good as last year. Many objected to the increased prices. The retailers will in the future realize that 100 per cent. profit cannot always be expected. The public want flowers at reasonable prices. What is needed is a more uniform price for flowers throughout the year. The express company refused all perishable freight on Dec. 24, owing to the freight blockade. Mistletoe arrived late and frozen and was a total loss.

WASHINGTON Christmas on Monday, making it in reality spread over a period of three days from a commercial standpoint, enabled the florists of Washington to do the largest business in the history of the trade here. The balmy weather was also a great aid at this time for it enabled the making of deliveries unhampered by cold and storm as has been the case in previous years. Everything sold up well. Roses brought high prices and there was no dickering in connection with the sales. Carnations moved in large quantities. Gardenias were in fair demand. Orchids were high. The sale of lily of the valley was held down by the high prices for the retailers found it impossible to get $1.50 and $2.00 per dozen sprays as was necessary in order to handle the goods at a profit. Poinsettias, begonias, cyclamen and narcissus in pots brought good prices and the demand was quite heavy.

King Greenhouses

KEEP SUMMER WITH YOU THE WHOLE YEAR ROUND

On account of their sturdy special construction which permits of great strength without the need of heavy shadow casting supports, these houses are so warm and sunny that they are filled with a riot of bloom and fruit when Jack Frost has stripped the garden of its beauty.

The ventilating and heating systems are the result of years of experience in building for professional growers. Things just have to grow in a King.

Write today for Bulletin No. 43. See how beautiful and how productive a greenhouse can be erected for the the price you want to pay.

JACOBS GREENHOUSE CON-STRUCTION ENDORSED BY WORLD-FAMOUS ARCHITECTS

This range of Jacobs greenhouses are now in course of erection for Mr. J. Insley Blair at Tuxedo, N. Y. They are without a doubt the "last word" in greenhouse construction.

The plans which contained all manner of modern improvements and scientific arrangements were drawn by the internationally famous architects Carrere & Hastings, who, after thoroughly examining practically every style of construction in their search for the maximum of efficiency, placed their plans and construction contracts with us.

Is it not fair to assume that what we are doing for them, we can do equally as well for you?

Alexander Winton's house at Cleveland, with one section partitioned off for the workroom

A Word or Two About Workrooms of Greenhouse Construction

SOME there are who seem to object to a workroom of separate construction. A few object to its additional cost.

While others prefer it because to their notion it looks better. To meet just such desires we construct them three different ways.

1. One or more sections partitioned off from the regular greenhouse, it being in every way constructed like the rest of the house. The roof is either of ground glass or left clear and painted.

2. Taking two sections and in place of the glass roof, use block tin painted with alumi-

Dunleavy Millbank's house at Port Chester, N. Y., had two sections roofed over with block tin, Aluminum painted. The effect is indeed pleasing.

num. The sides and end are then of clear glass. This is a splendid fix, quite the best of all many gardeners think.

3. Take two sections and shingle the roof and gable above the side glazing. This gives a marked distinction between the workroom and greenhouse which some feel is decidedly desirable.

As far as we are concerned; it's for you to say which you prefer.

In any case, it would be our construction of Everlasting Lastingness.

Ready to talk building? Say when and where and we'll be there.

NOTES ON CULTURE OF FLORISTS' STOCK

CONDUCTED BY

John J. M. Farrell

Questions by our readers in line with any of the topics presented on this page will be cordially received and promptly answered by Mr. Farrell. Such communications should invariably be addressed to the office of HORTICULTURE.

"If vain our toll, we ought to blame the culture, not the soil."—Pope.

Asters for Inside Flowering

The best all-round aster for indoor culture is Queen of the Market, also called Queen of the Earlies. This is a vigorous grower and branches freely. Early Wonder blooms a trifle earlier but the flowers are smaller and not produced in anything like such profusion. Be sure to prepare the soil well. Any soil that will grow good carnations will produce good asters. When large enough they can be planted about a foot each way. While some varieties can stand a little over 50 degrees at night during the winter the nearer that degree is maintained the better in every way. Get away from the idea of ever forcing plants so as to obtain a heavier crop of flowers. Healthy stock, kept at 50 degrees at night, whenever possible, is bound to pay for itself whether or not you get a full crop of flowers. Keep well syringed on all good days so as to keep down red spider.

Miscellaneous Crops

Now is a good time to sow stocks; Giant Ten Weeks is a good strain. Candytuft makes another good Memorial Day crop. Annual lupines and larkspurs are not much seen in the market, but they make splendid and profitable spring crops. The fact that they are not commonly seen makes them sell all the better. Dimorphotheca aurantiaca and hybrids can be flowered earlier from seed than any other annuals. Calendulas are now a fairly profitable winter crop. For a spring crop, sow now in benches in rows twenty-four inches apart. Thin out the seedlings, making them ten inches apart in the rows. Cornflowers are another desirable spring crop. The double blue variety throws a good percentage of double flowers and should be used. Sweet peas can still be sown where they can have ample head-room. Use nothing but the Spencer varieties. All these crops will grow and do well in a house where the temperature runs at about 50 degrees at night.

Potting and Care of Cattleyas

All cattleyas such as C. labiata, C. maxima, C. Bowringiana, C. Percivaliana, etc., that are now in a dormant state can have fresh material. When potting give them a thorough cleaning of scale or other insects. Quite a few will need a shift into new compost or to have the worn-out material removed from around the roots. They do well in pans, baskets or pots, but I think hanging pans the best for they are not so liable to fungus as they are when grown in wooden baskets. Whatever they are grown in should be at least half full of clean and broken crocks. Use either good fibrous peat and sphagnum or fern root and sphagnum intermixed with small pieces of charcoal. Place all newly potted cattleyas in shade and where they can be kept rather close until they take hold of the new material.

Left Over Stock

All such flowering plants as Begonia Lorraine, cyclamen and primroses should be given the minimum temperature with plenty of ventilation until sold, but if the stock is unsalable don't let it occupy valuable bench room. Azaleas should be placed in a very cool, light house. Anything above the freezing point will do. See that at no time they are allowed to get extremely dry. Save as many stevia plants as will be needed, cut down and place in a light cool house for future cuttings. Ericas will take the same treatment. Lift the poinsettias with as much of the soil adhering as possible and set closely packed in boxes, covering the intervening spaces with soil. These should be rested under a somewhat dry warm bench until March or later, when they can be potted up again.

The Dahlias

A few good stock plants will go a long way in making successful these plants, if large quantities of cuttings are wanted, but whatever you do propagate let it be the best—don't waste time on useless stock. If your customers are in want of small stock for planting out next May the best kinds you use yourself for cut flower purposes are none too good. Bring the dormant stock up to light now; plant them into a few inches of sandy soil, and in a carnation house temperature they soon will furnish choice cuttings, which, with a little bottom heat will root in a few weeks. These, if potted and cared for, will again in a short time furnish more cuttings. By keeping these cuttings shaded and moist in a moderately warm propagating bed they will root all right. When potting give them good new soil. They do well in a night temperature of about 55 degrees.

Reminders

Keep palms well on the dry side, especially where the temperature rules a little low.

Rest the beds of smilax a little that were cut down for the Christmas trade. It will start more freely and grow better.

Push the stock plants of bouvardias a little to induce them to break away freely. Plenty of stem cuttings are useful if stock is scarce.

Decide at once what varieties of different stock and what quantities needed for the coming season. Make plans and leave nothing to chance.

Next Week:—Canterbury Bells; Care of Violets; Pennisetums; Propagating Ficus; Vincas; Reminders.

Our readers' attention is called to the announcement in this issue of the plan proposed by the publicity committee of the Chicago Florists' Club for increasing the sale of flowers for St. Valentine's Day. Flowers are the ideal valentine gift and if the florists all over the country will enter promptly and enthusiastically into this very simple and practical publicity scheme there can be no doubt that the sale of flowers for that purpose will be materially increased this year. The proposition seems an excellent one and we hope it can be carried out in a manner creditable to the flower trade. Should it, however, be made use of as a pretext for storing flowers in advance and jacking up selling prices for the occasion, then will all the advantages to the florists' business from this effort be more than nullified and the trade will be forced to face the inevitable penalty of public resentment and virtual proscription. Watch out.

the game

Considerable anxiety has been felt among the plant importing trade in regard to a rider understood to be attached to the Agricultural Appropriations Bill now before Congress, which, if passed, would give the Federal Horticultural Board at Washington arbitrary and autocratic control over the business of nurserymen or florists who ship plants or trees, with power to establish a quarantine on suspicion without a hearing. It is quite a relief now to learn, on the authority of the chairman of the Committee on Agriculture that no such rider as was feared has been tacked on to the Agricultural Appropriation Bill. It will be well, however, for all clubs and associations of florists, seedsmen and nurserymen, local as well as national to keep a close watch on movements in Washington for it is well known that there are influential interests constantly active to whom the welfare of the commercial horticultural people is a very minor consideration.

spring buying early

We gladly give space to the communication in this issue on the traffic situation and its lesson. The burdensome effects of the unprecedented car shortage have already been severely felt by florists and others sending out or expecting shipments of holiday goods and the outlook for the coming months, as given by our correspondent, is not overdrawn. Those who contemplate purchasing building material, heating or ventilating apparatus, implements, or outfit of any kind for the coming spring should get busy at once, else they are in danger of loss and embarrassment from freight congestion and delay. As the costly holiday experience has shown, similar trouble is not improbable in the transportation of plants and the lighter classes of florists' supplies by express. "A word to the wise is sufficient." Watch the advertisements in this paper as they appear from week to week and place orders well ahead. Advertisers, too, should make their announcements very early this season, for obvious reasons.

admonition

The results of the fire at the plant of The Robert Craig Company last Saturday might have reached the proportions of a stupendous calamity to one of the best known plant growing establishments on the continent had the weather been such as might reasonably be expected at that date. "What fools these mortals be!" What in the world can the owners of such a plant be thinking of to have a lot of wooden supports, partitions, roofs and other inflammable material about their boiler house? A comparatively modern establishment, at that! Only recently we took occasion in our editorial notes to mention the great advancement which had been made of late years in the construction of greenhouses and especially their heating outfit, whereby fire risk in such structures has been reduced to a minimum. This latest disclosure shows there is still room for improvement. The lesson, fortunately, has been at a comparatively insignificant cost and all friends of dear old Robert Craig will rejoice. But these disasters should be practically impossible in modern built places.

ROSE GROWING UNDER GLASS

CONDUCTED BY

Arthur Ruzicka

Questions by our readers in line with any of the topics presented on this page will be cordially received and promptly answered by Mr. Ruzicka. Such communications should invariably be addressed to the office of HORTICULTURE.

Tar Paint on Pipes (in reply to inquiry)

There is no question that all the heating pipes will last much longer if they are painted so that they will not rust. It is not the winter that is hard on them but it is the summer when it is damp under the benches from frequent waterings, and there being no heat in the pipes they have no chance to get real dry. However, great care should be taken as to the paint that is used for the work. There is only one safe paint and that is a mixture of linseed oil and lamp black. White lead can be used, but it should be mixed with linseed oil only, being careful not to put in any turpentine or drier. There will be some fumes from either of these mixtures, but if the work is done in the summer so that the paint will have plenty of time to dry there will be no harm done, as plenty of air is always on in the fall, and all the pipes are not used at once, but one after another as the weather gets colder. Tar is poisonous to plant growth, so are its fumes. We know of nothing that will kill the fumes coming from tar on the pipes and we know nothing that will remove it save going over the pipes with a gasoline blow torch and burning the paint off. This will be a very slow job and it must be done thoroughly or it will do no good. If the plants in the house are burned badly they could be dried off and started up again and still get a good crop of roses in for the spring, but the tar will have to come off while the plants are being dried off, or the leaves will come off about as fast as they come out when the plants are started again. Keep as much air on as possible, even if the house runs cold, and open the vents away up in the section where the torch will be in use. Sprinkle the plants well and keep them so right in the vicinity where the torch is being used, as the water will keep the smoke and fumes from the leaves, thus helping them escape without much injury.

Care of Cuttings in the Sand

See that these are sprayed with copper right after they are put in so that the danger from spot will be lessened. It will not cure spot but it will keep it from spreading and help the grower control it. Water should always be applied so that the cuttings will be dry at night; that is—their foliage should be dry. Proper attention will have to be paid to temperature and at no time should the cuttings be allowed to get cold. This would be a bad check for them and there would be a great many that would never recover from it.

Selection of Wood for Second Batch

This will apply also to the first batch of cuttings, for smaller places where propagation has just started. It should be remembered that the future of the plants largely depends on the stock they come from and care should be taken to select only wood that is clean and healthy, from freely growing plants. It may save a little in the beginning to take wood from plants that are poor and not paying, but in the long run it will not pay as the plants will be getting worse and worse as years go by and finally the whole variety will have to be thrown out, all because the plants were bred down instead of up so that the plants following would have increased vigor and bear more flowers than the ones before them. Take care to get as many heel cuttings as possible. These will always root better, and as there are any number of small eyes at the heel there is plenty of chance to get bottom shoots after the plants are potted or growing in the bench, and it is the bottom shoots that will produce the flowers even though the first bud is seldom good. When taking wood from Beauties use regular flowering wood rather than blind wood. It will make much better and stronger plants and will cut far more flowers. When taking Tea wood, see that only such wood as can be used is taken from the plants as it is useless and wasteful to cut the plants all to pieces for nothing. With the varieties now grown wood is none too plentiful, as nearly all of it is flowering wood and as soon as more than so much is taken the plants are being robbed and will be hurt if they are cut too severely. By careful cutting of the wood, there should be but very little waste, and outside of a few discarded leaves and tops of shoots there should be nothing left after the cuttings are taken out. As fast as the wood is cut it should be ducked into water and immediately taken down to the cellar or packing room where it is cool, and where the wood can be kept damp until it is used up. It is best not to keep it in water as this water soaked wood will not root as well as that which is kept moist and yet not soaked all the time.

Hadley vs. Hoosier Beauty

Mr. Arthur Ruzicka.

Dear Sir: Will you kindly advise me as to which is the better red rose of the two varieties, viz., Hadley and Hoosier Beauty. I read last week's HORTICULTURE account of the New York flower market. It stated that Hoosier Beauty is no match for the irresistible Hadley. Kindly inform me of the merits of both. Also, growing Ophelia side by side with Shawyer, I find the latter is the best in cool weather. Does Ophelia require more heat?

Thanking you in anticipation,
New York.

W. A.

The report you read in HORTICULTURE was correct. I have not as much experience with either variety as some growers who specialize in one or the other, but were I to choose the better one it would be Hadley every time. I have seen both in the prime and both at their worst, and Hadley was always better both as a grower, where it held its foliage better, and in the markets where it sold much better, being, as HORTICULTURE's report stated, "in a class by itself." There is no doubt that Hoosier Beauty when well grown, carefully watered and fed, and kept cool in the houses all the time will make a very nice rose, but we are sure that if this same care and pains were taken with Hadley the results would be far more satisfactory, and we are sure that if the grower had both roses and compared returns from the market he would quickly see which rose to discard. A trip through the wholesale market, and a few visits to some of the leading retail stores will be of great help to anyone wishing to get a line on any variety, if it is to be grown for market. If it is to be grown for home use, then, of course, the variety that is best liked will have to be grown. Regarding Shawyer and Ophelia, these varieties, like some others of the type, will always do better in cooler weather. They may not grow so fast or produce the quantity of buds, but the buds will be much larger and finer in every way and the same may be said of the foliage. The very double varieties, such as Mock, Scott Key, etc., etc., will do better in warmer weather as they will not open so well during the dark days of the winter. Ophelia does not require more heat to make it grow and the amount of heat given will have to depend on what purpose the roses are to be used for. If for the private table where quality is always first, then it will be necessary to keep them cool. If for the market where only a good standard quality is necessary, then they can be run warmer. Of course, running the plants cool will give you less flowers, and the plants will not grow so fast as they would if the plants were run warmer. In growing the two varieties in the same house it will be best to plant the Shawyer to the front and the Ophelia to the back benches. It would be better, though, for the grower and for the roses, too, if they were planted separately, a houseful of each, it being much easier to handle the plants in this way.

THE BELGIAN SITUATION.

The following extract from a circular letter from an importing house to their American customers contains much of general interest to the trade as to the outlook in plant imports for next season.

"Though shipments from Belgium were made every spring and fall since the war began, the three circular letters we sent you the past fall gave you some idea of the difficulties, uncertainties and expense we had to contend with to get them. What the conditions will be next spring and fall, if the war continues, it is impossible to foresee.

"Up to now shipments were made with the consent of both the British and German authorities. We expect to get these consents again for next season's shipments, and the canal boats will likely also be permitted to continue to carry the shipments from Ghent to Rotterdam. Any difficulties that arise next season will likely come after the shipments leave Ghent, and of course no Belgian can learn anything about conditions which prevail in the world outside of Belgium.

"Last fall most of the shipments arrived in good condition; some shipments arrived late as a result of war conditions and there was some loss on them—mostly due to the congested condition on our railroads, but whatever profit was made (and the profit was large in many instances) was made by the purchasers. Our Belgian firm can make no profit under present conditions, nor can we—our extra expenses in getting the shipments through the lines and quickly forwarded from here puts the matter of profit for us entirely out of the question.

"In view of these facts we will book orders next season for Belgian stock from our regular customers only—those who imported through us from Belgium last season. We figure that by cutting down business to about one-third of normal, we can have shipments made by fast passenger steamers, and devote all our energy and capacity to the service of those firms who usually depend upon us for their Belgian goods.

"Prices are lower than before the war began—except on some sizes of Kentias, the stock will be equally as good and packed as well as in normal seasons, but so there will be no later misunderstandings we will clearly define the conditions of sale—as we cannot issue a 1917 Belgian catalogue—nothing printed, or anything written in English can pass in or out of Belgium.

"All import orders are booked under 1916 catalogue conditions, the purchaser accepting shipment at Ghent nurseries and it travelling from there at his risk and expense. As it may be impossible to cancel an order once placed, we require a deposit of 25 per cent. with order to guarantee acceptance of shipment at destination. No order will be reported to Belgium until these conditions are accepted and the deposit made. All shipments are covered by both marine and war risk insurance to New York, though it is of course impossible to get any insurance to cover risks of damage to perishables to destination.

"This season we do not offer Belgian grown Ficus elastica—as we can offer American grown to better advantage. Nor do we offer Dracaenas—as we can offer you Dracaena canes so you can propagate your own plants. Nor are we offering small Kentias or Cocos Weddeliana—as we can offer you the seeds so that you can grow your own.

"We have outlined the situation frankly to you; you know what risks you take, what chances of large profits are yours. We urge mailing orders as soon as possible, as the mails take much longer to get into Belgium than the shipments to come out of there under present conditions."

PERSONAL

The park commission of Hartford, Conn., have selected Professor Henry A. Perkins of Trinity College to fill out the unexpired term of the late Lyman B. Brainerd, the member of the board who died October 1. The term ends May 1, 1919.

W. C. Stone, assistant horticulturist at the Experiment station, Burlington, Vt., has gone to Geneva, N. Y., where he will fill the same position at the New York state Experiment station. Mr. Stone is the third man to go to the New York station from that of Vermont in recent years. He was graduated from the university of Vermont in 1912 and given the degree of M. S. in 1914. John B. Norton, U. V. M., 1912. M. S. Massachusetts Agricultural college, 1914, succeeds Mr. Stone.

CONCERNING HOLLAND SHIPMENTS OF LILY OF THE VALLEY.

HORTICULTURE, Boston.

Gentlemen:—I am enclosing copy of a letter received from the State Department which explains itself. So far as I was advised and from all information I have had up until this time, of these goods for which permits were asked from the neutral countries—lily of the valley pips, seeds, etc., all were produced in the countries asking for the permits. From the enclosed it would seem that I have been misinformed.

W. F. GUDE,

Washington Representative of the S. A. F.

December 22, 1916.

Messrs. _____,
New York City.

Gentlemen:—With reference to previous correspondence in regard to your desire to obtain a shipment of lily of the valley pips from _____ of Copenhagen, you are informed that the Department has just received a cablegram from the American Minister at Copenhagen stating that he is informed that the crop of lily of the valley pips in Denmark is this year only one-fifth to one-tenth of the normal crop and that, therefore, to fill existing orders, German pips will have to be used. The Minister indicates that this accounts for the attitude of the British authorities and that _____ are unwilling to make shipments unless positive assurances of non-interference are given by the British authorities. The Minister states that _____ has 1,000,000 Danish grown and 5,000,000 German grown pips.

In view of this information the Department is instructing the American Ambassador at London by cablegram to endeavor to obtain assurances of non-interference with at least the 1,000,000 pips which the Department is informed are of Danish origin.

As soon as any information is received from the Ambassador it will be communicated to you. You will be informed at a later date of the cost of the Department's cablegram and of any reply thereto.

I am, Gentlemen,

Your obedient servant,

For the Secretary of State:

ALVEY A. ADEE,

Second Assistant Secretary.

CLUBS AND SOCIETIES

NEW YORK FLORISTS' CLUB.

The opening meeting for this momentous year in the history of the New York Florists' Club, on Monday evening, Jan. 8, was what might fairly be termed a rouser. The new officers were duly installed, each making his little speech of appreciation and zeal for the duties incumbent upon him and President G. E. M. Stumpp made a most excellent impression in the manner in which he filled the chair. It was the general verdict that this session betokened a record year for the club. Four new names were added to the membership and nineteen more were proposed.

All official reports were in a satisfactory strain. The treasurer and trustees showed a balance of nearly $15,000 in the treasury. C. B. Weathered reported on the coming International Flower Show, showing that space is being rapidly taken up and that many advertising orders for the Official Program are coming in, thus assuring the best of the series thus far.

A communication from Winfried Roekler asking for consideration of the proposed White Pine Blister exclusion legislation was referred to the legislative committee.

The secretary was instructed to write a letter of good cheer and hope for speedy recovery to Joseph Vocke, of W. H. Siebrecht's, Coogan Building, who is ill at Ashville, N. C.

President Stumpp made the following appointments.

Delegates to the State Federation of Horticultural Societies and Florists' clubs at Ithaca; F. R. Pierson and Prof. E. A. White.

Legislative—W. H. Siebrecht, Jr., James McHutchison, F. R. Pierson.

Essays and Lectures—Leonard Barron, J. Harrison Dick, L. W. C. Tut-hill.

Exhibitions—Chas. W. Knight, H. C. Riedel, Richard Hughes.

THE FLORISTS' HAIL ASSOCIATION.

A bill to extend the corporate existence of the Florists' Hail Association will be introduced in the New Jersey Legislature this winter by Hon. Walter G. Winne, an assemblyman from Bergen Co.

This matter gives some of our old timers some food for reflection, that thirty years have elapsed between the time the F. H. A. started out upon what was at that time an unknown venture, and practically a guess as to the required rates.

The writer sometimes wonders whether those who assumed the responsibility of putting what was then an unknown insurance effort upon its feet, would have the gall to attempt the same performance today.

The adjustment of nearly 2,500 claims amounting to nearly $400,000 without a single law suit is one of the things that the originators of a novel form of insurance have reason to look upon with more than passing pride.

CHICAGO FLORISTS' CLUB.

Plan for Cooperative Advertising.
Editor HORTICULTURE:

At the January meeting of the Chicago Florists' Club it was the unanimous action to put under way a plan of co-operative advertising, and this work was placed in the hands of three gentlemen to act as a committee on publicity, viz.: Michael Barker, Geo. Asmus, F. Lautenschlager, chairman.

Our first undertaking will be in the form of an active campaign to stimulate and create a greater demand for flowers for St. Valentine's Day, February 14, 1917. The form of advertising to be used is similar to the poster stamp fad now used so extensively in a number of other commercial lines, and this committee is confident that a great deal of good will result in this movement for the florist trade at large.

We have contracted for a very large supply of special heart-shaped stamps for distribution to the general public. These stamps are beautifully designed, and have the following inscription:

"LET YOUR VALENTINE GIVE FLOWERS."

Every box of flowers and every piece of mail sent out by the florists in this country should carry one of these beautiful stamps as a suggestion to use flowers for your Valentine. The Chicago Florists' Club has arranged to furnish these stamps to interested parties at a reasonable price, and any profit derived from the sales will be applied to future advertising schemes—a sort of endless chain and profit-sharing plan of advertising for the florists of this country.

May we not call on you to publish this announcement in your editorial column and thereby receive your co-operation and help in this movement? In order to call attention of the florist trade at large to this undertaking, you may state that florists of other cities can purchase these stamps of us for their own use. Price list and order blank will be issued the coming week, and we advise that order be sent in immediately.

Stamps are already going very fast—one of the leading florist concerns of Chicago specified 25,000 on their first order. Send all correspondence and orders to F. Lautenschlager, 440 W. Erie Street, Chicago, Ill.

AMERICAN CARNATION SOCIETY.

In view of the hardware dealers' convention which is to be held in this city at the same time as the carnation meeting, it has been deemed advisable by the reception committee to see that the rates of the Indianapolis hotels were published so that reservations may be made in due time. There is plenty of excellent hotel room in Indianapolis included in the following list.

Grand Hotel, rooms $1.00 up, with bath $1.50 up.

Washington Hotel, rooms with bath, $1.50, $2.00, $2.50, $3.00.

Claypool Hotel, single room without bath, $1.50; with bath $2.00.

Severin Hotel, room with shower bath $1.50; with tub bath $2.00 to $3.50 (European plan).

JOHN BERTERMANN, Chairman.

CHICAGO TO INDIANAPOLIS.

Carnation Meeting and Exhibition.

For the annual convention of the American Carnation Society to be held at Indianapolis, Ind., January 31 and February 1, the Monon Route has been selected as the shortest and most convenient line for the Chicago party. The one-way fare between Chicago and Indianapolis is $4.60 and the party fare for 10 or more, $4.14 each. Lower berths, $2; upper berths, $1.60.

The night train leaving the Dearborn station, Polk and Dearborn streets, Tuesday, January 30, at 11.40 P. M., due in Indianapolis 4.30 A. M. has been chosen by the Florists' Club as the convention train for its members and others wishing to join the party. Berths on the night train are ready at 10 o'clock and can be occupied until 7.30 A. M. the next morning.

Reservations should be made early to secure the party rate by writing or telephoning Herbert Wiley, General Agent Passenger Department, 104 South Clark street, Chicago. Telephone Harrison 3309.

For those who wish to reach Indianapolis earlier the Monon Route has an evening train, leaving the Dearborn station Tuesday, January 30, at 5.30 P. M., due in Indianapolis at 10.30 the same night.

AMERICAN ROSE SOCIETY.

The Executive Committee of the American Rose Society met in Philadelphia, Pa., in connection with the local committee for the exhibition in March. A resolution was passed to call for 50 per cent. of the guarantee fund to be paid to the order of the American Rose Society on or before February, 1917. Everything pertaining to the coming exhibition seemed to be moving along nicely towards its success.

Application for the registration of a new rose was made by John H. Dunlop, Richmond Hill, Ontario, as follows:

"Mrs. Henry Winnett." Parentage—Russell × Shawyer. Color—bright, red, about shade of Richmond. Large full flower, solid color, foliage ample.

Deliciously fragrant, combining the keeping qualities of Russell with the freedom of Shawyer. Form good, petals well reflexed and of solid texture.

Mr. Dunlop said: "I am proud of being the first Canadian grower to have the honor of entering a seedling of such sterling merit, as I have had a number of visitors both from the United States and different parts of Ontario, and all agree as to the quality of this new rose."

A resolution was passed of regret at the death of W. C. Barry, Ex-Mayor of Rochester, N. Y., who was one of the earliest supporters of the American Rose Society, and was held in esteem by every one who knew him, as a man of quality and fine character.

The preliminary schedule of prizes was adopted and will be issued without delay.

TARRYTOWN HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY.

The annual meeting of the Tarrytown Horticultural Society was held in the Corporation Building, Banquet Room, Thursday evening, December 28. President John Featherstone presiding.

The secretary's report showed the society to be in a flourishing condition. The following officers were elected: Joseph Bradley, president; George McIntosh, vice-president; E. W. Neubrand, secretary; A. H. Brown treasurer; John Grant, reporting secretary. Board of Directors: F. R. Pierson, Charles D. Millard, Isaac Rogers, Dr. R. B. Coutand. Executive committee: J. Featherstone, Charles R. Russell, J. Elliott, Thos. A. See, John Woodcock, Abel Weeks, J. Grant, G. Wittlinger, Wm. Jamieson, and Joseph Mooney. The exhibit for next meeting will be carnations.

The annual dinner will be held at Florence Inn, January 16.

J. GRANT, Cor. Secy.

SOUTHAMPTON HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY.

The annual meeting of the above society was held on January 4th in Oddfellows' Hall, Southampton, N. Y. Officers for the ensuing year were elected as follows: President, C. Guillo; vice-president, Wm. McLeod; secretary, H. H. Wells; treasurer, Geo. Campbell; financial secretary, S. R. Candler; corresponding secretary, J. Dickson; executive committee, R. Melrose, chairman, G. Anderson, Walter Jagger and D. T. Wells.

It was decided that the regular meeting of the society shall be held on the first Thursday of each month, and that a small competitive exhibition shall be held in connection with each meeting. The subject for competition at the next regular meeting (Feb. 1) will be six varieties of evergreen shrubs, six varieties of deciduous shrubs and six varieties of berried shrubs, to be shown as sprays.

J. DICKSON, Corres. Secy.

CHICAGO FLORISTS' CLUB

The Chicago Florists' Club held its regular meeting Jan. 4th at the Morrison Hotel with a large attendance. Installation of officers and the naming of committees were the principal features of the meeting. Owing to illness the president-elect, Wm. H. Amling, was unable to be present but the other officers, Paul R. Klingsporn, vice-pres., Otto Amling, treas. and A. J. Zech, secy., were present and duly installed. The following standing committees were named: Good of the club, Geo. Asmus, Guy French, Fred Lautenschlager; sports, Peter Olsem, Joe Einwich, Fred Price; transportation, M. Barker.

The advertising question again came up, this time with a definite proposition to get out little Valentine posters for boosting that day. They contain the practical hint, "Let your Valentine present be flowers," and will be used on boxes and parcels. Arrangements for the trip to Indianapolis, where the annual convention of the American Carnation Society will take place Jan. 31 and Feb. 1, were reported by the transportation committee and will be found elsewhere.

A committee was appointed to draft resolutions on the deaths of Wm. F. Kroeschell and N. J. Rupp.

I. Cole of Springfield, Ill., called attention to the need of revising the premium list at the state shows and cutting out varieties no longer in general cultivation.

C. T. Guenther, of Hamburg, N. Y., had a vase of Chrysanthemum Hamburg Late White, which was fine for the season. Fred Stielow of Niles Center, Ill., had fine sample vases of Mrs. Russell and Ophelia roses. Wellworth Farms Greenhouses showed Milady and Killarney Brilliant roses which were much admired. A vote of thanks was given the exhibitors. The Secretary reported 344 members in good standing.

GARDENERS' AND FLORISTS' CLUB OF BOSTON.

The next regular monthly meeting of the Club will be held at Horticultural Hall, Boston, on Tuesday evening, January 16, 1917, at 8 o'clock.

The annual installation of the newly elected officers will be performed; each officer will make a short address. There will be no regular lecture, and only necessary business will be transacted. There will be reports from the treasurer and secretary on the past year's operations. Following the business session, there will be a pleasing entertainment, followed by a collation and dancing. Ladies are cordially invited to be present.

The annual club banquet will be held at Horticultural Hall on Wednesday, February 7.

The field day originally arranged for December 16, at Framingham, Mass., had to be postponed owing to the severe snowstorm. It will be held on January 20, 1917. Special car on the Boston and Worcester railroad will leave Park square, Boston, at one o'clock sharp. A cordial invita-

FIRE AT CRAIG'S

AFTER THE FIRE AT CRAIG'S.

Fire broke out in the boiler house at about 6 P. M., Saturday, January 6th, in the Norwood, Pa., establishment of the Robert Craig Company. In consequence, the main supplying the heat for the entire range became severed and the whole place was in jeopardy. Fortunately the weather was mild and by strenuous work with oil stoves, etc., the stocks were all saved until repairs could be made. The loss will probably be not over a thousand dollars. No insurance.

AFTER THE FIRE AT CRAIG'S.

tion is extended, not only to club members, but to all others interested in seeing high-grade carnations, and other commercial crops, to attend. The establishments which we hope to visit are those of S. J. Goddard, W. R. Nicholson, John W. Nelson and John T. Butterworth.

W. N. CRAIG, Secy.

The officers of the New Haven County (Conn.) Horticultural Society for 1917 are as follows: President, Wm. J. Rathgeber; vice-president, George A. Crombie; secretary, W. C. McIntosh; treasurer, David Kidd.

NEW CORPORATIONS.

Boston, Mass.—McAlpine & McDonald, nurserymen and florists; capital stock, $25,000. Incorporators, William A. McAlpine, C. Frank McDonald and Florence E. Sheare.

PHILADELPHIA NOTES.

Among the twenty-nine who sat down to the John Burton Christmas dinner there were fourteen grandchildren. Twenty-nine is a pretty hefty family gathering.

Frederick J. Michell, Jr., of the seed firm of Henry F. Michell Company, as speaker at the weekly luncheon of the Rotary Club, at the Hotel Adelphia, gave some very interesting facts on "Seeds, Bulbs and Plants" on January 3.

The preliminary prize list of the American Rose Society is now on the press and will reach the trade very shortly. This is for the big rose festival to be held in Philadelphia, March 20, 21, 22, 23. About five thousand dollars in cash premiums is offered, besides many gold and silver medals. It promises to be a great show.

CATALOGUES RECEIVED.

Sluis & Groot, Enkhuizen, Holland.—General Price List of Vegetable, Flower and Agricultural Seeds. Wholesale.

A. Kolos & Co., Gouda, Holland.—Wholesale Catalogue of Nursery Stock, hardy and tender, 1917-18, American Edition.

Holmes-Letherman Seed Company, Canton, Ohio.—"Holco" Seed Book for 1917. A flower bordered lawn picture makes an attractive cover adornment.

W. Atlee Burpee & Co., Philadelphia, Pa.—Wholesale Edition of "Seeds That Grow" for 1917. For Seedsmen and Dealers only who buy to sell again. The old reliable "Red List."

Arthur Cowee, Berlin, N. Y.—"The Glory of the Garden." An attractive booklet, finely illustrated with views in Meadowvale Farm and the choice varieties of Gladioli grown there.

Carter's Tested Seeds, Boston, Mass.—American Catalogue of Garden and Lawn Seeds for 1917. This is a condensed form of the more elaborate London publication. There are eight pages in colors of select varieties of garden annuals, etc.

W. Atlee Burpee & Co., Philadelphia, Pa.—Burpee's Annual for 1917. Forty-first year of "The Plain Truth About Seeds That Grow." The new aster American Beauty in full color makes a tempting front cover illustration, and on the back appears Fordhook Bush Lima Bean and Burpee's Dwarf Giant Tomato. The first edition of this catalogue is 600,000 copies. An advance in prices of sweet corn is noted.

Charles H. Totty, Madison, N. J.—Chrysanthemums, Roses, Carnations and Hardy Perennials. This is the fourteenth annual catalogue of this well-known introducer of new and meritorious varieties of the specialties enumerated. Externally it is distinctive, a heavy embossed cover and internally it will be found of engrossing interest for the florist or gardener whose ambition it is to be fully up-to-date in his stock.

Peter Henderson & Co., New York City.—"Everything for the Garden." The 1917 issue of this always high-class publication is fully up to the best they have ever done and, we should say, better, if that is possible. Ornate covers, gold embossed, with rich inserts in color, make a lovely setting and this 208 pages of contents are superbly embellished with plates, many of them new, and some twenty-five or more in natural colors.

D. Landreth Seed Co., Bristol, Pa.—Price List for 1917. This publication gets distinctly away from the typical seed catalogue and is quite unique in its features. The cover design calls attention to the fact that this house was founded 133 years ago. The Wholesale Price List for Merchants is bound into the front part of the general catalogue for special circulation, a convenient and economical arrangement. Announcement is made of advance in retail prices of several varieties of sweet corn and beans.

H. F. Michell Company, Philadelphia, Pa.—General Catalogue. This annual visitor comes this year with covers of dazzling brilliancy—bright hued butterflies flitting among waving Buddleia plumes, and flower bordered lawns; seeds, plants, hardy and tender, bulbs, nursery stock, small fruits, implements and sundries profusely illustrated fill its 236 pages to the limit. At the same time comes this firm's wholesale price list for the trade, 108 pages with cord already attached so that it may be hung up for handy reference.

R. & J. Farquhar & Co., Boston.—Garden Annual for 1917. In this edition Messrs. Farquhar have departed from their former style of colored covers and present instead two charming rose garden views on white background. It has been said that very few novelties are offered in this season's catalogues but this Farquhar catalogue is not lacking in that respect, the number of sterling new introductions here offered for the first time being quite large and it is known that others equally sensational are to follow next season. The illustrations in this publication are many and altogether the best this firm has sent out.

One Week's Imports.

Imports at the port of New York, of horticultural material, for the week ending Dec. 29, were recorded as follows:

Bulbs—Netherlands, $14,550; England, $31; Bermuda, $68.

Plants—Netherlands, $4,604; England, $706; Ireland, $51; Cuba, $10.

Red clover seed—France, $9,783; Ireland, $8,040.

Clover seed—France, $6,221; Canada, $12,368.

Grass seed—France, $3,088; Scotland, $1,140.

Other seeds—Denmark, $5,003; France, $3,162; Netherlands, $747; England, $7,879.

Fertilizers—England, $817.

Notes.

We have a complete list of the bids in detail as submitted by the various seed houses on flower and vegetable seeds for congressional free seed distribution. Somewhat higher prices are quoted than heretofore on many things. Competition is not so great as was the case last year, and only one foreign proposal was received.

Thos. J. Grey Co., one of Boston's oldest seed houses have removed their place of business to 16 South Market street. They have leased the entire building for a long term of years and will occupy the upper five floors, which have been thoroughly renovated and arranged to accommodate their large and growing business. The second floor will be used entirely as a sales room while the third floor will contain the executive offices and a large display of agricultural implements.

seniors next week. H. C. Lydiard, of Hartford, Conn., and M. R. Lawrence, of Falmouth, Mass., handed in exceptionally good papers on the rose problem last term.

The winter short course in Floriculture opened with a total enrollment of 21 students. Nearly 50 per cent. of the men have come from practical work in order to get a little of the training offered by the college. Theory and practice are both to be given. Last Saturday work in propagation and repotting of bedding plants was given. Next Saturday a study of greenhouse construction, including the parts and details of the greenhouse. Ground plans and sections will constitute a part of the work.

The M. A. C. Florists' and Gardeners' Club Annual is well on its way toward completion. Over 40 per cent. of the necessary advertising space has already been subscribed to. At least 1,000 copies of the Annual will be distributed widely over the country gratis. The contents are to include articles on the history and development of the department, the future of the college man trained in floriculture, alumni in floriculture, etc. The whole Annual will be profusely illustrated, and the book will be of great value and help.

New York, Dec. 29, 1916

Mr. Joseph A. Millang,
55 West 26th Street, New York.

Dear Mr. Millang:--

You will be glad to learn that our carnations for Christmas were the finest you have ever sent us and sold splendidly.

Cottage Maids were especially asked for and we think it a splendid carnation with a great future.

Sincerely yours,

(Signed) J. H. SMALL & SONS.

Obituary

Asa L. Brown.

Asa L. Brown, for many years a well-known and highly-esteemed florist of Kearny, N. J., died on December 21 aged 68 years. A widow and one son are left.

Mrs. Paul Huebner.

Mrs. Huebner wife of Paul Huebner, landscape gardener for the Reading R. R. system who was reported as being seriously ill with double pneumonia in our last issue, died on Jan. 4.

John M. Elser.

John M. Elser, 83 years old, known as the first forester in Pittsfield, Mass., who planted most of the elms which line the city streets, and selected the famous Roosevelt elm, planted by the then President in 1902 in the yard of former Senator Crane's home, died of heart trouble on January 8. He and Mrs. Elser were at one time awarded a prize for having the largest family in New England, 17 children. Thirteen of the children survive. There are nearly one hundred grandchildren and ten great-grandchildren.

Hamlin Johnson.

Hamlin Johnson, for many years proprietor of a seed store in Providence, R. I., died Sunday noon, January 7, at his home in Seekonk, where he had lived for more than half a century. He was in his 92nd year. Although advanced in years, Mr. Johnson retained his faculties, with the exception of hearing, to a remarkable degree, and up to within a year was accustomed to make daily trips to the city. Several months ago he began to fail rapidly, and the end was not unexpected.

Mr. Johnson was born in Brooklyn, Conn., and came to Providence when a young man. He was a bookkeeper for Oliver Johnson for a number of years. In 1879 he opened a seed and farming implement store at 6 Exchange place, which he carried on until 1890. About this time his wife died and he sold the business and retired to his place in Seekonk, where he had lived for 52 years. He carried on a greenhouse business at his Seekonk home for a number of years.

Mrs. Julius P. Siebold.

Anna Theresa Siebold, wife of Julius P. Siebold, Lancaster Pa., died on Tuesday, Jan. 2d, after an illness of five days from pneumonia. She was born in Germany, Aug. 29th, 1866, being 51 years of age at the time of her demise. Her father brought her to this country when she was fifteen years of age and for many years they lived in Missouri where she married Mr. Siebold in 1885. They moved to Lancaster in 1888 and have resided in this city since that time. Mr. Siebold engaged in the growing of flowers shortly thereafter and has established a large shipping business with the aid of his wife, whom he will miss very much. Beside the husband, she is survived by one son, Frank, and a number of brothers and sisters in Germany.

She was a member of The Advent Lutheran church and an active worker in all church activities. The funeral services were held from the church and interment made in the Riverview Burial Park. The Florists' Club attended the funeral and sent an emblem expressive of their sympathy.

ABOUT EXPRESS CHARGES.

Mr. Editor:

I have been interested in your editorial in issue of January 6th, "Are you paying too much?"

Big corporations are more insistent on system and get results. Too many florists use cards printed "cut flowers" on bulbs and plant shipments hence same are billed rightly as "cut flowers." If the consignee takes the matter up with his agent the correction is made. We have no such trouble. Do not cuss the agent or the company, but write the consignor to bill his shipments properly. When plants or bulbs—so bill them; if cut flowers—do likewise. Very few florists or growers seem to know or care about how stock is billed, yet there is a severe law covering misbilling of express or freight. We must watch inbound express because of "cut flower" billing of bulbs, but have no trouble in corrections. We always mark outbound shipments as to contents and personally call the agents' attention to same and ask as to newer rules or regulations now and then, so have no trouble. Florists and growers—get busy—bill right. The transportation companies are building 57-story buildings because they do business on sound economic methods (plus) while the average florist usually sells at a loss, but saves money by being at it 365 days a year. If the florist will sharpen his pencil, brush up his mind and figure what it costs to produce certain items he will find many places where he is selling at decidedly less than cost. Usually the average florist who is working 365 days a year would make more by day work and not have the endless worry and care to put up with. The present abnormal conditions will bring this home to many fellow florists. Everything needed away up, flowers as an average at "hard times" prices with most florists (?) I admit the express service recently was very abnormal causing no end of loss and worry but we are helpless under present conditions. "Stale Christmas flowers." Emphasize this, every wholesaler should simply refuse to handle "pickled stock." The quickest way to drive people to buy jewelry, etc., at Christmas is to deliver stock that will not—cannot keep and satisfy—and it hurts through the year. When we must buy flowers to meet unusual demands, we refuse to accept "pickled stock." Our reputation cannot be maintained with stock fit only for the ash can. With the market as bare and prices high as previous to Christmas there is no reason why a grower should have sent in ash can quality. This has been the condition for some years. If one must buy just previous to Christmas the market is bare, orders cannot be filled, because of the policy of unbusinesslike growers.

C. BETSCHER.

ADVERTISING GENIUS.

Penn the Florist, recognized as a pioneer in clever retail florist trade advertising had the following advertisement in a large space in connection with a picture of an azalea in bloom in an issue of the Boston Post this week.

A Suggestion to Flower Lovers

Clip this out and save for future reference

THE CARE OF POTTED PLANTS

The cool days of winter are cheered by pretty flowering and foliage plants; but while they are particularly fascinating at this time, it is during the coldest days that the plants require the most attention.

Never allow them to stand in front of an open window or in a cold draught. The intense dry heat in homes on extremely cold days will dry out the soil and wither or permanently injure most plants in a few days.

The pots of plants should be immersed in a pail of water for several minutes on very cold days, while in milder weather, on alternate days, or even twice a week, will suffice to keep the plants in a healthy condition, with the exception of forced plants, such as azaleas or lilacs; these should be thoroughly watered every day.

It will be noticed that Mr. Penn has quoted no prices and made no solicitations for business. Yet he regards it as a good trade investment, and it has been so commented on by many whose judgment is regarded as good in such matters. No doubt, many a reader of the Boston Post will feel grateful to the kind florist who has taken the trouble to advise them as to the proper care of their plants, and when they wish to purchase such things it is easy to see who they will first think of. As with the physician, the confidence of the public is the best asset the florist can have.

Plant Propagation, Greenhouse and Nursery Practice

By M. G. KAINS

We have had many inquiries from time to time for a reliable and up-to-date book on plant propagation, but were always at a loss to find any publication that we could recommend. The subject has been dealt with in fragmentary manner only in books that have come to our notice. So it is well that this new work has been issued, especially as it is both comprehensive and practical, and it should meet with a ready sale among plantmen, nurserymen and gardeners. There are nineteen chapters covering in detail topics of germination and longevity of seeds, propagating by buds, layering, cuttings, grafting, etc., fruit tree stocks, clones, etc., and there are eight pages of condensed cultural instructions in tabulated form, covering annuals and perennials from seed, woody plants, evergreens, vines, bulbs and tubers, greenhouse and house plants, ferns, palms, water plants, orchids and cacti. The illustrations are numerous, comprising 213 figures and half-tone plates. There are 322 pages well bound and on heavy paper, teeming with helpful information. It is a book which no cultivator can afford to do without. It is worth many times its price. Copies can be supplied from the office of HORTICULTURE at publisher's price, $1.50.

PITTSBURGH.

Norman S. Grubbs is spending a month at State College in attendance at the annual conference of the Pennsylvania county agriculturists.

Frank Smoler has re-entered the employ of Walter A. Faulk of the North Side, following an all summer and autumn service on the Mexican border.

Francis M. Smith, who has been in indifferent health for some time past, has resigned his position as salesman for G. P. Weaklin & Co. and joined his family at Salamanca, New York.

The Fort Pitt Floral Company in the Fort Pitt Hotel, is the innovation of Orville Crisman, president of the Ray J. Daschbach Company, Inc. Miss Roxana McAfee is in charge of the department.

Milton Griffith, proprietor of Crall's Flower Shop of Monessen, has recently purchased the business of C. W. Kinder in the neighboring town of Donora, which he will conduct under the name of Griffith's Flower Shop.

Frank Misoclek has resigned from his position of first assistant to Thomas Edward Tyler on the East End estate of Charles Dickey Armstrong and entered the employ of a commercial place in New Jersey.

After a week's visit with David Fraser of Henry Clay Frick's Homewood estate, "Clayton," George Wyness returned east last Monday. Mr. Wyness is now superintendent of the Frick's summer home at Pride's Crossing, Mass.

Owing to the sale of the old Carr estate at Point Breeze, J. F. Zimmerman is looking up a new location for his floral and landscape business. Mr. Zimmerman, who had charge of the grounds and greenhouse for some years prior to the death of Mr. and Mrs. Carr, remained on later at the request of Mrs. Carr, meanwhile also conducting a successful business of his own.

Geza Robert Stopko of New Brunswick, N. J., has become manager of the Highland Floral Co. of which James Watt is proprietor. Mr. Stopko, who is a native of Kassa, Hungary, and a graduate of the gardeners' college in Buda Pest, came to America six years ago. Meanwhile he has been the landscape gardener on the magnificent estate of Alfred L. DuPont in Wilmington, Delaware, later receiving commercial experience in several places. Mr. Watt, who is private secretary for Alexander R. Peacock, a year ago leased the latter's private conservatory and growing houses which are among the best equipped in the city.

WASHINGTON, D. C.

The January meeting of the Florists' Club of Washington, D. C., was devoted almost entirely to a discussion of matters pending in the Post Office Appropriation Bill.

The large plate glass window on the P street side of the Dupont Flower Shop was splintered by the automobile of Baron E. Akerheim, of the Swedish legation. A colored girl was knocked down and had to be taken to the hospital.

George E. Anderson, of the Hubbard estate, reports the conclusion of negotiations with A. N. Pierson, Inc., as a result of which that firm will assume the propagation of the new rose brought out by Mr. Anderson which he has named Mrs. Charles Bell. A description of the rose appeared in a recent issue of HORTICULTURE.

CHICAGO.

The closing of the year's books at the J. A. Budlong store calls Mrs. Schupp to duty again.

Another new store is the Wittmer's Floral Shop, which was opened late in the fall at Jackson and Kedzie. The greenhouses are at Winnemac, Ind.

Miss Charlotte Paradise has received a letter from Miss Corinne Pearson, who is on her way to visit her parents in Sweden. She evidently is not enjoying the voyage for she writes that she will never leave the U. S. again. Miss Pearson came over when but twelve years old and this is her first visit home. She was in A. L. Vaughan's office for several years.

In carrying out the plan of the "City-Beautiful" the widening of 12th street is under way. Mrs. O. Kreitling, who with her late husband conducted a flower store at Blue Island and 12th street for 24 years has been obliged to sell and is removing to 317 S. Cicero avenue. The new location is a good business street and ten years ago was an almost unbroken prairie, and near which Frank Oechslin bought his first lots.

The north side has two new retail stores, both of which were opened just in time to get a share of the Christmas trade. One is known as the Lakeside Flower Shop, at 4700 Sheridan Road. The proprietors are A. Hall and W. H. Waddington, both former employees of A. Lange. The other store is only a quarter of a mile from this one, at 4739 Broadway and is called the Fluer de Lis. The year just closed has been so generally successful, that it would not be unexpected if 1917 should see many new retail flower stores in Chicago.

Flower Market Reports

BOSTON There has been no pronounced change in market conditions during the past week. A high standard of quality prevails in all lines of stocks but the supply is weak. The trade has quieted down considerably, as was expected, but there are no signs of a slump or protracted calm. White roses and carnations are slowly regaining popularity. A slight falling off on red and other colored stock counter-balances this however. Excellent prices are obtained by all concerned, grower, wholesaler and retailer. Daffodils are a shade more plentiful and are in great demand. Single violets continue to move along at a good rate. Stevia is coming in well. Lily of the valley enjoys no great call and is fairly steady at $6.00. Callas and lilies are being favored by many buyers and are selling at top prices.

BUFFALO The ending of the old year was satisfactory to all. Up to Friday there were restful days with stock scarce and business light, but the balance of the week and New Year's day were busy ones. The present week also has proved satisfactory, there being a slight flurry in wedding stock and heavy demand for floral work which keeps the market cleaned up daily. Good carnations are still on the short side. Roses are in fair supply and there is plenty of lily of the valley, also violets, narcissus and some good mignonette and peas which sell quickly.

CHICAGO The after-holiday business has settled down to the inevitable. Such quantities of stock were hurried on for that time that the cuts of roses are much smaller and it does not come amiss that the demand is lighter, as practically all is used up each day. The same condition exists with American Beauties. The demand is fully up to the supply and prices are not being lowered. Carnations are the weak spot in the market. There are quantities of them and very low offers are made by the wholesalers to move them in quantity but to no avail and they stand and go to sleep by the thousands. And what makes the matter worse for the grower is the fact that side by side with them stand the pails of daffodils and tulips that will remain fresh so much longer. Violets are a disappointment to many again this season. The New York stock arrives too often in poor condition and the demand for home grown ones, no matter how good, is never what it used to be. Lilies are quite plentiful. Sweet peas run from the small poorly grown ones to the splendid butterfly varieties and good stock moves well. The first freesia came a week ago. Large fine mignonette is seen. Tulips in white, pink and yellow are offered and sell fairly well. Some white and coral bouvardia in both long and short stems is now coming. Paper white narcissi are much in evidence and not all selling.

Prices have taken a decided drop, the demand for stock is steady and fairly active, but the supply has become so large that it is impossible to clean up all receipts. Roses and carnations are very plentiful and the same is true of lilies. Paper white narcissus receipts have become heavier since the holidays. The cut of Roman hyacinths and freesia is sufficient. Sweet peas are in a heavy supply and when good find a fairly good market. Wallflower, primroses and forget-me-not may be had in fair quantities. Other offerings include snapdragons, callas, some rubrum lilies and calendulas.

NEW YORK Normal conditions for the season prevail in the wholesale flower district, the usual large variety of standard mid-winter goods being received in ample quantity, also always a few new things from progressive growers, with prices fluctuating according to weather and demand. Stock generally is of excellent quality. Roses of all sorts have never been better. Carnations vary, some stocks being inferior and there is not much snap to the sale of these flowers. Bulbous stock is good and the receipts are rapidly increasing. There has been a little scarcity in asparagus. Cattleyas vary greatly in size and quality and prices are in accordance.

Business has continued pretty good and all hands seem to be fairly well satisfied. In roses the Russell still leads the procession as the best seller. American Beauty is in good form with prices a little easier. Carnations are of excellent quality and as the supplies are falling off a little on account of the dull weather of the past ten days, prices show a tendency to harden up a little. Lily of the valley moves rather sluggishly, probably on account of the high price. No doubt, many retailers use the sweet pea often as these are fine now and moderate in price. Cattleyas are in good supply and demand rather sluggish. Gardenias are now very good and are quite a feature in the market at prices within the reach of all. Lilies have eased a little in price, but clean up very nicely and there is no sign, so far, of their going below normal. The trumpet-major daffodil now joins the pussy willow to give mid-winter a touch of spring. It is the small-flowered variety from the Mediterranean, of course. The larger flowered sorts from more northern climes will be along later.

The New Year is opening auspiciously for both the floral merchants and seedsmen. Flowers of all kinds are of good quality and, with the exception of roses, coming in sufficient quantities. Sweet peas are exceptionally fine, and among the new products of the season are paper white narcissus, tulips, jonquils, mignonette and calendulas. Lilies continue plentiful, but lilies of the valley are practically void. Prices continue fair.

Clear skies and moderate temperature is with us. Stock is in good shape and good stock is sold at fair prices. Of course cheap sales of "junk" and inferior quality flowers are slaughtered off and cheap signs on the down town district adorn the windows of some prominent retailers. Violets are getting more plentiful. Sweet peas are coming fine and holding at good prices. Greens are selling well.

The stores are continuing to book a large number of orders for dinner and party decorations. This is making good the sale of flowers of all kinds. There is a good demand for roses in all colors and some of the stock being received is of exceptional quality. This is particularly true of Mock roses which are bringing up to $5 per dozen. American Beauty roses are selling fairly well. There is enough lily of the valley to fill all demands, but the price is so high as to limit its sale to quite an extent. Carnations continue scarce and the prices high. Snapdragon is also scarce and there is no oversupply of orchids.

THE TRAFFIC CONGESTION AND ITS LESSON.

Dear Mr. Editor:

Unusual situations demand unusual measures; it is trite to say that all agricultural interests are facing an unusual situation this season.

It is said on good authority that nearly every successful co-operative organization among farmers was born of necessity. In much the same way, the present critical situation is bringing out an exceptionally close co-operation among all industries allied to agriculture. Manufacturers, railroads and dealers are working together as never before. Farm papers, too, have it within their power to render a great service to readers and advertisers alike. You are no doubt, familiar with the present car shortage and the resulting congestion of traffic. Suffice it to say that 150,000 more cars were needed Dec. 1st and the number is increasing month by month.

A letter (one of many) from a client vividly portrays another phase of the situation. He says in part: "It is impossible to get materials on short notice. In other words, manufacturers have bought material for a moderate amount of business, but owing to prices, have not dared to stock heavily. An unusual rush of orders would, therefore, make a difficult situation, and dealers will be wise to place their orders as far in advance as possible." Another suggests that we ask, "the farm papers to co-operate with all manufacturers by urging their readers to do their spring shopping early."

These earnest words from men who know need no comment. Won't you co-operate with us in the "Do Your Spring Buying Early" campaign? Orders for farm machinery, silos, cream separators, milking machines, nursery stock, seeds, spray materials, etc., should be placed now to insure delivery when wanted.

Your co-operation will be appreciated and can not fail to benefit all concerned.

Very truly yours,
The Charles Advertising Service.

JACOBS GREENHOUSE CONSTRUCTION ENDORSED BY WORLD-FAMOUS ARCHITECTS

This range of Jacobs greenhouses are now in course of erection for Mr. J. Insley Blair at Tuxedo, N. Y. They are without a doubt the "last word" in greenhouse construction.

The plans which contained all manner of modern improvements and scientific arrangements were drawn by the internationally famous architects Carrere & Hastings, who, after thoroughly examining practically every style of construction in their search for the maximum of efficiency, placed their plans and construction contracts with us.

Is it not fair to assume that what we are doing for them, we can do equally as well for you?

DELIVERIES

We're doing everything in our power to speed them up

RAW materials used in greenhouse construction are pretty well tied up.

War business—of course.

That's a condition beyond our control—a thing we can do nothing about.

But what happens to that material when we do get it, is a condition that's not beyond our control.

Bad outside conditions, make necessary the making of inside conditions better.

We're doing that very thing.

We're continually putting in new machinery to increase the speed of our production.

For instance, we recently put in a machine that enables four skilled men to do the work that formerly required ten. With the labor market in its present condition, it is doubtful whether we could get the ten skilled men anyway. The new machine increases production 40%. While one of these new machines was plenty to take care of the quantity of work, we finally decided to put in another to cut in half the amount of time necessary to do it in.

We are making time saving improvements like this all along the line.

As a result when raw material reaches us, it will go from us to you in the form of your greenhouse, just as quickly as possible.

So when we say (as we did at the top of this Ad.) that we're doing everything in our power to speed up deliveries, we are stating a fact—not just talking.

"HAMBURG LATE WHITE" CHRYSANTHEMUM

Above picture was taken Nov. 26, 1916, and will give a good idea of what "Hamburg Late White" looks like when grown to single stems and planted six inches each way.

"Hamburg Late White" is pure white under all weather conditions and is a sport of Maud Dean white, but has no trace of pink, as the original.

The average grower of chrysanthemums must have varieties which are easy to handle and from which he can cut as near 100% of perfect blooms as possible. "Hamburg Late White" has been grown for the last four years and produces a very high proportion of good flowers. It is not an exhibition variety, but for late white, one of the best for commercial purposes. It can be had in bloom the latter part of November, by taking an early bud; but by selecting later buds, most of the flowers are cut during December and we would advise to select a late bud, as the later buds come somewhat fuller, and by selecting late buds, flowers can be had as late as the middle of January.

Keeping qualities are excellent and where a light, graceful white flower is wanted, "Hamburg Late White" cannot be surpassed.

"Hamburg Late White" will be disseminated in the Spring of 1917. Plants will be ready March 1st, 1917, and all orders will be filled in rotation.

Rooted Cuttings, $12.00 per 100; $100.00 per 1000.

NEW RED ROSE DONALD MacDONALD

A new Hawlmark Red Rose sent out this year by Alex. Dickson & Sons. We have tested this Rose for winter forcing for two years, and with us it produces more red roses during the winter than any Rose we have ever grown. It is not a large Rose, but has perfectly formed medium sized flowers that sell at sight. Color, bright orange carmine; will not turn blue, because the base of the petals is orange. It is not a summer Rose, as it has the same substance as Killarney. We build the plants up until November, and from Thanksgiving until May it is a money maker for the Rose Grower, as no pinching is necessary.

Strong Grafted Plants . . . $35 per 100; $300 per 1000
Own Root Plants $30 per 100; $250 per 1000

DICKSON'S HAWLMARK IRISH ROSES

Alex. Dickson & Sons, Ltd., of Newtownards, Co. Down, Ireland, have been distributing their Pedigree Roses in the United States, under the name of DICKSON'S IRISH ROSES for the past thirty years. They have given us for winter forcing Killarney, Liberty, Mrs. Jardine, Melody, Irish Fire Flame, and Killarney Brilliant.

In outdoor varieties, in addition to the above, they have sent out Duchess of Wellington, Mrs. Wemyss Quinn, Duchess of Westminster, Mrs. MacKeller, Lady Ashtown, Lady Greenall, and a host of other sterling varieties. Other firms by the name of Dickson are now advertising Dickson's Irish Roses, so that Alex. Dickson & Sons for their own protection, have copyrighted the name HAWLMARK, which is the sterling stamp of the rose world. Every HAWLMARK ROSE is genuine and the best cultivated.

NOTES ON CULTURE OF FLORISTS' STOCK

CONDUCTED BY

John J. M. Farrell

Questions by our readers in line with any of the topics presented on this page will be cordially received and promptly answered by Mr. Farrell. Such communications should invariably be addressed to the office of HORTICULTURE.

"If vain our toll, we ought to blame the culture, not the soil."—Pope.

Canterbury Bells

It is now time to arouse these plants into activity if wanted for Easter. Start in about 45 degrees at night, and when new growth starts increase the temperature slowly until the minimum of 50 degrees is reached. They make beautiful objects in pots for Easter decoration. When they have filled the pots with roots, feeding will help them materially, and more than repay for the trouble. Admit fresh air on every favorable occasion. By the end of February they will stand a night temperature of from 60 to 65 degrees and will need lots of water at the roots and a good syringing overhead on all bright days. Give light fumigation every ten days.

Violets

In a violet house where the stock is up to date, it will not be hard to find good stock for propagation. Conditions are just right for the propagation of violets now. It pays to examine them somewhat closely so as not to let any slip in that show the least trace of mites, weakness or spot disease. Put them into sand in the coolest part of the propagating bench or in well-drained boxes filled with sweet, sandy soil and keep moist and shaded. Do not allow the cuttings to wilt at any time either before or after they are placed in the sand. With frequent sprinkling they will soon be ready for transplanting into other boxes, when a much richer soil can be used, and when the roots have taken to the soil and the plants become firmly established shading will only be necessary on extremely bright days. Do not let the temperature go above 45 degrees night, and 10 to 15 degrees higher with sun.

Pennisetums

There is always plenty of demand for ornamental grasses for the trade. There are several varieties of penisetums, and all are decorative and make splendid edges for beds containing cannas or large subtropical plants. P. Ruppelianum, commonly called the purple fountain grass, has graceful foliage and purplish plumes. P. longistylum, carrying greenish white plumes, is the variety most in evidence. Then there is the newer P. japonicum, which makes a splendid bed by itself or is effective if used as an individual specimen. This variety will make fine plants the first season. They can be sown in a sandy mixture and placed in a house with a temperature of 65 degrees at night. When large enough prick out in flats. With all the penisetums it is necessary to pot off seedlings single and, as they grow quite rapidly, a shift into 3 or 4-inch pots may be necessary before planting-out time. When they come up keep well up to the glass and do not keep too wet.

Propagating Ficus

The cuttings, usually from six to eight inches long, and with several leaves attached, should be taken from the latest growth and should be cut just below a joint. They may be inserted in small pots of sand and loam, and the pots plunged in a bench which has a bottom heat of about 80 degrees. It is well to fasten the leaves up to a small stake so as to save room and facilitate watering. After the first watering the soil should be kept only moderately moist. In propagation by mossing, the tops of young plants can be used. Nine or ten inches from the tip of the shoot sphagnum moss is inserted to keep the cut open, and more moss is wrapped around the stem. When young roots show through the moss the new plants can be taken off and potted up.

Vincas

Thrifty plants in 3-inch pots with three or four hangers and more coming sell good and are to be preferred to overgrown roots. They should have a temperature of from 55 to 60 degrees at night. It is advisable to pot divisions for the present in as small pots as possible so that at about the beginning of March the last shift into four-inch pots will provide them with large amounts of fresh soil and nutriment to which they will then more readily take than now. Strong, salable stock cannot well be had from cuttings in good time for the next spring, if put in the sand as late as this, but fine stock for another season's trade to be grown into size under field culture next summer may thus be obtained. They can be put into flats of sand quite close together, in a night temperature of about 60 degrees. Keep shaded and moist and they will root in four or five weeks.

Reminders

Be careful of your sand. Clean sand is one of the most important aids to successful propagation.

Give everything in frames out of doors as much light and air as possible, when the weather is at all favorable.

Several odd things in seeds may now be sown to advantage, such as antirrhinums, hollyhocks, begonias, asparagus, etc.

There is no better time in the whole year for the propagation of a great number of indispensable plants than now, when without sacrifice or inconvenience the necessary conditions exist.

Next Week:—Amaryllis; Flowering Shrubs for Easter; Foliage Plants; Odontoglossum; Sowing Palm Seed; Reminders.

A favored land

Our cover illustration shows a New Year's scene in one of our most favored cities, in this vast country with its great variety of climatic conditions. Those of us whose lot is cast in a colder latitude will be excusable, surely, if we are a bit envious of a place which can turn out such a gorgeous display of flowers and verdure at a season when our northern gardens are frozen and desolate. We must congratulate our friends on the other side of the continent on their strict rule against the use of anything but fresh flowers in these floral pageants. Artificial material has its uses, but not in such a place on such an occasion.

A weighty problem

Our correspondent in this number, who comes forward with such strong convictions in approval of the proposed quarantine against tree and plant importations from abroad seems to impute to us a possible selfish disregard of the general welfare because we admit to our columns the views of correspondents with whose opinions he cannot agree. But HORTICULTURE's correspondence columns are open at all times to any and all who have convictions on any subject of vital importance to American horticulture and who are able and willing to express them acceptably. The matter of plant importation, at the present stage of home plant production, is of vital importance, from whatever viewpoint we may individually consider it, and so it seems hardly necessary to assure the gentleman that the appearance in our columns of the communication which he criticises is in no sense any evidence of HORTICULTURE's indifference to the general welfare or of a willingness to jeopardize the future of our gardens and forests for a mere business advantage. We have heard much on both sides of this controversy in its various aspects for several years back and there is much more that might be and undoubtedly will be said for and against the drastic remedial and preventive measures which are being urged. We hope those of our readers who have clearly defined ideas on this or any kindred topic will feel free to express them in our columns. We can assure them of a receptive and intelligent audience for that is the class which HORTICULTURE seeks to interest.

"All up!" for the S. A. F.

Secretary John Young has some sound and practical advice for the incoming S. A. F. state vice-presidents, in this issue. State vice-presidents sometimes need to be reminded of their duty to the society which has conferred so marked an honor upon them, and to the great industry whose welfare in their immediate territory has been in a certain degree placed in their keeping. How often the selfish, cold-blooded question, "What has the S. A. F. done that I should support it?" is asked, only those who have held official responsibility in the society know. Secretary Young has enumerated a few of the society's benefactions and, as he intimates, there are many more that might be mentioned. "Lest we forget," one of the memorable services rendered by the S. A. F. to the flower trade of the country which Mr. Young has not mentioned—although it was local in its immediate application—was the crushing defeat administered to the then arrogant United States Express Company by appeal to the Interstate Commerce Commission some ten years ago against the extortionate transportation charges and arbitrary treatment of flower shipments to the New York market. If the florists have forgotten that episode the express magnates have not. With a membership of fifty thousand, which is not at all an unreasonable number, instead of two thousand, it requires no great stretch of the imagination to realize the possibilities for good in such an organization. Every state vice-president should "do his bit" to this end and there will never be a better time to make the effort than the present.

The Danger of Foreign Plant Pests

Editor of HORTICULTURE:

Dear Sir:—I was sorry to see in your issue of December 30th, an article headed "Proposed Quarantine Against Trees and Plants," in which the writer, a plant importer, belittles and ridicules the danger of importing foreign plant pests. I realize that you represent the florist trade, of which the importing house is a part, and that you feel bound to protect your clients against injury. But in order to save the importer is it wise or right to jeopardize the safety of our trees and shrubs and flowers, our fruits and vegetables and farm crops, and do you feel it your duty to advocate the rights of a comparatively small group of importers, if such rights are antagonistic to the general welfare?

Your writer's scoffing remarks about the statement of the American Forestry Association that imported pests annually cause damage of hundreds of millions of dollars, led me to look up some figures on the subject. I find that the Department of Agriculture in its 1904 year book placed the annual loss from insects at $700,000,000, or $7.00 for every man, woman and child in this country. Your writer will say that these were not all imported insects. That is true, not all—probably not half. But just stop and consider how many of our most troublesome insects are imported. I name a few at random:—Gypsy Moth, Brown Tail Moth, Codlin Moth, San Jose Scale, Apple Aphis, Pear Psylla, Asparagus Beetle, Cabbage Worm, Onion Maggot, etc., etc. Please note also that the above estimate is for insects alone and does not include diseases (about which I have been unable to get any definite figures.) To show your writer, however, that imported diseases can do terrible damage I need only mention the Chestnut Blight (from China), which has killed practically every chestnut in this section (as well as in Long Island and other places). Pine Blister Rust now threatens to do similar damage to New England and the government now prohibits the importation of all Pines (locking the stable after the horse is stolen).

In his second paragraph your writer asks why we cannot get along with these pests if Europe can. Europe can and does survive in spite of these pests, but that does not prove that they are desirable. Other countries have survived with leprosy and bubonic plague, but this country will not allow people suffering with these diseases to land here. Concerning his specific instance that Europe still has a plentiful supply of White Pine let me inform him that Pinus strobus, which is here threatened with Blister Rust is not native to Europe, nor a supremely important tree there. If all of this species in Europe is destroyed it will not affect the European timber supply which comes, of course, mainly from native trees.

A proper plant quarantine law passed fifty years ago would have kept out most of the foreign plant pests and would have forced our nurseries to do more propagating, thereby producing more made-in-America stock, a thing you have so often urged in your columns. Now that these pests are with us we have to endure them and fight them. But is it not high time to prevent the introduction of more of these pests? Our scientific men can tell us what dangers still threaten us and what classes of plants we must exclude. Why can we not listen to them and be guided by them, shaping our course for the public welfare, and not for the selfish benefit of any individual or group of individuals?

Yours truly,

John C. Wieter

Germantown, Phila., Pa.

The "Why" of the Carnation

Editor of HORTICULTURE:

Dear Sir:—In a western trade paper, issue of Jan. 11, was an editorial query as follows: "Why is the carnation falling behind in the selling in flower stores of the better class?" I cannot let this query pass unnoticed and would ask your indulgence while I try to answer.

The sum and substance of the matter is that the majority of "stores of the better class" will not pay the price that good quality carnations are worth. Consequently a lot of cheaper grade stock is grown for quantity rather than quality. In Boston good carnations are holding their own with the rose (I cite the rose as we all have to acknowledge the rose as queen) for the reason that no city in this country has a higher grade of carnations offered for sale than has Boston. We have, also, some that are not worthy of the name of carnation, at that.

A rose at $3.00 or $4.00 per dozen is only a disappointment to the purchaser. Lucky to have it keep 24 hours, while a carnation at $1.50 or $2.00 will be a source of pleasure for nearly, if not fully, a week. I am sure that had the editor referred to had headquarters in an eastern city instead of the west he never would have had cause to ask such a question. I have visited his markets on many occasions and I can readily understand why he asks. We have some such quality in the Boston markets that the directors hire teams to cart away in the rubbish barrels, for the growers or their salesmen can't induce buyers to part with their good money for such stock. No wonder carnations are falling off in popularity in the West. Until there is better stock grown and offered in the stores it will be impossible for them to increase the sales on carnations.

I contend that a well grown carnation is worth $2.00 per dozen any time during the winter. By "well grown" I mean a 3 to 3½ inch flower on a good stiff stem and not a puny little thing on the end of a piece of string capable of being tied in a knot. The latter are not carnations; they are rubbish.

As carnations of the best grade sold in Boston at Christmas at from $10 to $15 per 100, and not enough to go around at that price, so they are selling now at from $5 to $8 per 100 for best stock, and this is no "pipe dream"—it is cold facts. At these prices I am sure it is good argument that the carnation is holding its own right here in New England and the East generally.

SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS AND ORNAMENTAL HORTICULTURISTS

Suggestions to State Vice-Presidents by Secretary John Young

The state vice-presidents, appointed annually by the president-elect, are expected to represent the Society in their respective states in all matters pertaining to the Society's work. They should lend every effort possible toward building up and strengthening the Society by adding to its membership, through a systematic canvass, either personally or by letter, of the florists, and others having kindred interests, resident in the territories relegated to them. The work of obtaining new members is all-important. There are many states having what may be termed an inexcusable lack of representation on our membership roll, and it is quite apparent that with but little effort, this condition can be changed. Every state vice-president is continually in touch with florists who are not members of our Society, and it should be the ambition of each to bring such into our organization.

The important work done by the Society in behalf of the whole florist trade in this vast country is a matter of record, and needs no trumpeting; every florist has participated in the advantages resulting, advantages not possible of accomplishment through individual effort. This is the day of organization in the business world, and never was the banding together of men engaged in different industries more necessary.

A powerful organization in our own industry became an absolute necessity years ago, and we have it in our own Society, whose membership now exceeds 2,000. But when statistics show 20,000 or more florist establishments in the country, we realize that we are far short of our aim to be thoroughly representative.

The Society has much work mapped out for the near future, including an effort to induce a greater use of flowers on the part of the public. It has been painfully evident within the past two years that the consumption of flowers is woefully short of the production, entailing a vast loss to growers. A campaign of publicity such as the Society has in contemplation, will entail prodigious expense, and can only be entered upon when those whom it will most interest will give the small support asked of them—a membership in the Society.

State legislation in regard to the operation of greenhouse heating plants is another important problem now receiving the attention of our organization, one in which individual action is without avail. The growers in every State are threatened with legislation to compel them to yield to unjust measures to force them to employ licensed engineers to run their heating plants, and these to work in eight-hour shifts. Just stop to think what this would cost florists! Could an individual florist do anything to stop it, or change it to meet conditions?

These are matters which can be emphasized in approaching a florist whom it is desired to bring into the fold.

The question may be asked: "What has the Society done for the good of the trade?" All the good work of the Society could hardly be described, but it is well to remember a few of the most important services rendered to the trade, particularly the following:

Not so very long ago it was impossible to insure greenhouse establishments against damage by hail. Insurance companies refused all overtures for such insurance, because they said they had tried it, and found it to be a losing game. The S. A. F. and O. H. took the matter up, and, after much thought over conditions, started the Florists' Hail Association, and incorporated it as a section of the Society. This association now underwrites risks on about four million square feet of glass, located in different parts of the country, has a reserve fund of $35,000 or more, and since its organization, has paid out over $300,000 for losses. The membership roll in this association now comprises nearly 1,500 names.

Everyone remembers how the florists grumbled when they realized that while books could be sent by mail for 8 cents per pound, they were required to pay a postage of 16 cents per pound for bulbs and seeds. Our society took the matter in hand, with the result that the government made a special low rate for seeds and bulbs, which remained in force until parcel post was instituted.

Individual effort proved unavailing in attempts to obtain a proper and fair rate from the express companies on plants. Our society took up the matter, and after a hard fight, obtained a concession which is still enjoyed by practically every florist in the land.

Variety in sizes of flower pots was a source of much trouble to florists some years ago. The society standardized sizes and today there is absolute uniformity in pots.

To give impetus to the art of floriculture, the society made national flower shows possible. These shows, held at intervals of two or three years in our larger cities, at tremendous expense, have proved to have wonderfully benefited all branches of the florist trade in wide areas surrounding the cities where they have been held.

The society established the Florists' Telegraph Delivery as a section, an organization of retail florists which makes the interchange of orders by telegraph both safe and profitable.

These are only a few instances of effective work accomplished by our society, but should be quite sufficient to appeal to a florist when considering taking out a membership.

Our year book for 1916 contains much information as to work in progress, and a close reading of the volume will evolve many talking points. If an additional copy or two would be of service, they are available on application to the secretary.

The Convention Exhibition.

Complying with the many inquiries and requests that have been received at this office, we are sending out at this time the plan of the main floor of the Grand Central Palace, New York, where the Thirty-third Annual Convention and Trade Exhibit of the Society of American Florists and Ornamental Horticulturists will be held August 21st, 22nd and 23rd, 1917.

Undoubtedly all available space will be reserved at an early date. Better accommodations may be had if reservations are made at this time. Those who are familiar with the general layout of the Grand Central Palace (it was in this building where the Third National Flower Show was held) will know that any location on the main floor will be favorable for making an attractive exhibit.

This will be a Business Convention. Send in your orders for space promptly. If upon receipt of your order, space desired has already been reserved, the Secretary will allot the next best favorable location unless you have objection.

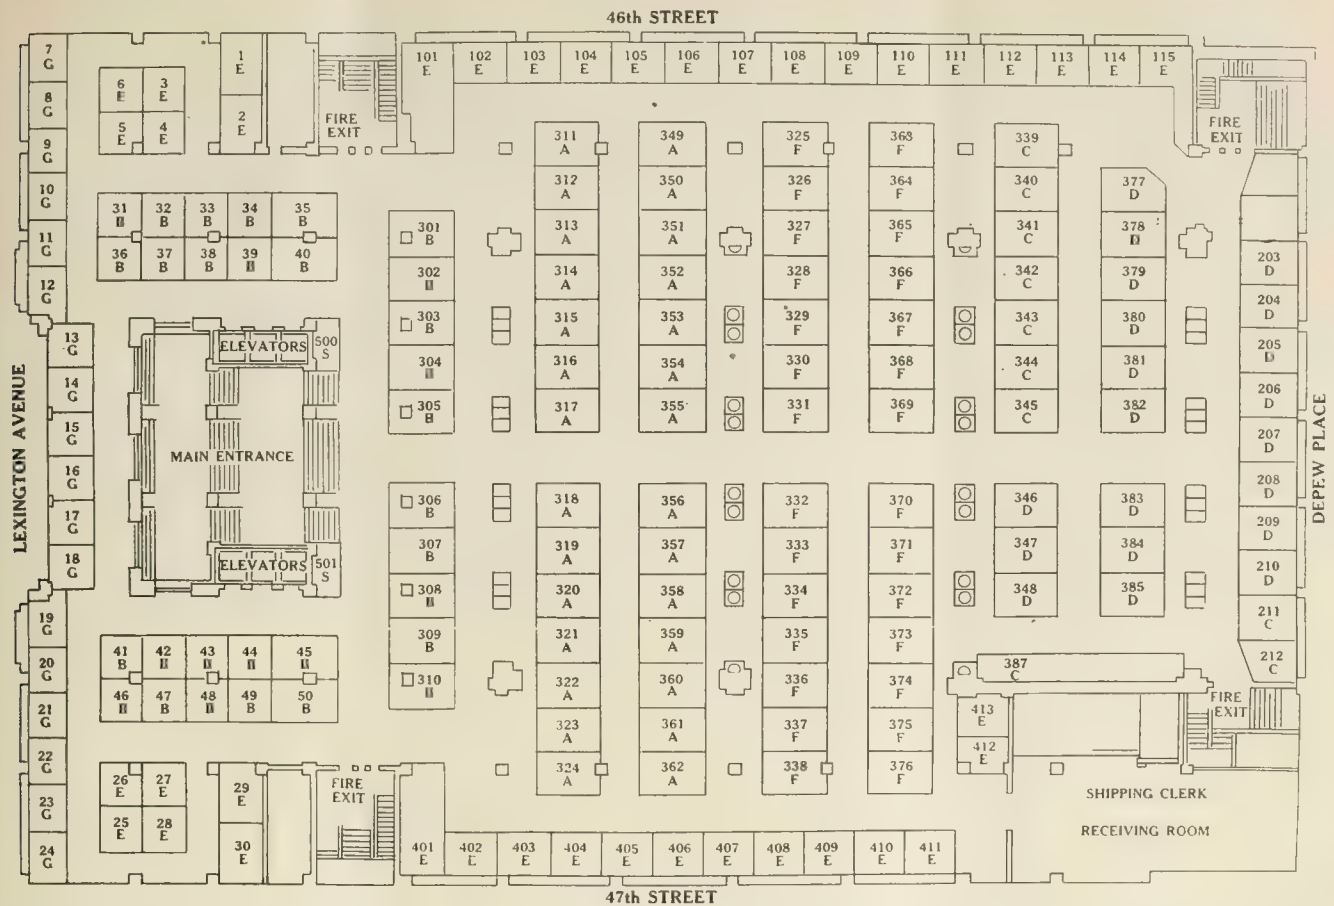

The Convention Garden

Just a word about the Convention Garden. Make an exhibit here—it will be the opportunity of a life time! Do not delay in reserving space if you are interested. The rate for space is only ten cents per square foot. Your Secretary will be pleased to take up with you now the question of allotment of space in the Convention Garden, which will be located in a most favorable section of the Botanical Garden, Bronx Park, where the exhibits will be seen by thousands of interested people daily. The plantings will be under the supervision of Dr. N. L. Britton, Director of the Botanical Garden.

The New York International

The management of the New York Flower Show to be held in March have generously offered to provide free admission to the exhibition to all S. A. F. members in good standing. S. A. F. members will, therefore, apply at the offices of the Flower Show Committee upon arrival at the hall. Exhibitors in the trade exhibit at the convention will have the opportunity, if they visit this Flower Show, of seeing the location of spaces they have reserved.

INTERNATIONAL FLOWER SHOW.

All details as to arrangement etc., of the International Flower Show, to be held under the auspices of the Horticultural Society of New York and the New York Florists' Club at the Grand Central Palace, New York, March 15-22, now an annual event in New York have been completed. The Flower Show committee are now meeting each Monday and will continue to do so until the close of the Show.

The Rose Gardens and Rock Gardens which were the sensational features of the exhibition held last Spring will again have a prominent place in the Main Hall. The Park Department of the city will this year be represented by exhibits from two Boroughs. From the Central Park, New York City, greenhouses there will be a large group of palms, foliage and plants in flower; from Prospect Park, Brooklyn, greenhouses an extensive display of cactus; this exhibit will be arranged to show as near as possible how these plants grow in their native state and under natural conditions and will have suitable accessories and surroundings.

As an added attraction brought about mainly through the influence of Frederic R. Newhold, there will be an exhibit from the Botanical Garden, Bronx Park, which promises to be of unusual interest. The Flower Show management appreciate the valuable services of Mr. Newhold in advancing the interests of the Flower Show on every occasion possible. Space accommodations both in the competitive and trade sections are causing much concern and it may yet be necessary to use the third floor of the Palace, if it will be available at the time of the Show.

The ladies of the Red Cross will conduct a tea garden on similar lines as last year only on a far more pretentious scale. The souvenir program under the supervision of Chairman T. A. Havemeyer will also have many new and attractive features and will consist of two hundred pages, one hundred devoted to valuable informations and cultural notes prepared by leading horticulturists and will also contain many illustrations. Of the one hundred pages set aside for advertisers, about sixty have already been reserved. Trade tickets are now on sale, also a special ticket available for colleges, schools and institutions and the advance orders for these tickets indicate a tremendous sale. Thirty sketches were submitted in the Poster contest and Miss Thelma Cudlipp was declared the winner and awarded the cash prize of one hundred dollars.

Charles H. Totty, chairman of the schedule committee announces the scale of points adopted for rose gardens, the same to apply, as far as possible on rock, bulb and spring gardens; 40 points to be considered for artistic design, general effect and accessories; 20 points for variety; 20 points for cultural perfection; 20 points for practicability. The final schedule is now in course of preparation and will be distributed about March 1st.

Upwards of sixty representative firms have reserved liberal space in the trade section and are arranging to make attractive exhibits. Space rentals in this section to date amount to over thirteen thousand dollars, a very creditable showing, and as the available space is limited it will be necessary for intending exhibitors to make immediate arrangements if they desire favorable accommodations.

CLEVELAND AS IT WAS.

My attention has been called to an article recently appearing in a New York florists' publication entitled "Tales of a Traveler," and the particular locality covered by the traveler was noted as being "Around Cleveland," my native city and former home. The tale of this "Traveler" was not a little astounding. His declaration that up to the time he landed from "a rickety old tub of a lake boat," Cleveland had "no claim of especial recognition" was most emphatically a stunner. When I was born Cleveland's population was 6,000, and 49 years after (the date our traveler landed there) it was 260,000, "a mere town" (?), and which ten years later was the largest city in the great state of Ohio. No sane person knowing these facts would look upon the statements made in the paper referred to as other than an unwarrantable slander upon noble men and women who devoted their energies to the upbuilding of their homes and of their city, and this slur upon their memories I cannot allow to pass unnoticed. No one who knows Cleveland and its history would do otherwise than cast it aside as the production of a malicious mind or word of an ignorant one.

At that time, I admit that lower River street where the "rickety old tubs" landed was not attractive. The tremendous amount of team traffic precluded any other than firmest of paving, differing none from the water front streets of our other large cities, and the hotels in that neighborhood were not of the highest class, but at the same time, one, if observant, must have seen evidences of a business activity far and beyond "a spirit of let-well-enough-alone." But passage on a "rickety old tub" was not compulsory on anybody, for there were palatial steamers, the finest in the world, in endless procession daily through Lakes Erie, Huron and Superior. Had "Traveler" gone up Superior street hill into that part of the city where its business other than forwarding was transacted, he could have found hotels such as the Stillman, Forest City, Weddell, Kennard, American and many others, the equal in every respect, save possibly in size, of the Astor of New York, Tremont of Boston or Girard of Philadelphia. That he did not chose to do so can hardly be charged to Cleveland.

Those "unprogressive" pioneers of Cleveland dug a waterway by which the waters of the great lakes found their way to the Gulf. A canal boat could be loaded at Cleveland and its cargo discharged on the New Orleans levee. Was the construction of the Ohio canal in 1832, 309 miles long from Cleveland to Portsmouth on the Ohio river, the conception of a non-progressive type of men?

A few years before our traveler made his landing I could have shown him the remnants of the first railroad built in northern Ohio. Primitive though it was, as were most railways in the early days, yet it was the beginning of what in connection with its maritime and internal waterway developments brought about in later years the wonderful growth and development of the city. Is it not foolish, therefore, to declare that the men of those days did not suspect that the city they were

BURPEE'S ANNUAL

We reviewed this publication briefly last week. We might add that it increased in size 22 pages as compared with last year's edition. The new things listed make a tempting array for the ambitious gardener. It is undoubtedly one of the best catalogues ever put out by the Burpee house. The New York Sun of Sunday, Dec. 24 devoted a large space to a special illustrated article relative to the novelties listed therein.

laboring for in these great improvements would grow in influence, population and wealth? Note their farsighted policy when they struggled to unite the immense iron deposits of the Upper Lakes with the coal beds immediately south of Cleveland, and builded a city, of which it may be only necessary to quote a remark by Andrew Carnegie, an authority our traveler will not accuse of unprogressiveness or ultra conservativeness in business matters, that for the resultant of this combination in manufacture of "these products Cleveland is the ideal city of the American continent." What the fathers builded for their posterity, however, was not alone confined to accumulation of wealth. Had our "Traveler" strolled up the hills from the cobblestone paved River street into the beautiful plateau upon which Cleveland is situated, he would have soon discovered why it has been recognized as the city of beautiful homes where art and music, science and literature have ever received a warm welcome. Some years ago another traveler, Bayard Taylor, strolled up and passed the houses of these men who are charged with acting in the spirit of "let-well-enough-alone," and he found what he gave to the world in published writing as his estimate of one Cleveland street, when he said "a view of Euclid avenue was well worth a trip across the Atlantic ocean."

Of Cleveland as it is today and of those loyal sons of the grand pioneers who founded and built it I must not speak, for it is impossible to cover the ground within limited space, but may be pardoned if a little time be asked for in calling attention to what the fathers, sons and grandsons have and are doing in carrying out the plans laid down in line of making a city beautiful in horticulture and floriculture. Even when our "Traveler" was on the deck of the "rickety old tub" he passed the lake front of a park system which must be seen to be appreciated, presented to this "town" by J. H. Wade, an adjoining one by W. J. Gordon and still another by one peculiarly a type of Cleveland unprogressiveness (?) John D. Rockefeller. I say a "type," though not by any means the only one of his generation resident in Cleveland. I single him—for the whole world knows of him—as quite sufficient an answer to any slur upon Cleveland progressiveness. Though not born in Cleveland, he is a product of it. He came out of its schools filled with the energy, pluck and aggressiveness with which the very air seemed filled, a business stimulant. No one who knows anything of the business spirit and the cool, calm, forceful unwearying industry of those with whom as a young man he was advised would be surprised at his success in life. Today, wherever you see in the Forest City a magnificent home or fine estate, wherever it may be, you find buildings covering beautiful paintings and statuary, devoted to education or literature, or whenever you pass imposing structures and are told they are devoted to the alleviation of human distresses or sheltering orphaned children, you will find that they were built and endowed by those who had a thought of the future city and were not content to "let well enough alone." Their posterity, now the bone, sinew and brain of Cleveland, are carrying out to the fullest extent the dream of their ancestors' lives, for which they lived and struggled and following their admonitions spare no effort to make Cleveland bigger, better, more beautiful. How much these loyal sons are doing, what they have already accomplished, and what grand plans for the future are being laid out, only those who know them, who knew their parents before them, who are thoroughly in touch with them, can presume to tell. One thing I know though, a personal indignity they might pass unnoticed, but a word derogatory to a city their fathers built, their birthplace or home, they will resent sharply and keenly.

Nor was the florist industry of a quarter century ago lacking in any of the progressiveness and foresight necessary to place their calling among the honorable and honored industries of the Cleveland of today, in evidence of which I have but to mention such men as Adam Graham, J. M. Gasser, H. A. Hart and others.

In fine, then, as an answer to any charge of lack of progressiveness does it not appear that the grand old builders of the Forest City gave to their descendants the advice and command Pearlmutter impressed upon Abe, "Throw your bread upon the water, Abe; then the chickens will come home to the roost, already."

EXHIBITION AT NEW YORK.

A small but excellent exhibition was held at the American Museum of Natural History, New York, on January 13. Orchids from Mrs. Herbert L. Pratt, violets from Mrs. John H. Flagler, Greenwich, Ct., Buddleia asiatica from Mrs. F. A. Constable of Mamaroneck, carnations from James Cox Brady of Gladston, N. J., sweet peas from Mrs. Frederick Frelinghuysen of Elberon, N. J., narcissi from Mrs. H. Darlington of Mamaroneck, and sweet peas from William Shillaber of Essex Fells were among the most interesting exhibits.

The regular meeting of the Florists' Association of Reading, Pa., was held at the home of J. C. Bauder, 932 N. 10th st., on January 5th.

OBITUARY.

John Gale.

Many of the Chicago friends of John Gale of La Grange did not learn of his death on December 13 till some time later, when it was heard with much regret. John Gale was born in Whitechurch, England, Dec. 4, 1847. When 24 years of age he came to America, first locating in Kansas, then ten years later in Chicago and buying a tract of land in the suburb known as La Grange Park. For 27 years Mr. Gale was in the greenhouse business, starting with the growing of vegetables and gradually changing to flowers, making a specialty of asters, and at one time he enjoyed the reputation of being the most successful aster grower in this vicinity. Mr. Gale was highly respected by all who knew him, and during the many years he was in business he made friends who valued him for his integrity. He leaves a widow and two sons, Geo. W. and Fred B. The funeral was from the residence, 628 N. Kensington Ave., La Grange Park, Ill.

George H. Arnold.

George H. Arnold, for many years a prominent market gardener in the Boston district died on January 13 at his home in East Braintree after a long illness. He was 81 years of age.

R. M. Pratt.

Robert M. Pratt, former owner of the beautiful estate in Belmont, Mass., which is now the Oakley Country Club grounds, died at his home in Boston on January 9, aged 79 years. Mr. Pratt was an enthusiastic student and patron of horticulture and his exhibits in old Horticultural Hall, grown and arranged by the late David Allan, were among the most notable of their day.

Arthur Netting.

Arthur Netting, 44 years old, a St. Louis florist, suffered a slight laceration of his head Christmas day, when he stumbled in his home and fell against a radiator. He did not think it was serious, but on January 8th it became painful and he went to the hospital, where he died on Jan. 14th.

Henderson Employees Make Merry.

The annual dinner tendered to the heads of departments and travelers for Peter Henderson & Co., marking the opening of the season of 1917, was held at Spilker's, Cortland St., New York, on Thursday evening, January 11th. The menu was witty and suggestive, so much so that we think it worth reproduction here for the edification of our readers.

The program consisted of an address by Mr. O'Mara, "General Manager and Baseball Fan," subject, in part, "The Home Run you made last year will not win this year's Game;" songs by Prof. Guy Hunter; violin solos by A. Mackrell; songs by W. R. Smith; solo on bones and minstrel by J. Black.

Poems written for the Henderson Employees' Dinner:

Panacea for Hycostolivin

The cost of living's jumping, it's mounting to the sky, and you've got to dig more dollars up, for everything you buy. Our Solomons and Wiseacres are doping out the cause; but all they'll do is recommend a brand new set of laws. They say they've donned their thinking caps, and put their heads together, and some of them blame it on the war, and others say it's the weather. Economists put the blame on the "gold" which came to our shore in store untold, and raised the price of beans and spuds; and also duds, for young and old. Now, while politicians dope out schemes to reduce the cost of living, and think "nae doot" there's no galoot will call the bluff they're giving; I'll tell you of another scheme, that all can understand: Get out your spades and rakes and hoes, and cultivate your land. Yes! First and foremost, men themselves must lend a willing hand, if they'd realize the promise of the "increase of the land." So dismiss the legislators, throw their law books on the shelf, and send them kiting home again, let each one help himself.

The Crops Have Failed

"There's not enough o' sunshine to half warm up the frames an' the green flies are beginnin' their ornery ol' games." "The days are far too short, an' the sun's too pale an' wan;" thus in the early spring time wailed the pessimist M. G. man. "Jack Frost has my early plantin' o' spuds, an' I guess I'd better be packin' my duds, an' hike for a place that ain't under a ban," with voice forlorn one April morn groaned the pessimist M. G. man. "Gee! another hard frost, an' the peach buds are all killed; soon, with beetles, bugs an' borers, my fields will all be filled. No! t'aint no use tryin' to kill 'em with poison pot or pan;" thus in the merry month of May moaned the pessimist M. G. man. "The early crops are very poor, an' the prices far from big; I think 't would pay me better to feed 'em to the pig." But city folks must be fed, thus mused the great philan-thropist and grumbler, the pessimist M. G. man. But when the golden Autumn came and prices rose, gee whiz! the pessimist turned optimist, and said, "why this is biz." And now he rolls in money, he's getting all he can; this guy who wailed, "The crops have failed," the prosperous M. G. man.

CONNECTICUT HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY.

The Connecticut Horticultural Society has made an auspicious beginning for 1917, being addressed on January 12th, in the County Building, Hartford, by Dr. G. P. Clinton of the Connecticut Experiment Station at New Haven.

Dr. Clinton spoke on "The White Pine Rust and the Diseases of Flowering Plants." His remarks covered the history of the study of fungi, and the scientists who devoted the greater part of their lives to the work. The first time fungi was ever studied in a university was in 1870. At the close of his remarks, the members extended a rising vote of thanks to Dr. Clinton. The following members were named as to serve as the executive committee: John F. Huss, Warren S. Mason, C. H. Sierman, W. W. Hunt and Francis Roulier.

This society will hold three flower exhibitions this year. There will be a show in June of hardy flowers, a Dahlia show in September, and a Chrysanthemum show in November. These exhibitions will surpass anything of the kind ever held in previous years.

ST. LOUIS CLUBS.

The St. Louis Florists' Club held its regular monthly meeting at the office of the St. Louis Seed Co. Forty members were present. Not much business outside of the routine was transacted. The next meeting will take place at one of the wholesale houses.

The St. Louis Spring Flower Association met at Jules Bourdet's. The guarantee fund is all subscribed and a patrons' fund of $5,000 is to be started in the near future. The arrangements for decorating Armory Hall are being discussed and plans for a huge fountain with Palm Beach effects in the centre of the hall. The show is being well advertised and success financially is expected.

At the meeting of the Newport (R. I.) Horticultural Society on Tuesday evening, January 9, Arthur Herrington of Madison, N. J., delivered a lecture on "The Iris" before an audience which taxed the seating capacity of Music Hall. Numerous colored slides were shown by a stereopticon operated by Neil McLellan. Following the lecture plans for the August show were discussed.

The Leading American Seed Catalog is bigger, better and brighter than ever before. Twenty-two pages have been added, and best of all you will find thirty Burpee Specialties illustrated in color. Never before have we issued a catalog with so many accurate color illustrations. Florists and Market Gardeners, in addition to Burpee's Annual, should have Burpee's Blue List, the Market Growers' Handbook. This is a wholesale price list for commercial planters. Write for these catalogs today. A post-card will bring them.

With the close of 1916 forty years of Burpee Effort have passed into Seed History. These were constructive years, years of careful, intensive, scientific investigation and experimenting. Starting in a very modest way, acre after acre, building after building have been added until today we enjoy the distinction of being the World's largest Mail Order Seed House.

The House of Burpee

in this forty years has introduced more distinct new varieties of Vegetable and Flower Seeds that are now in general cultivation, than have any three other American Seed Firms, but never have we catalogued any one of these varieties until it has passed all the exacting requirements of the Burpee Standard. This Burpee Standard is maintained by rigid tests at Fordhook Farms, America's largest and most complete Trial

Liberal Offer No Fruit Grower Should Miss

Here's proof-positive of our unbounded confidence in "SCALECIDE" as the most effective dormant spray. We will make the following proposition to any reliable fruit grower:

Divide your orchard in half, no matter how large or how small. Spray one-half with "SCALECIDE" and the other with Lime-Sulfur, for three years, everything else being equal. If, at the end of that time, three disinterested fruit growers say that the part sprayed with "SCALECIDE" is not in every way better than that sprayed with Lime-Sulfur, we will return the money you paid us for the "SCALECIDE." Could anything be fairer? Write today for full particulars.

GARDENERS' AND FLORISTS' CLUB OF BOSTON.

The regular monthly meeting of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club of Boston, held on Tuesday night, Jan. 16, took the form of a Ladies' Night, together with the annual installation of officers. A large number of members and friends were present. The business was brief but six new members were elected. The reports of secretary and treasurer were accepted as very favorable. Secretary Craig reported the addition of 66 new members during the past year. A vote of thanks was given to the retiring treasurer, Peter Fisher. The installation of officers was very ably carried out by A. P. Calder, assisted by W. J. Kennedy acting as conductor. Mr. Calder gave many helpful words of good counsel. Committees were appointed as follows: Exhibits—W. H. Judd, chairman; Robert Cameron, Peter Fisher, Duncan Finlayson, Kenneth Finlayson, Samuel J. Goddard, Julius Heurlin, Eber Holmes, Charles Saunders, D. G. Wyman.

Entertainment—G. W. Hawes, chairman; Donald J. Crighton, James Donald, Harold Edgar, Norman Hunter, John McIntyre, C. J. Stone, G. J. Farley, William Watson.

CLUB AND SOCIETY NOTES.

The sixty-second annual meeting of the Western New York Horticultural Society will be held in Convention Hall, Rochester on January 24-25-26. As this is exclusively a "fruit" society, the premium list is devoted entirely to this class of exhibits. The program of papers and addresses is quite lengthy and comprehensive. Thursday evening will be "Recreation Evening." A moving picture film entitled "Berry Growers of the Pacific Northwest" will be one of the features. Copies of the program and prize list may be had by addressing the Secretary, John Hall, 204 Granite Building, Rochester, N. Y.

H. W. Tinkham of Warren, R. I., was speaker at the second in the series of the winter meetings of the Worcester County, Mass. Horticultural society on Jan. 11. The subject of the lecture was "Better Business Methods for Vegetable Growers," and at the close of the talk a general discussion was held.

The seventy-second annual meeting of the Rhode Island Horticultural Society was held in the Public Library, Providence, on Wednesday, January 17. Dr. Harland H. York gave an illustrated lecture on the White Pine Blister Rust, this new disease which threatens to destroy all the White Pines unless effective methods of control can be applied.

The formation of a market gardeners' association for farmers and producers of Worcester and vicinity was advocated by members of the Worcester County (Mass.) Horticultural society, at the second of its winter meetings on January 11. Consideration of the plan was the result of a talk given by H. W. Tinkham of Warren, R. I., a member of the Market Gardeners' association there. Mr. Tinkham told of the advantages of such an organization, which in Warren numbers 207 farmers who have procured a central place and sell their goods at an agreed price, without resorting to the medium of the middleman.

ANOTHER SEED BILL.

On January 12 Congressman Byrnes of South Carolina introduced in the House a bill No. 20044 to regulate interstate commerce in adulterated and misbranded seeds, etc., which bill was referred to the Committee on Agriculture.

The bill applies to seeds and bulbs of all kinds, defining adulteration to be when seeds or bulbs contain dead seeds or weed seeds, or dead bulbs or any other substance materially reducing the value for seeding or planting purposes. Misbranding is defined, when one kind or distinguishable variety of seed or bulb shall be offered for sale under the name of another kind or distinguishable named variety of seed or bulb. Second, if in package form and the contents are stated in terms of weight or measure, they are not plainly and correctly stated. Third, if the article be falsely labeled or branded as to the State, Territory, locality or country in which it is raised or produced.

Heavy penalties are provided for the first offence, not exceeding $200 fine; for any subsequent offence not exceeding $300 or imprisonment not exceeding one year, or both.

The Locked Door on European Shipments.

Latest advices from Europe, received on January 15, report no change on the "locked door" situation for all grass and clover seeds. Exporters are applying about once a week to the powers that be but no permits have been secured so far. It was thought a month ago that spinach would get through on a seventy-five per cent. basis but subsequent results are showing only twenty-five or less. On the whole the situation is very gloomy and famine prices for what little is left are the order of the day.

One Week's Imports.

Imports at the port of New York, of horticultural material, for the week ending January 5, were recorded as follows:

Bulbs—Azores, $85; France, $93; Netherlands, $5,813; England, $32; Mexico, $72.

Plants—Azores, $55; Denmark, $526; France, $421; Netherlands, $1,126; England, $4,035; Ireland, $209.

Red clover seed—France, $8,580.

Grass seed—Denmark, $3,118; Russia, $21,699.

Other seeds—France, $3,156; Italy, $5; Netherlands, $3,309; Denmark, $217; England, $953; Hongkong, $119; Japan, $1,636.

Nitrate of soda—Chile, $195,554.

Other fertilizers—England, $7,380; Scotland, $391.

Peth & Duggan, New York City.—1917 Descriptive Catalogue of Vegetable and Flower Seed. A very attractive and creditable publication in contents and workmanship. Index on inside of front cover is a pleasing innovation.

H. G. Hastings Co., Atlanta, Ga.—Seed Catalogue No. 50, Spring, 1917. Specially intended for circulation in the South. Profusely illustrated and from appearances a business getter. "Bank Account" cotton on front cover and "Dixie" vegetable collection in color on back.

J. Bolgiano & Son, Baltimore, Md.—General Catalogue for 1917. "Glory" Tomato in color glory on front cover page and a variety of attractive vegetable and flower novelties on back cover challenge attention. The book is devoted mainly to vegetable seeds and is profusely illustrated.

H. A. Dreer, Philadelphia, Pa., Dreer's Garden Book—This is the seventy-ninth annual edition of this popular publication. Like its predecessors it is an ideal seed and plant catalogue and strictly up-to-the-minute in its specialties. The cover is plain and tasteful—fawn color with no adornment other than gold embossed lettering. It comprises 288 pages of descriptive text and splendid half tone engravings. There are four full pages of color portraits of Cardinal Climber, H. T. Rose, Los Angeles, Long spurred Hybrid Aquilegias and Improved Vegetables. In quality of paper and typographical work this book is one of the very best of the season.

NEWS ITEMS FROM EVERYWHERE

CHICAGO.

L. D. Eastman & Sons, of 180 East 77th street has bought the Michal store, 1168 East 63rd street.

The Chicago Flower Growers' Association have the distinction of being the only firm now supplying home-grown pussy willows. The stock is fine.

Mrs. Fred Stollery, who was severely injured when the automobile in which she was riding was struck by a street car and thrown through a store window, is recovering. Her sister was killed.

Its central location attracts many exhibitors of new varieties to Chicago. J. E. Yeats of Champaign, Ill., showed his new red rose Sarah Yeats last week and the favorable impression took the substantial form of several good orders.

One of the local papers devoted an editorial to the seedsman's cause last week by a denunciation of the practice of congressmen, who send free packets of seeds to their constituents. It called forth an answer favoring the stand of the editor.

Another eastern man has cast his lot with Chicago. Frank Farney, for many years with M. Rice & Co. of Phila., is now in charge of the department of infants' specialties at A. L. Randall's, another new line which this enterprising firm is manufacturing.

Herman W. Rogers, for twelve years with Weiland & Risch, left for his former home in Detroit on Monday, where Mrs. Rogers has lately fallen heir to considerable property. The trade will miss Mr. Rogers, who was always courteous and as head of the sales department made many friends. It remains to be seen whether the city of his earlier life will be able to hold him from the choice of his mature years.

The bill board nuisance had a big set back, and promoters of the City Beautiful scored a point where the United States Supreme Court decided in favor of the legality of the Chicago ordinance, requiring the consent of three-fourths of the owners interested, in order to erect a bill board. The decision was reached Jan. 15th and steps to pass a still more stringent ordinance are expected to follow.

Among the big decorations of the past week were those of the Coliseum, for the Allied Bazaar, which called for hundreds of plants and great quantities of green, and the Armour dinner in the gold room of the Congress Hotel. The size of the coliseum makes only large showy effects desirable, but at the Congress much originality was displayed. A Robin Hood effect was carried out by the lavish use of birch bark, etc., and the expense is said to have been well up toward the four figure mark.

BOSTON.

William J. Magee, florist, of Salem, has been confined to his bed for the last week with a severe attack of pleurisy. He has sincere wishes of a host of friends in the Boston market. fine.

The Brookline Chronicle in an issue of recent date published a very persuasive plea by James Grimshaw Scott in favor of the Epigaea repens as the official state flower of Massachusetts.

The Schedule of Prizes for the exhibitions in Boston for 1917 has been issued by Secretary Wm. P. Rich of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society. Eleven shows are provided for, of which the spring exhibition, March 21 to 25 and the Outdoor Flower Show in June are the principal events.

W. E. Coburn and R. E. Dixon, chairman and secretary respectively of the Everett Park Commission, have handed in their resignations to Mayor Mullen after a verbal altercation with that dignitary. Mr. Coburn has served on the board for nineteen years and Mr. Dixon has been a member for nearly ten years.

Sam J. Goddard, is bending his efforts to having Boston well represented at the meeting of the American Carnation Society at Indianapolis. Mr. Goddard announces special rates for a party of ten, but the delegation is not to be limited to this number if he can possibly obtain further application for tickets. Among those planning to go are Mr. and Mrs. William McAlpine, Mr. and Mrs. George Noyes, and J. W. Howard.

The Brookline selectmen will hold a joint convention with the park commissioners on Jan. 23 to elect a successor to Albert L. Lincoln, who resigned from the park commission about two weeks ago. The selectmen last week decided that as it was so near the annual town election they would not call a joint convention. It is understood, however, that the commissioners desired to elect a successor to Mr. Lincoln at once.

The first of a series of free lectures on horticultural subjects, which will be given under the auspices of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society every Saturday afternoon until and including March 31, was given on January 13 by Loring Underwood, in Horticultural Hall, before a large audience, on "Home Gardens." Mr. Underwood illustrated his lecture with the new process of "direct color" photography, illuminated and thrown upon the screen by an electrically lighted stereopticon.

WASHINGTON, D. C.

An automobile of J. H. Small & Sons was quite badly damaged as a result of being hit by another car driven by a woman automobilist.

William A. Royal, a chauffeur for Gude Bros. Co., narrowly escaped serious personal injury last week in an automobile collision. Both machines were damaged.

Uncle Sam is in need of a gardener at the U. S. Propagating Gardens. The Civil Service Commission will hold an examination for that position on January 27. Further information can be obtained upon application to the Commission.

The S. S. Pennock-Meehan Company has been offering some of the finest white lilac blooms ever seen in Washington. They are being cut from plants grown in this country and it is said that Washington florists are exceedingly lucky in being able to get these as florists in other states have been unable to get good lilacs on account of the lateness of importations.

The Oehmler Floral Company, Inc., will hereafter conduct the business of O. A. C. Oehmler at 1329 G St. N. W., with the latter as secretary and manager. The change came when James M. Dunbar and G. Wolt, of Alexandria, Va., bought the business of Mr. Oehmler. The company will confine itself strictly to retail business, the wholesale stock going to the Leo Nielsen Company, which has for a long time been marketing the stock of the Dunbar Floral Co.

PITTSBURGH.

H. E. Taylor and S. V. Reeves gave interesting talks at the recent meeting of the Farmers' Association at Nixon Station.

Mrs. Gilbert Ludwig, bookkeeper for the Ludwig Floral Company, has been ill for the past ten days with a severe attack of influenza and stomach trouble.

Ralph W. Pinner, manager of the landscape department of the A. W. Smith Co., has arranged for exhibition space at the June Flower Show to be given in Motor Square Garden under the auspices of the Garden Club of Allegheny County.

From all sections of the state word has been received at Harrisburg that large delegations are forming to attend the Agricultural Show January 22-26, and Secretary of Agriculture Charles E. Patton has arranged with the passenger department of the Trunk Line Association for reduced rates. Already many exhibits of apples and corn have been received.

PERSONAL.

Miss Clarissa A. Fuller, for nine and a half years clerk for W. W. Hathaway, florist, Brockton, Mass., has resigned her position.

William Wilder, florist, of Somersworth, N. H., and Carrie Spofford of Vermont, were recently united in marriage. They will reside in Somersworth.

PASADENA'S NEW YEAR CELEBRATION.

Cut flowers by the mile was the unique and beautiful offering to the Goddess of Flora at Pasadena, California, on New Year's Day, 1917. Celebrating its 28th annual Tournament of Roses, the municipality added fresh laurels to its fame as the "City of Roses" by making more gorgeous than ever the floral parade, which this year assumed a national and even international aspect. Lavishly decorated floats, representing Japan, the Philippines, the Hawaiians, China, Assyria, Byzantium and Spain gave colorful variety to the fragrant cavalcade and already the hope is expressed that at the next tournament the world will be circled in the float entry list.

An added feature this year was the hotel division of the parade. In this there were entries from New York, Chicago, Baltimore, Kansas City, St. Louis, San Francisco, Portland, Seattle, Atlantic City and other of the larger cities frequented by travelers.

Few of the 200,000 visitors for the day realized the immense amount of preliminary work necessary to prepare the exquisite but rapidly perishable spectacle. It is probable that a larger proportion of the population of Pasadena "sees out the old and in the New Year" than any city on the continent, this condition being due to the thousands of enthusiasts who work all night at preparing the flower bedecked floats. The strictest rule of the celebration is that not an artificial flower of any sort may be used in decoration. Many varieties of the cut flower used wilt so rapidly that their cutting is postponed until the last possible moment. The experts who decorate the floats throughout the night and the early morning hours know to a minute how much time will be required and govern the work accordingly. In awarding the prizes, the judges consider the freshness of the blooms, hence the strenuous effort to utilize every minute before the starting time.

All sections of Southern California

The Fair Maids of Eagle Rock Sailed to Pasadena in a Boat of Flowers.

are drawn upon for flowers, as there is no community so small that it does not boast of a float in the annual flower orgy of a land of flowers. It is not unusual for the towns of least size to win the finest trophies, as frequently they have the largest assortment of blooms from which to select their decorations.

No expense is spared in many of the entries, notably those of wealthy winter residents who maintain elaborate gardens where all varieties of tropical and semi-tropical plants are propagated. Priceless orchids mingle with the wild poppies, California's state flower, and hundreds of varieties of roses lend color and fragrance to the splendid spectacle. In order to insure plenty of blooms, for its own display, the city of Pasadena maintains a garden of two acres, in which are grown flowers especially for the midwinter tournament.

Flower Market Reports

BOSTON No one ventures to predict when stock will begin to pour in plentifully. At any rate it hasn't this week. Business has been slightly depressed because of the high current prices. The cold weather is bearing the greater part of the blame. Short roses are at a premium, eight cents being asked for nine-inch lengths. Longer grades are slightly quieter. Extras and specials are fairly active. Matchless and Pink Delight led the carnations, which are even scarcer than roses. $10.00 per hundred is not an unusual figure. Morning Glow is showing up well. White stock has been shown the preference for the first time since last fall. Primroses have made their appearance and seem to be decidedly welcome. Bulbous stock, especially paper whites, has done nobly during the week and has remained steady in price. Callas are "worth their weight in gold." Lilies are rather sluggish. Stevia, freesia and wall-flowers have had a busy week, the first two especially. String smilax is scarce. Corn flowers are surprisingly in demand.

BUFFALO Zero weather, shortage of stock and business only normal. The wholesalers and retailers are having no end of trouble—trains late, arrival of frozen stock, bad conditions in delivery. Business very uneven, some days plenty of it and other days a scarcity and the stock most wanted to fill orders fails to come in, or is received in such condition that it cannot be used. It is hoped that things will change for the better at an early day.

CHICAGO Business is moderate, and if it were otherwise, there would not be stock enough to carry it on, so conditions are fair for mid-winter. Intensely cold weather and a shortage of coal, together with little sunshine have not been conducive to hurrying on another crop of roses, which at this writing would be more than acceptable. Social events are the means of using up much of the best stock that is being cut now, and aside from the local demand, shipping trade is considered good by most of the large houses. Carnations are still lagging and some fine stock stands unsold on the counters at the close of each day. Daffodils are coming on as fast as they can be used. The stock is good, and its lasting qualities are making sales cut into those of carnations. The violet situation is not quite satisfactory and some wholesalers put it much stronger than that. Sweet peas are selling well. There are some good lilies that sell readily. Calendulas, freesias, tulips in quantity, paper whites, snapdragons and pussy willows are all to be had, as well as plenty of greens.

During the latter part of last week and the first part of this week the supply of stock slowed up very greatly and now in most lines is barely equal to the demand. Roses at times run short of actual needs. Carnations, too, are selling up pretty well. The receipts in sweet peas have increased until this flower is plentiful. Enough lilies and narcissi may be had to supply wants. Violets, lily of the valley and orchids are all in a fair supply and meet with a fairly steady demand.

The flower market is in a rather wobbly and uncertain state from day to day and it is not easy for one to forecast what a few hours may bring forth. Crops are gradually becoming heavier on many things, especially on bulbous material and in the aggregate the daily receipts are much heavier than they were two weeks ago, while the quality averages up very satisfactory all down the line with the exception of American Beauty roses which are as usual at this time of the year, well below par.

Very little change

PHILADELPHIA has occurred in conditions here during the past week. Stock generally has been on the scarce side and prices have held firm. About the only exceptions were lily of the valley and daffodils. There are rather too many of these for the demand. Long roses were also more plentiful than called for, while the shorter lower-priced grades cleaned up much better. Altogether the situation is encouraging. Carnations are now at near their best and rivalling the rose in popular favor.

"Stuff scarce," one

PITTSBURGH hears emphatically spoken on every hand. Business continues very good, considering the fact that when the retailers arrive at the wholesale houses they find much the same condition of supplies as did the famous old Mother Hubbard who went to the cupboard. The would-be-obliging wholesalers divide up of their wherewithall, as well as possible, with the result that nobody is satisfied. Of course, this condition of matters applies chiefly to roses, which seem especially wanted just now, although there is none too plentiful a supply of anything. Good tulips are now coming in, as well as very good narcissi, both white and yellow, which are helping to care for the shortage. Lilies are a little on the short side. Some lily of the valley and mignonette are coming in from the outside and finding their equivalent at fair prices. On the whole, prices are considered reasonable.

At time of writing win-

ST. LOUIS try weather is on hand.

Roses are very scarce and good prices are obtained for all good stock. Carnations are more plentiful but good stock has a tendency to increase in price. Cloudy and cool weather will cause a let-up in violets. These flowers used as corsages do not move as easily in severe weather. Sweet peas are in demand and sell well. Narcissi are moving fairly well. American Beauties are coming in bull-headed and shapeless in many instances.

There has been

WASHINGTON quite a scarcity of stock but practically no change in prices. The shortage of roses made good the sale of other material. There was some little increase in the receipts of carnations and these also sold up close. Tulips, freesia and other spring flowers were noted on the market for the first time this season and they sold almost as fast as they were received. Some few chrysanthemums are still to be had and poinsettias are also on the market. Cypridiums are very plentiful and meet with slow sale. Lily of the valley has dropped from $8 to $6 per hundred with the sale reported slow. Gardenias are in fair demand. Gladiolus Augusta is to be had in very limited quantities. The sale of mignonette and snapdragon has been somewhat slow while the call for narcissus has dropped off very perceptibly.

METROPOLITAN EFFICIENCY ASSURES SUCCESS

These two Metropolitan Greenhouses were erected by us for Mr. G. Mabon of Norfolk, Conn.

Mr. Mabon placed his order for these greenhouses with this organization because he understands the Metropolitan method of construction, the success of which is entirely due to its efficiency, economy and speed.

No matter how large or how small the job, this organization strives constantly to increase the value of the owner's investment in his greenhouse.

SIGGERS & SIGGERS
PATENT LAWYERS
Box 9, National Union Building
Washington, D. C.

The side truss member running between column and post, is double bolted to the gusset plate.

The main centre truss member is secured to the strut and tie fitting by 2 bolts.

The main truss is secured to the column cap by 2 bolts.

This truss joining plate holds the four truss members rigidly in exact place. The two bolts prevent any twisting or turning.

The gable purlins are fastened to the gable rafters by double angle knees with double purlin bolts.

"VIBRATION"; "Give-and-take"; "Come-and-go"; call it what you will; its the very thing you don't want in your greenhouse.

With it, your glass loosens.

Without it, it doesn't.

We build the house that doesn't.

The 2 bolt method is one reason why. You can't make a framing joint of two or more members, and make that joint rigid by using only one bolt on each side of the joint. No matter how tight you screw it up, there will be some "give."

"Gives" never grow less.

We are dead against "Gives."

Every important framing joint or connection in our Iron Frame house, has two bolts on at least one side—sometimes on both.

Making twice the number of bolt holes costs money.

Using twice the number of bolts costs more money.

Which would you rather do: pay less money for less bolt holes and bolts, and have loosened glass? Or pay more and have your glass stay tight?

Our stay tight way, may cost a bit more to start with; but a lot less to end with.

The cost of a house is not just what it costs to buy. But what it costs to buy, in addition to what it costs to keep it bought.

Ever think of it, just that way?

When you are ready to talk building, say when and where, and we'll be there.

Rooting Begonias

Mr. J. J. M. Farrell

Dear Sir:—Your illustration of growing Begonia Gloire de Lorraine from leaf I have tried for several years and have not had any success, so I have gone according to your instructions in HORTICULTURE of Oct. 28, 1916, and I have a few hundred well rooted. What I would like to know is if it is proper to pot them up now or wait until they show the growth above the sand bed. I think it would be good to let them remain in the sand bed, and then again they have nothing to live on, so what can you advise me to do as soon as possible. Gloire de Lorraine roots good; Turnford Hall roots bad; Cincinnati roots fairly good; Mrs. J. Peterson roots not so good.

J. M. B.

The Semi-Tuberous, or Socotrana section includes all the best of the flowering begonias. Gloire de Lorraine and Cincinnati hold first place from the end of October until the end of January and the same culture will do the rest to perfection also. They can be increased from seed, top growth and leaves as cuttings, but are generally increased from leaf cuttings. The best time to take leaf cuttings is during November. The most important point is to have a propagating bed, with an even bottom heat of from 80 to 85 degrees, and atmospheric heat of 10 to 15 degrees lower. Use 2½ to 3-inch of clean sharp sand over perfect drainage and cover with sash. Select only the cleanest, best ripened, and healthy leaves. Insert, including the leaf stalk, about one-half its length, and make firm. See that the leaves do not rest flat on the sand as it will cause them to damp off easily. Keep the sand in even moisture, but do not try daily waterings, or you will lose a large part by rot. Give shade for about 3 to 4 weeks when a little sun will help to dry up the bench and prevent the spread of fungus. In 8 to 10 weeks they should be sufficiently rooted to be potted into 2-inch pots, using a compost of new loam, leaf mold, peat and well decayed cow manure in equal parts, with enough of sand to make it porous. Give temperature from 60 to 65 degrees at night and ten degrees higher by day, placing them well up to the glass. They require a moderately humid atmosphere with a gentle spraying in the morning on bright days. When fairly pot-bound they should be shifted into 3-inch pots. By the end of January give shade for a few hours at mid-day. In prolonged rainy weather keep the atmosphere in a dry state. During February is a good time to put in some more cuttings for smaller stock for the filling of pans, etc., for Christmas. When they are rooted treat as directed above. Fresh air must never be entirely excluded in good weather. Judicious pinching should be done once in a while. Don't wait until green-fly or other insects pay you a visit, but use light fumigations and weak solutions of nicotine about every ten days regularly. During March and April they will need some more shade to keep the foliage from burning. From this out any sort of cultural encouragement before the heat of the summer months will tell plainly on the stock in the early autumn and whatever degree of size and vigor is now imparted by special good treatment is a permanent gain, while any neglect at this season is a certain loss which cannot be made good at any time later on. Summer culture will be taken up later on.

Amaryllis

Amaryllis bulbs will now show signs of being ripened and some probably starting to push their flower spikes. To provide a succession it would be advisable to bring some in every ten days. It is not necessary to repot all the bulbs but they should be examined to see that the drainage is efficient. Where the roots are active and sound and the pots of sufficient size for the bulbs, they will require only a liberal top dressing of rich mulch. It can be made equal parts of loam and well rotted manure and sand. Give them a good syringing two or three times a day on bright days and keep the compost moist. Give enough ventilation to keep the temperature during the day at from 70 to 78 degrees. After top dressing or potting the plants should have a temperature of at least 60 degrees at night. As the flower spikes advance they will stand liquid manure twice a week.

Flowering Shrubs for Easter

All hard forcing of shrubs is better to be done before they start to open their flower buds. A temperature of about 60 degrees at night is better than a higher one, and when they are fairly well out about 50 degrees will give substance as well as better keeping qualities. Place them where they will receive plenty of sunshine. Give them a spray overhead two or three times a day to help the eyes to swell, and continue it daily for the next month or until they show signs of opening up their flowers. It takes from seven to ten weeks for different shrubs to bloom.

Foliage Plants

The bulk of these need an annual potting or surface dressings. Frequently plants can be shaken out of the pots, the balls picked over, fresh drainage given and some new surface soil and the same pots will do for another year. Nearly all do well in a compost containing some fern fibre or peat in addition to loam, but this is not really necessary. The end of January and up to the end of February is an excellent time in which to do any necessary overhauling among these plants. Marantas like some peat, as do Anthuriums, such as Andreanum and colored varieties like Veitchii, but crotons and dracaenas do well in pure loam with a little old manure and sand added. Young stock rooted during the present winter should have the benefit of some bottom heat and be kept freely syringed on all good days. Keep the house where these newly potted plants are rather close and moist.

Odontoglossums

During winter odontoglossums should get as much of old Sol's rays as possible. It is utterly wrong to give them a dark north space where in mid-winter no sun will strike them for weeks. Odontoglossums are again picking up and will, barring unforeseen contingencies, give a fine crop of flowers the coming spring. It is also a mistake to give them too low a night temperature. We can educate them to 50 or even 55 degrees, and when given this night temperature and plenty of sun, it is astonishing how much progress they will make. Do not keep the house too damp during dull murky weather, but during bright weather you can damp down two or three times a day. On all good days see that the air is changed even if it is only for an hour at a time as these orchids are fresh air subjects. During bright days give them a spraying over head.

Sowing Palm Seed

Palm seed is very irregular in germination. While some will start in three or four weeks others may not show for nearly a year. See that perfect drainage is provided for, as this is very essential. They should have about 65 degrees, with a good bottom heat. After covering the bottom of the bench with potsherds, put a layer of sphagnum over all, and then fill with about three inches of a compost of equal parts of soil, peat and leaf mold. The seeds should be covered from a half inch to one inch according to their size. It is well to employ some sashes to cover the bench as it helps to regulate the atmospheric moisture while controlling the temperature, thereby keeping them in a uniform state. When the first leaf has expanded they should be potted into small pots and grow on.

Reminders

Get the late sweet peas planted out before they get pot-bound.

Sow Thunbergia alata early in order to have good plants for filling baskets in May.

Start early any dahlias of which the stock is short, in order to have strong plants and plenty of them.

After cutting heavily keep the adiantums a little on the dry side. A short rest will give more vigorous growth later.

Tagetes signata pumila is one of the finest annuals for bedding, so it should be included in your seed order, but do not sow it too early.

Next week: Bedding Plants; Carnation Cuttings; Chrysanthemums; Fibrous-Rooted Begonias; Primulas; Reminders.

Alpine Asters

Alpine asters rank high among the showiest spring and early summer flowering perennials of medium and low growth. Their comparatively large star-shaped flowers, in clear lavender, borne on single stems and appearing in great abundance, never fail to draw attention. Aster subcœruleus, the tallest species, is a very handsome subject for the mixed border when planted close together in clumps of from six to twelve plants. The bright blue, daisy-like flowers with brownish-yellow center on stems nearly 18 inches long, during June, are valuable for cutting.

Alpine asters may be easily raised from seed sown in a cold frame during March or April. Transferred into the open ground they thrive best in a light richly manured soil. Proper care should be taken that plantations do not suffer by lack of irrigating during their growing season. Once stunted in growth it takes considerable time to bring the vigor necessary to obtain the floral effect depicted by our illustration. Seedlings flower the second year and as a rule vary somewhat in color and form. This gives us the opportunity for improving our stain by careful selection of the plants we take our seed from. Aster subcœruleus floribundus, with large flowers of a beautiful lavender color, offered abroad, is an instance demonstrating the advisability of careful selection.

The species Aster alpinus with lavender blue flowers and its latest improvements listed under: A. alpinus "Nixe," "Rex" and alpinus superbus we know to be ideal rock garden material. On account of their low and compact habit of growth, they prove invaluable as highly effective edging during May. Aster alpinus superbus is also well adapted for slow forcing in pots.

The propagation by dividing old plants should be done right after flowering. Made early in July divisions are re-established plants by fall, ready to be planted on the space where we want them to flower the succeeding spring. For winter protection I prefer leaf-covering.

Arthur Ruzicka

Questions by our readers in line with any of the topics presented on this page will be cordially received and promptly answered by Mr. Ruzicka. Such communications should invariably be addressed to the office of HORTICULTURE.

Get the Pots Ready

It will not be long before the first batch of cuttings will be fit to come out of the sand and will be ready for the pots. But will the pots be ready for the cuttings? Do not delay getting the pots washed up if they are still foul from last season. Soak them well in water and run them through the pot washer and get them clean. While washing it will be well to keep in mind that the most important place to clean is right near the top where the surface of the soil will come to when the cuttings are potted. This ring around the pot will be the hardest to wash, too, as here the scum will be the thickest. See that it is all washed off clean so that the new soil will not start getting green on top as soon as the cuttings are potted. Do not use soap or other preparations in the water while washing as these would only soak into the pots and stop up the pores, something which should be guarded against. It will also be best to go over the stock of pots and make sure that all that will be needed later are on hand. The way the pot factories are busy now, and the way the freight lags, orders cannot be placed too early. Use two-and-a-quarter-inch pots for the first potting. The two-inch are too small, as no sooner do the cuttings start, than they have to be sifted into larger pots, where with the larger size they can remain for a while. Two-and-a-half-inch pots are too large to use now early in the season. They will be just the thing around the first of April, when the plants can be shifted right into fours from them in May.

The Potting Soil

One cannot be too careful in selecting soil, especially for the first potting. Under no circumstances should old soil be used. Growers who work ahead all the time will have a nice heap of soil stored away, or else covered with straw, leaves or manure, so that the frost will not get into it and make it very hard to get when it is wanted. The best soil we find for potting is a sod heap that is at least a year old. Generally we make one heap much larger than necessary for filling the houses, and then take the remainder for potting soil. Freshly mixed soil is not as good as soil from an old heap, as the manure has had no chance to work through it. Plants will start quicker in the right soil. Where the soil is known to contain many weeds or fungus it will be best to sterilize it with steam. To do this a bin is required, which must be tight. A coil of small pipe is run back and forth through it. Drill small holes every six inches in the pipe before it is put in. The bin is then filled with soil, closed, and the steam turned on. The time required to thoroughly sterilize the soil will depend on the size of the bin and the amount of pipe in it, also on the pressure of the steam. At least half an hour should be allowed to work after it has penetrated all through the soil. Screen the soil well, running it through a one-quarter-inch mesh screen for the first potting. Coarser soil can be used later for larger pots.

Syringing

Syringe as often as the weather will permit. The days are already a little longer, and it will not be long before spring will be here. If there is any spider anywhere, be sure to mark the place well, so that the plants affected will be sure to get a good syringing. If this is not done, with spring coming, the spider will get beyond control, much damage resulting. The same may be said of greenfly. Try to fumigate before syringing and then give the plants a good one. If there are any fly here and there, that are not quite dead the water will be sure to do what the nicotine left undone. This pest, too, if neglected now will increase so fast when the warmer and longer days come that it will be hard work to keep them down. Use plenty of pressure, but not so much as to tear the leaves all to pieces, and syringe as rapidly as possible, being careful to direct the stream so that most of the spent water will hit into the walks and not on the bench. This will accomplish a double purpose; first it will leave the bench much drier, second it will throw all insects into the walk where they are likely to perish instead of leaving them on the bench to crawl back on the plants as soon as they are able. For this reason it is necessary to get well under the bottom leaves, these being always the first to harbor both fly and spider. As soon as the syringing is done the plants should be well shaken, so that the plants may have a chance to dry before night comes. Do not neglect to use air slacked lime, especially in the Beauty houses. Fill the house up well with dust, blowing it under the plants and letting it rise among them slowly, taking moisture with it as it goes.

OUR COVER ILLUSTRATION.

For the inspiring picture which serves as our cover illustration this week we are indebted to C. W. Ward of Eureka, Cal. Mr. Ward writes:—

"Can you do this in Boston? Can you do it in England? Looks like the way we grew Begonia Gloire de Lorraine at Queens, doesn't it? Eureka Giant sweet peas are coming out some day as a distinct type. No Cupids at Eureka.

"If any florist believes azaleas will not bud up at Eureka, he only has to look at this hedge of Illuminator sweet peas. Ask William Sim or any English grower if he can beat it. They had been blooming three months when this picture was taken. These plants stand eighteen inches apart. Note the bloom from base to peak. All other plants bloom, berry and set seed with a profusion that I have seen in no other place where I have ever grown plants before."

CORRECTION.

Chas. E. F. Gersdorff calls our attention to some errors in the description of his new rose in our issue of Dec. 23, viz.: The description as given says "flowers generally borne singly though always in clusters of two to four" and "foliage very durable." The word always should be also, while the word foliage should be flowers.

heavy expense as compared with that of previous years. Yet we do not notice any material reduction in quality of the catalogues received thus far or any evidences of serious attempt to economize in any of the features through which these publications make their irresistible appeal to a winter-sick public and so effectively stir up the zest for spring time and growing things. We wish them all success.

Vicissitudes of the flower market

A peculiar condition prevails quite generally at present in some of the larger flower market cities, which, while not unprecedented, is fortunately not at all common. We refer to the overwhelming preference for the medium grades of roses and some other flowers as well, while the finer quality flowers—such as are admired in the exhibitions—are disposed of with difficulty. It may well be asked whether the ambition of so many growers for the market to produce roses of "special" and "extra" quality at this season of the year is justifiable from the standpoint of profit. The big long-stemmed roses that the grower is rightly so proud of must bring a price far beyond what the great mass of flower buyers are able or willing to pay. It certainly looks discouraging for the producer of such when, as has been the case of late, blooms of this class not infrequently lag in the hands of the wholesaler until by reason of their age, they must finally pass into the possession of the curbstone huckster at job-lot prices, whilst during the whole time an incessant clamor for the moderate-priced medium-stemmed grades is kept up, and a price paid for them when obtainable far in excess of that at which the long-kept large stock is finally moved.

In this vast country of ours it may be safely said that in and around the immediate neighborhood of the six or seven largest cities sufficient material is always within reach to make up a colossal and resplendent flower show provided its owners can be induced to bring it out. So, unquestionably, these widely separated communities might successfully carry through public exhibitions of large proportions and outstanding merit all simultaneously on the same dates. But there are many and obvious reasons why it is regrettable that big shows should be arranged for practically identical dates in Boston, New York, Philadelphia and St. Louis as appears to be the case, this spring. From the standpoint of the exhibitors as well as of those in the trade who like to follow up the shows closely and acquire a knowledge of whatever is new, progressive and creditable in all sections where their industry flourishes, it is a keen disappointment that adequate participation in possibly all of these important events is out of the question because of conflicting dates. Even with the help afforded by difference in latitude and other climatic factors it would be, perhaps, impracticable to assign exclusive dates to each locality but it does seem reasonable that joint consideration a sufficient time in advance might have evolved a way in which the big events referred to might have been segregated, in part at least, and a better opportunity afforded those who for one or the other reason would welcome the opportunity to be present at all or several. We take the liberty to suggest that "the powers that be" in the various show centres give early consideration to this problem which is sure to become more serious yet and see whether some improvement cannot be made in the future over the embarrassing conditions that have now come to pass.

Commendable We think that the seedsmen and others who issue annual catalogues at this time of the year are displaying remarkable enterprise and courage this season, considering the many uncertainties and seemingly almost insurmountable difficulties that threaten or do already exist. Aside from the all-important problems of obtaining their stock and of price advances, there is even the cost of the catalogues alone which with the enormously enhanced price of paper, colored inks and other material entering into their production, means a very

THE DIVINE FLOWER AND THE QUEEN OF FLOWERS.

Editor HORTICULTURE:

In your columns of Jan. 20, Mr. Goddard wrote a remarkable letter. Sam concluded that some one in a western paper had libelled the carnation. He ought to have given the western paper a chance to explain. We all know the West is noted for its wind, Sam got "het up," threw down his castor, dipped his pen in blood, and with his back to a rock said like the warrior of old "Come on MacDuff," bowed gracefully to the Queen of Flowers, dragged off her crown and mantle, then sailed in to slaughter the poor innocent creature, "all for what?" Because of the western breezes! It is not the first time Carnation's champions have tried to kill or maim the poor Queen but have gloriously failed. Why Sam should assail her for so little provocation, I don't know. About the keeping qualities of roses last March I shipped by parcel post to a friend of mine in Minnesota a box of roses. After they had traveled that distance and been in his home a week he wrote saying they were in perfectly fresh condition then and they were enjoying them. The only real difference was they were grown right, packed right, and arrived in perfect shape after the long journey.

The Framingham carnations and the Natick roses I know, and it is not fair to take the Framingham carnations and put them up against a half grown rose even if it has the required length of stem to put it in the $4 class. Good judgment, good tact and less knocking one another's staples would bring more harmony and closer associations into the daily lives of the craft, and raise the plane of better brotherhood and contented craftsmen than the present cut-throat ideas that seem to muddle our paths and prevent better understanding than at present occurs.

Natick, Mass. R. T. MCGORUM.

THE "WHY" OF THE CARNATION.

Editor HORTICULTURE:

Mr. Goddard was right in his communication in HORTICULTURE last week. Too many poor carnation blooms are put out; they cheapen the carnation in the eyes of the public. New England florist stores depend more upon the carnation than upon any other flower. The market price of carnations is entirely too low for the cost of production. Selling prices are so low as to even make them lose prestige in the buyer's mind sometimes. Other flowers are pushed in the stores because of bigger profits. Out-of-date sorts are still grown, and in many stores the salesmen are not acquainted with varieties. They simply think white, yellow or pink without regard to name.

Biddeford, Me. C. S. STROUT.

A CORRECTION.

Secretary J. G. Esler of the Florists' Hail Association calls my attention to a typographical error, which appears in the suggestions to State Vice-Presidents sent out from this office a few days ago. The paragraph reads that the Florists' Hail Association now underwrites risks on 4,000,000 square feet of glass. This should read 44,000,000 square feet of glass.

Obituary

George Schneider.

On the above date at his residence at Barnes, London, End., died George Schneider, president of the French Horticultural Society of London. The deceased was for many years in the employment of Messrs. J. Veitch & Sons of Chelsea. He was a member of many Continental Horticultural Societies and a member of the jury in the great Horticultural Exhibitions. He fought in the Franco-German war of 1870-71. He was 68 years of age.

C. HARMAN PAYNE.

C. O. Fischer.

Carl Otto Fischer passed away on January 19 at Hartford, Conn., and was laid to rest in Woodlawn Cemetery, New York, on January 23. Mr. Fischer was for twenty-two years gardener for the Cheney brothers at South Manchester, Conn., and was highly esteemed by his employers and all who knew him. He retired from activity seven years ago. His age was 65 years. The funeral services were attended by many of the prominent residents of South Manchester.

Samuel Batchelor.

Word was received in Philadelphia on January 22nd of the death of Samuel Batchelor. He has of late been located near New York but is better known as a prize winning exhibitor around Philadelphia during the past dozen years. He was the grower for the Newbold estate near Jenkintown, and made some fine contributions for the advancement of horticulture. He was a nephew of William Plumb and had his early training in England. Interment at the Odd Fellows' cemetery, near Jenkintown.

Swain Nelson.

Chicago has just lost one of her citizens whose work has given pleasure to millions of people and will continue to do so as long as the city shall exist. Swain Nelson, designer of many parks, passed away at the home of his son in Glen View, Ill., Jan. 18th, at the age of 89 years. He was born and reared in Sweden, coming to Chicago just in time to be active in the development of her parks, and his plans for Lincoln Park—the people's park as it is commonly called—were adopted by the Chicago council in 1865. He assisted in carrying out these plans and also in designing Garfield, Douglas, Union and Humboldt Parks, besides Graceland Cemetery. After this work was nearly completed he moved from Chicago to Glen View where he could enjoy nature's beauty more fully and established his well known nurseries, with a city office and with city greenhouses. For several years the business has been managed by the sons, Seymour G. and Alvin E. Nelson. There are three daughters, Mrs. A. L. Gyllenhall and the Misses Emelia and Adah, who are also connected with the business. The funeral was held Jan. 21st in the Immanuel Church of New Jerusalem, Glen View, which he helped to found.

FEDERAL HORTICULTURAL BOARD ASKS FOR ENLARGED POWERS

A number of seed and nurserymen last week visited Washington and with William F. Gude, representative of the S. A. F. & O. H., held conferences with officials of the Senate Committee on Agriculture and Forestry and members of the Federal Horticultural Board, on the question of the quarantine of nursery stock. The Federal Horticultural Board, for some time past, has been endeavoring to secure the enlargement of their powers, whereby they could declare a quarantine on nursery and other stock in a broader way. The board seeks to secure for the Secretary of Agriculture the right to determine "that such quarantine is necessary to prevent the spread of" a dangerous plant disease or insect infestation and to quarantine in addition to these things now mentioned in Section 8 of the plant quarantine law "any class of stone or quarry products, or any other article of any character whatsoever, capable of carrying any dangerous plant disease or insect infestation." It would be the duty of the Secretary of Agriculture to promulgate rules and regulations permitting and governing the inspection, disinfection, and method and manner of delivery and shipment, of such commodities specified in the quarantine order, "when the public interests will permit." In each case the quoted words are those which the Board wishes to have incorporated in the present law.

MASSACHUSETTS AGRICULTURAL COLLEGE.

Last week end Professor A. H. Nehrling made a business trip to Indianapolis, Indiana.

Professor F. A. Waugh, head of the Division of Horticulture is to lecture on "Gardens" at Ames, Iowa, January 31st.

Next Thursday evening Aubrey Butler of Northampton will address the club on the subject of "Retail Store Management."

Last Thursday evening E. J. Canning of Northampton addressed the M. A. C. Florists' and Gardeners' Club on the subject "The Nursery Business and its Relation to Floriculture."

The Annual Boston Inspection Trip of the students in Floriculture will take place February 15, 16 and 17. It is planned to visit as many as possible of the larger retail establishments and greenhouse ranges of Greater Boston.

The American Society of Landscape Architects announces the election of Charles William Eliot, president emeritus of Harvard University, to honorary membership. The election comes as a show of appreciation for what President Eliot has done for the profession of landscape architecture.

CLUBS AND SOCIETIES

GARDENERS' AND FLORISTS' CLUB OF BOSTON.

The "field day" among the Framingham growers, originally scheduled for an earlier date but postponed on account of storm, took place on Saturday, January 20, with an attendance of sixty. S. J. Goddard's place was first visited and the beautiful spectacle presented by the carnation houses of this successful grower was much enjoyed. We have already described this place at some length in a recent issue. The establishment of Wm. R. Nicholson was next on the list. Here everything was found in the pink of condition, old Harry Fenn looking as in by-gone days, Matchless exceptionally good and Pink Delight producing in usual abundance. Much admiring surprise was caused by a batch of white carnations—products of the late Albert Roper—loaded with fine blooms. Belle Washburn showed up in good condition but it was the consensus of opinion that it will never displace Beacon as a producer. Benora, Peerless Pink and Mrs. Ward were other varieties of outstanding quality here. In miscellaneous stock, quantities of gypsophila started in flats for spring blooming were in evidence, also yellow marguerites are a paying specialty here.

After an enjoyable half-hour here the party journeyed to J. A. Nelson & Son's establishment, where everyone was amazed at the wonderful healthy and clean condition of plants and establishment. Beacon, Matchless, Mrs. Ward, Peerless Pink, White Enchantress and Pink Delight are in unrivalled vigor. About 60,000 carnation plants are housed and sweet peas are grown upon the roof supports and are extremely good.

From here the party took car to J. T. Butterworth's orchid establishment, where "Tom" conducted the party through and amongst his pots. Several extremely fine and rare hybrids were in bloom, which captivated the visitors by their beauty of coloring. After a very enjoyable half hour here with a light collation provided by Mr. Butterworth, President Methven on behalf of the club thanked the proprietors of the various establishments visited for their courteous treatment. Responses were made by S. J. Goddard, and J. T. Butterworth. John Stalford of Bar Harbor, Me., also made a few well chosen remarks, saying he had visited New York and Philadelphia in the last week but had not seen the equal of the carnations he had seen that day in Framingham, and declared he thought he had seen the best carnations in the world this day. The party returned in special car at 5.30 P. M.

The annual banquet of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club of Boston will be held at Horticultural Hall on Wednesday evening, February 7, 1917.

The Banquet Committee has decided to print a neat souvenir booklet, in place of the ordinary menu card, on this, the 30th anniversary of the Club's existence. The booklet will measure

SEWICKLEY HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY.

At the regular meeting of this Society on Jan. 9th Vice-Pres. R. Boxell presided and Jas. Scott of Elmsford, N. Y., installed the office-bearers for 1917 as follows: John Barnett, president; A. E. Bonsey, vice-president; John Carman, secretary; W. Thompson, Jr., treasurer; executive committee, Alex Davidson, chairman, R. Boxell, W. Thomson, Sr., C. Patton and W. Gillies.

It was resolved to hold a Show during September, date and arrangements of same to be decided later. Mr. Scott showed his generosity by donating $10.00 to the show fund.

As lecturer for the evening Mr. Scott dealt with Horticulture as a Profession, enlarging on its possibilities, and the elevating effect it had upon those engaged in the work. Referring to the necessity of theoretical knowledge, he emphasized the importance of the study of chemistry and botany.

Several members of the Western Pennsylvania Society were present. H. Frishkorn of Beckert's Seed Store, Pittsburgh, made a few remarks, assuring the members that the trade would always be interested in the Society.

The following named members brought exhibits: John Barnett, basket of tomato, "Carter's Sunrise"; M. Curran, Moschosma riparii and a fine spray of Buddleia asiatica and well-grown Primula malacoides; William Thomson, Jr., Primula obconica and Primula malacoides fl. pl.; M. Reig showed fine spikes of Moschosma riparii and a plant of Eranthemum pulchellum.

National Flower Show, St. Louis, Mo., April 5th to 16th, 1918.

Under the direction of Chairman George Asmus of the National Flower Show Committee, the work of the Fifth National Flower Show is well advanced. Floor plans of the Coliseum are being prepared, showing the location of the trade exhibits, and same will be sent out at an early date. The first preliminary plant schedule has been distributed, and extra copies may be procured upon application to the Secretary at No. 53 West 28th street, New York. The Schedule Committee will be pleased to receive suggestions as to how and where this schedule may be improved, and such suggestions and recommendations will be acted upon by the Schedule Committee at their next meeting, and included in the final schedule, if approved.

The Guarantee Fund which is to be $10,000.00 will soon be completed. Any member desiring to subscribe to this fund should do so at once. The Committee would also esteem donations of special prizes, the same to be offered under the names of the donors. Kindly, if possible, select the subject for your award from the preliminary schedules, thus relieving our obligations to the prize fund to that extent.

Special prizes have been received from the Cottage Gardens Nurseries Co., of Eureka, Humboldt Co., Cal. for the best display of American-grown Azalea indica. Plants must have been growing at least three years in the United States. Collection must consist of not less than six plants, five plants of each variety. First prize—cash $50; Second prize—$30; Third prize—$20.

John Lewis Childs, Flowerfield, L. I., offers for Calla Elliottiana, 25 plants in bloom: First prize—$20; Second $12, 12 plants in bloom: First prize—$10; Second—$6.

HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY OF WESTERN PENNSYLVANIA.

This society held its regular meeting at the Carnegie Library, East Liberty, and the following named officers were elected for 1917. David Fraser, president; William Allen, vice-president; Ernest R. Bolton, secretary and treasurer. The prize offered for the best cyclamen plant was won by Neil Forsythe. Thos. Tyler was awarded a certificate of culture for his exhibit in this class, also Mr. Jones of Sewickley. There were good plants of Primula obconica by A. A. Leach and by Mr. Thompson of Sewickley, also a pan of La Innocense hyacinths from Mr. Fraser. Mr. Murphy showed some good sweet peas. The exhibits for the next meeting are to be of carnations and seasonable flowers, so if the trade has anything good in that line send them along. Our meeting is the third Tuesday in every month.

ERNEST R. BOLTON, Secy.

AMERICAN CARNATION SOCIETY.

The annual meeting and exhibition of this society takes place at the Claypool Hotel, Indianapolis, next week Wednesday and Thursday, Jan. 31-Feb. 1. As this is one of the great centers of carnation growing, and is accessible from Chicago, Cleveland, St. Louis and other populous centers, and as good delegations are expected from the East, it looks like being a record meeting. It is the twenty-sixth annual show of the society.

The Boston party will leave Boston at 2 P. M. on Monday, the 29th, while it has been arranged that the New York party leave Grand Central Terminal, 42nd St., at 4.50 P. M. the same day. As this is McKinley's Day, suggestion is made that all delegates should wear a red carnation as a badge.

The fare from New York to Indianapolis is $21.15; lower berths, $5; upper berths, $4. Provision will be made for the shipment of flowers, and reservations from New York can be made up to Monday mid-day by writing Louis Haffner, Broadway and 30th St., care New York Central R. R. The transportation committee of the New York Florists' Club comprises J. Harrison Dick, chairman, A. J. Guttman and W. E. Maynard, each of whom will be glad to assist any of the delegates if further information is required.

Cleveland expects to be well represented. Small announcement cards giving details of the trip have been circulated through the wholesale houses and mailed to all the private gardeners in the Cleveland section. The special rate of $6.50 each way has been secured. The sleeper rate is $2.00 for lower and $1.60 for upper berth. A special car will be attached to the regular Big Four train leaving Cleveland at midnight Jan. 30th. M. A. Vinson, who is in charge of organizing the Cleveland party, thinks that two sleepers will be needed, judging by the interest shown and the questions asked in regard to the details of the trip.

The return trip will be made through Richmond, Ind., where the big plant of the E. G. Hill Co. will be inspected. Those who desire to accompany the Cleveland party should notify M. A. Vinson, 402 Leader Bldg., or leave word with any one of the five Cleveland wholesale houses.

At the annual meeting the Cleveland delegation will extend an invitation to the American Carnation Society to hold a fall meeting together with a fall show in Cleveland, as part of the Cleveland Flower Show, Nov. 6th to 11th, 1917.

An invitation has been extended to visit the new greenhouses of the Cleveland Cut Flower Company, located at Newton Falls, Ohio, on Thursday, January 25th.

LENOX HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY

At the regular monthly meeting of the Lenox Horticultural Society held Jan. 10th it was arranged to hold the annual ball on Feb. 9th. A. J. Lovell brought a very fine specimen Cypripedium Adela of his own raising, and for which he was awarded a certificate of merit. Thomas Page of Great Barrington sent a collection of very fine blooms of Cypripediums, including some very rare varieties, for which he was awarded a diploma.

The schedule committee for 1917 were appointed. The exhibitions for this year will be held in the town hall, Lenox, on July 10 and 11, and on October 24 and 25. The Society has procured a supply of silver and bronze medals to be awarded for exhibits of special merit. John J. Erwin's (Inspector for the State Board of Agriculture) report of our last Fall Show was read. Ed. Jenkins read a paper entitled "The Gardener and His Profession," by W. N. Craig.

HARRY HEEREMANS, Secy.

WESTCHESTER AND FAIRFIELD HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY.

The monthly meeting of this Society was held in Greenwich, Conn., Jan. 12.

Mr. Stuart ably installed the new office holders for 1917. Mr. Whitton the newly elected president then took charge of the meeting. There was one of the finest displays of flowers and pot plants ever seen at any of our meetings. Cultural certificates were given to Wm. Graham for Carnations Good Cheer and Pin Sensation; Wm. Whitton for White Killarney roses, also for six Primula malacoides in ten-inch pots, making quite an exhibit in themselves; James Stuart, Calanthe Veitchii, which showed up fine mixed with Buddleia asiatica; John Forbes for a very fine vase of Laelia anceps. Robt Grunart was highly commended for five vases of sweet peas, also for Matchless carnations and John Harper for a new seedling carnation. The thanks of the society was awarded to John Andrew for Begonia Cincinnati, Wm. Graham for cauliflower, Robt Grunart for carnations and P. W. Popp for freesias. It was decided to hold a smoker instead of the annual concert and dance, after the business of the February meeting is finished.

Mr. Lealey read a very interesting essay on "How to Grow Bush and Standard Chrysanthemums," which was enjoyed very much. The Society meets the second Friday of every month in Hubbard's Hall, Greenwich, Conn.

A. G. CLARKSON, Cor. Sec.

HOLYOKE AND NORTHAMPTON FLORISTS' AND GARDENERS' CLUB.

At the regular meeting, Jan. 9th, there was a good attendance, presided over by George Strugnell, newly elected president. Committees were appointed to look up lapsed members and revise the by-laws of the club. G. H. Sinclair spoke entertainingly of an auto trip he made through New York State last Fall, making special mention of the parks of several cities and the noted nurseries of Rochester. Carnation exhibits were made by F. D. Keyes & Son, who showed a pleasing rose pink sport of Enchantress, and by G. H. Sinclair & Son, who showed a promising seedling, the result of a cross between Harry Fenn and Princess Dagmar. Butler & Ullman showed Sweet Pea Yarrowa and Rainbow freesias of excellent quality. Coleus thyrsoides and Erlangia tormentosa were shown from Smith College Botanic Garden. H. E. D.

MASSACHUSETTS HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY.

At the annual meeting of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society, Saturday, January 13, President Richard M. Saltonstall reviewed the work of the past year, which has been very successful. He called attention to the special flower show that will be given on the grounds of the Wentworth Institute in June, at which there will be large displays of rhododendrons, azaleas, orchids and other flowering plants. There will be a rock garden, a rose garden, a water garden and other features. The exhibition will be under the direction of Thomas Allen, chairman of the Boston Art Commission; Prof. Charles S. Sargent of the Arnold Arboretum and Walter Hunnewell of Wellesley.

Wm. P. Rich has been reappointed secretary and librarian, and Walter Hunnewell, treasurer. Mr. Rich, in his report as librarian, stated that the new catalogue of horticulture is now being printed and a considerable portion of it is already in type. An important feature is the collection of horticultural trade catalogues, which now number 9,740. This collection is of much horticultural value, said Mr. Rich, in determining the origin and date of introduction of many of our popular garden fruits, flowers and vegetables. "The library seems to be more and more appreciated, as is evidenced by the use made of it, specialists from various sections of the country coming to consult it on interesting subjects of horticulture. There are 20,000 books on horticulture and it is claimed that this library is the largest of its kind in the world."

TENNESSEE STATE FLORISTS' ASSOCIATION.

The twelfth annual convention of the Tennessee State Florists' Association, Tennessee State Horticultural Society, Tennessee State Nurserymen's Association and Tennessee Beekeepers' Association will be held on January 30, 31, February 1, 2, 1917, at Nashville. Special round trip tickets will be available for that week. The Florists' Association will meet on Tuesday, January 30. The morning session will be devoted to routine matters, reports, etc. The program for the afternoon at 2 o'clock is as follows:

A Trip to Strasburg, Pa.

Jan. 18th was one of the few ideal days we have had out of the last sixty or seventy and it found fifteen ideal members of this club ready for the 2 o'clock car on a trip to Strasburg. The first stop was at Amos Rohrer's, whose carnations, mostly standard varieties, were uniformly good. He is trying out Theo, and while the plants look good and healthy, it is not fully satisfactory as a commercial variety, some of them coming off color. Alice Coombs does not measure up to the standard Mr. Rohrer has set for a good carnation. It gives exhibition flowers but not enough of them.

Chas. B. Herr's was next on the list. It is a carnation plant pure and simple. Of course not every variety meets Mr. Herr's requirements, and Dagmar, Alice and Alice Coombs are not being propagated for next year's stock. Pink Delight is being bought to take the place of Alice, and Dagmar and Alice Coombs are looking for a successor as yet unfound. Beacon is beginning to split a bit but will be seen as good as the best in spite of this, for it is either at home in this soil or is better understood than with most growers. Matchless and Supreme are favorites here as they are throughout almost the entire county.

The regular meeting was called at 7.30 P. M. and the following officers elected for 1917: President, Harry A. Schroyer; vice-president, Willis B. Girvin; secretary, Frank L. Kohr; treasurer, Harry K. Rohrer.

The following committees were appointed for the year: Programme—Rudolph Nagel, Chas. B. Herr, Albert M. Herr; visiting—W. B. Girvin, Lemon Landis, Ira Landis; automobile—Chas. M. Weaver, A. K. Rohrer, C. S. Loeffler; exhibition—B. F. Barr, M. J. Brinton, J. DeBarry Heinitsch; sports—David Rose, A. F. Strickler, Charles Tucker.

The paper of the evening was by Elmer Weaver on the Newer Carnations, and he did not hesitate to say what he thought of the new carnations and their introducers from the buyer's point of view. It was not all derogatory, neither was it flattering to most of the introductions of the past few years. He mentioned one grower who had White Perfection better by fifty per cent. than any white of recent introduction and who obtains this result by the careful selection of the cuttings. He also maintained that if this were followed up with other varieties the novelty introducer would have to produce something of real merit before he could get a hearing. Mr. Weaver also scored the man who would send out a carnation that the commission dealers all condemn the second season as unworthy of growing on account of its keeping qualities. He claims this could be overcome by having the American Carnation Society test novelties out as to their possibilities along shipping lines and, if found unworthy, to withhold a certificate. In speaking of the newer sorts he mentioned one place where Aviator was far ahead of all other reds in point of production, and considered it one of the few good ones introduced last season. He also spoke strongly about the lack of publicity given to the faults of the new carnations and wound up by acknowledging that success or failure is often up to the man who grows the variety or to the local conditions of soil and houses. The paper was really an expression in public of what almost nine out of every ten growers have to say in private about the carnation industry and its shortcomings, and the writer was given a unanimous vote of thanks for it.

In the discussion that followed, Miss Theo was pronounced a good producer but rather small and too many off-colored flowers. Alice had the same fault without the redeeming feature of being beyond the normal in production, although one grower who keeps accurate accounts reported having cut seven flowers per plant from Alice up to this time. Belle Washburn was considered a very fine one but shy in point of bloom, one grower reporting Aviator as ten times as productive, but not quite as good a flower.

Stephen A. Kost of the Wm. F. Kastling Co., Buffalo, N. Y., was a visitor and made some remarks on carnations and some things he had picked up in regard to the fertilizers they need.

T. J. Nolan was looking up the construction of the new houses he sold the B. F. Barr Co. Both gentlemen were along on the visiting trip. Walter Davis of The S. S. Pennock-Meehan Co., Phila., made some fitting remarks on the flowers they had on exhibition and was given a vote of thanks with prospects of future orders for the fine exhibition he set up, as follows:

Carnations—Suberbe from the J. D. Thompson Co., Joliet, Ill.; Rosalia from F. Dorner & Son Co., Lafayette, Ind.; Cornell by Ira D. Marvin of Williamsport, Pa.; Miss Theo and Belle Washburn by W. & H. F. Evans of Phila.; Doris by S. J. Goddard, Framingham, Mass.

Roses—Primrose by South Park Floral Co.; Rosalie and Donald MacDonald by Robt. Scott & Son, Sharon Hill; Little Gem by Edward Towill.

Carnations Crystal White, Cottage Maid and Merry Christmas were promised but failed to materialize. Merry Christmas came Friday afternoon and was shown to as many of the growers as could be reached. This variety seems to have a hard time of it around Lancaster but is being tested out along the lines of Elmer Weaver's paper, and there have been quite a few orders placed for it because it shows up so well under difficulties. Doris has also been unfortunate in its visits to Lancaster, but in spite of this has created some sensation on account of its delicious fragrance, a point lacking in so many of the recent introductions.

Preparations are under way to make the next meeting a sweet pea symposium. The date is Feb. 15th.

ALBERT M. HERR.

TARRYTOWN HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY.

The regular weekly meeting of the Tarrytown, N. Y., Horticultural Society was held on January 14. This being carnation night a fine display of cut blooms, all the best varieties of recent introduction was exhibited. First prize, for three varieties, 6 of each, was awarded to Wm. Weeks and second to J. Strutheway. The thanks of the society was tendered to other exhibitors. A fine seedling specimen of adiantum was shown by George McIntosh which received a certificate of merit. An interesting discussion on the cultivation of carnations followed the judging and many valuable points were brought out. For February meeting the exhibits will be: Flowering plant in pots not to exceed seven inches, and 12 cut roses, 6 of each, two varieties other than American Beauties.

JOHN GRANT, Cor. Secy.

At the annual meeting of the Massachusetts Nurserymen's Association held in Boston on January 2nd the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, E. W. Breed, Clinton; vice-president, John Kirkegaard, Bedford; secretary-treasurer, W. H. Thurlow, West Newbury; executive committee, the above officers with G. Howard Frost, James Brandley and Sidney Littlefield.

During Recess

Nassau County Horticultural Society.

The eleventh annual dinner of this well-known and useful organization took place at Glen Cove, New York, on Tuesday evening, January 23, and notwithstanding the unfortunate fact that the Morris County Horticultural Society away over on the other side of New York was also jollifying on the same night, there were seventy-five guests at the tables so bountifully supplied at the "old reliable" Oriental Hotel where so many delightful symposiums have been enjoyed. The new president, James McCarthy, opened the postprandial exercises with a brief but very appropriate introduction. The first act was the presentation to the retiring president, Mr. McDonald, of a fine scarf-pin, which drew from the recipient an appreciative response.

Wm. J. Stewart, editor of HORTICULTURE, Boston, was then presented as toastmaster and the feast of oratory and song and merriment was turned loose until 10.30 P. M., when "Auld Lang Syne" was sung with fervent handclasp and cordial good wishes for the prosperity of the Nassau County Horticultural Society for the coming year.

Speeches were brief and to the point, the stories full of wit and the songs without exception well rendered. Ex-President John F. Johnstone responded to the toast for the Nassau County Horticultural Society; Alex. Guttman, of the New York Florists' Club, for the Sister Societies, Rev. J. W. Gammack for Glen Cove Village; James H. Cocks for Our Country; W. A. Sperling, for the Seed Trade; W. E. Maynard for the Nursery Trade; Dr. Connolly for Hygienics; Edward Manda for New Jersey; Andrew Kennedy for Modesty; Wm. McCullum for the Builders; Robert Johnson for Boston; Walter Barnwell for Preparedness; Wm. Young for Contentment; Mr. Lewis for the Tree Movers; David Dean for the Young Fellow, and Treasurer Ernest Brown for the Fat Bank Book.

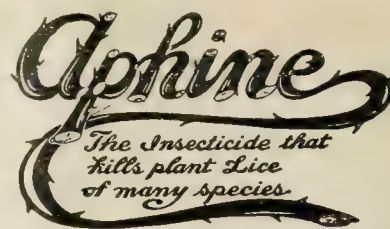

Alternating between the speeches were songs and recitations acceptably rendered by Wm. Ferguson, Thomas Twigg, Andrew Wilson, W. J. Collins, Robert Jones and Richard French. The tables were well supplied with flowers. Especially interesting was a vase of the new carnation, Olive Whitman, contributed by Alex. Guttman.

Thorburn & Co. were represented by R. F. French. R. & J. Farquhar & Co., by Robert Johnson; A. T. Boddington by David Dean; Stump & Walter Co. by W. A. Sperling; Carter's Tested Seeds by W. A. Collins; Weeber & Don by A. Lee Don; Burnett Bros, by Walter Barnwell; all of which goes to show the high esteem in which the seed trade holds the gardeners of Nassau County.

Tarrytown Horticultural Society.

The eighteenth annual dinner of the Tarrytown, N. Y., Horticultural Society was held in the Florence Inn, Jan. 16, and it proved to be the most enjoyable affair held under the auspices of this live and vigorous society.

The long dining room looked like a flower garden; never before have the decorations been so elaborate. Another feature that added to the pleasure of the evening was the starting of the dinner promptly at 7.30 o'clock. Starting the dinner earlier gave more time for speechmaking and the

Glimpse in a Garden at Lenox, Mass.

Make It Possible For Your Customers To Duplicate The Charms of The Gardens of Lenox

VISITORS to the famous Gardens at Lenox, Glen Cove, Tuxedo Park and like places, almost invariably come away filled with wonderment at their charm, and wistfully wishing that they might duplicate those charms in their own gardens.

Just as the florists of Lenox, Glen Cove, Tuxedo Park and similar places, made possible those charms, by supplying their customers with the choice good things in Sutton's catalog; just so can you make it possible for your customers to duplicate those charms.

You will find it profitable business. Business that will give you an entering wedge with a number of people you have found it hard to reach before.

In Sutton's Catalog you will find certain things that only Sutton has.

Send 35c. for 1917 Catalog, which price will be credited to you when your orders amount to $5.00 or more.

speeches delivered have never been equalled in Tarrytown villages.

After Rev. Lucas Boeve had asked the blessing President Bradley in a witty speech turned the gavel over to James T. Lawrie, for years treasurer of the Society, and Mr. Lawrie made a most excellent presiding officer.

The dinner was well and generously served. There was a plenty of everything and everything was of the best. So promptly were the seventy members and guests served that Toastmaster Lawrie was able to start the oratorical program shortly after nine o'clock. F. R. Pierson, village president, was the first speaker and received a warm welcome. He was followed by Judge Young, E. E. Carman in songs, Rev. J. J. Henry, District Attorney Davis, Chas. H. Tibbetts, J. Austin Shaw with a poem, Supervisor J. J. Sinnott, Rev. C. A. Ashmead, Supervisor Millard in stories, Rev. Lucas Boeve and Wallace Odell. "Auld Lang Syne" closed the festivities.

Morris County Horticultural Society.

Being unable thus far to be present in two places several miles apart at the same time, all we are able to say about the dinner at Morristown, N. J., last Tuesday night is that it was the same old Morris County dinner—a big hilarious success, only more so. Were you ever there? Yes? Then imagine. But next week we'll tell you more.

An invitation has been extended the Cleveland Florists' Club to visit the new greenhouses of the Cleveland Cut Flower Company, located at Newton Falls, Ohio, on Thursday, January 25th.

AMERICAN SWEET PEA SOCIETY.

A meeting of the executive committee of this society was held at the Hotel Breslin, N. Y., on Thursday, Jan. 18, there being present Geo. W. Kerr, president, Wm. Gray, W. A. Sperling and J. Harrison Dick. A letter was read from Harry A. Bunyard, who has been secretary of the society from its inception, tendering his resignation of that office; after discussion, this was accepted with regret. Wm. Gray, Bellevue Rd., Newport, R. I., was appointed secretary to carry on the work until the annual meeting in July. As this left a vacancy on the executive committee, J. H. Stalford, Bar Harbor, Me., was nominated. The schedule and bulletin were discussed, and these will be issued as one publication by March 1 at latest. Other matters for the furtherance of the objects and membership of the society were discussed.

CLUB AND SOCIETY NOTES.

The New York and New Jersey Association of Plant Growers' tenth annual dinner will be held in the Green Room of the Hotel McAlpin, New York, on Saturday evening, Feb. 17, at seven o'clock. The tickets will be Five Dollars per person. Tables of eight, or more, will be arranged so that those wishing to dance between courses can do so without disturbing others. William H. Siebrecht, Jr., is in charge of the dinner.

Prof. Harlan H. York of Brown University was re-elected President of the Rhode Island Horticultural Society at the 72nd annual meeting on Jan. 17. The sum of $600 was received from the Ladies' Auxiliary of the society to be invested in a permanent fund, the interest to be used in encouraging boys and girls in horticulture. The fund will be known as the "Children's Prize Fund." Other officers of the society were chosen as follows:

First vice-president, M. M. Burdick; second vice-president, Prof. J. E. Hill; secretary, Ernest K. Thomas; treasurer, Harold L. Madison; exhibition committee, E. A. Appleton, Joshua Voss, Arthur Sellow, C. G. Hartstra and J. A. Carpenter.

TOMATO SEED FOR YOUR 1917 CROP

You will get an enormous crop of Tomatoes from Bolgiano's Tomato Seeds this year. Our Seed was saved from one of the largest crops we have ever had, due to being favored by weather conditions. The vines were loaded with Large, Solid, Red Fruit. We know positively by planting Seed from this "Big Crop" your yield will be much larger than if you had bought seed grown where the weather conditions were not favorable.

August Jurgens is home from the hospital but has not ventured down to the market yet. He is one of the large growers of spring flowers for this market.

News of the death of Swain Nelson was learned with regret here where he made an enviable reputation in landscape work. His obituary appears in another column.

M. B. Larson and family are here to attend the wedding of a daughter which will take place very soon. Miss Larson has been associated with her parents in conducting the store in Racine, Wis.

Pots and pans of spring flowers are now ready in considerable quantity. These are from bulbs grown in southern France, which are always earlier than those from Holland. Azaleas, too late for Christmas, are coming in very conveniently now for there are few other blooming plants to be had.

The American Bulb Co., just closing its first season, is much pleased with the business shown by the books. All the traveling men are on the road now, working for the orders which will make next season's sales even more satisfactory. Among the new arrivals is a car of gladiolus bulbs. Their orders for the new rose sport, Pink Ophelia, are showing the growers liked the sample blooms shown here. It looks now as if the only safe way is to order early to assure getting stock, for the success of Ophelia is practically a guarantee of what its sport Rose Pink will become.

Fred Schramm of Park Ridge, Ill., is a daily visitor to Chicago, for he is now serving his third term as juror. Mr. Schramm, who devotes his 35,000 sq. ft. of glass to growing carnations, confines his stock to seven varieties—for pink, Enchantress and Mrs. Ward; for red, Victory, Beacon and Champion; for white, White Enchantress and White Perfection. Next year Matchless will take the place of White Perfection on account of splitting. Mr. Schramm, in answer to a question, said he did not think that the carnation enjoys the popularity that it did ten or fifteen years ago, and suggests the large number of spring flowers now grown and the popularity of the little baskets of artificial flowers as among the probable causes.

ST. LOUIS.

The Retail Association met on Monday, Jan. 15.

The late Mrs. M. M. Ayres left several thousand dollars to the Children's Hospital.

Willie Dee, manager of the plant and seed department at C. Young & Sons, is again at his duties, having recovered from a severe attack of pneumonia.

WASHINGTON, D. C.

George W. Hess, superintendent of the U. S. Botanical Garden, has been named as a member of the Committee on Illumination for the Inaugural.

A collection of tropical and subtropical plants and fruits is to be made for the Department of Agriculture by W. E. Safford, who has just left this city for a ten weeks' stay in Florida for that purpose. A series of investigations with Dutch bulbs is to be carried on by Dr. David Griffiths, who has just left for a trip through Virginia, North and South Carolina, Georgia and Florida.

Floral Offering for Admiral Dewey's Funeral.

The funeral of the late Admiral Dewey brought a considerable amount of business to the florists of this city. J. H. Small & Sons alone had 42 pieces, and in all there were seven truck loads of flowers sent to the tomb in Arlington Cemetery. One piece furnished by J. H. Small & Sons, which eclipsed anything else furnished for this occasion, was a fourteen-foot standing wreath of American Beauty roses, lilies, cattleyas and lily of the valley. Gude Bros. Company came in for a considerable share of this business, for they furnished nearly a score of wreaths and clusters, each more or less imposing in their makeup. Fred H. Kramer, George H. Cooke, Z. D. Blackstone, the Washington Floral Company, the DuPont Floral Co., Marche & Co., and others, each furnished a number of designs.

BOSTON.

The New England party bound for the carnation meeting at Indianapolis will be of fair size as it now appears. They will leave Boston on Monday, January 29, at 2 P. M.

Penn the Florist has leased a store on Hamilton Place, two doors from the Tremont street store, for ten years, which will be used as a display room for garden furniture and accessories.

William N. Craig, superintendent of Faulkner Farm in Brookline, spoke before the Massachusetts Horticultural Society in Horticultural Hall, last Saturday on "Seeds, How to Prepare Them and How to Plant Them."

A brisk blaze raged for about 30 minutes in E. D. Kaulback's Malden store last week, causing much excitement and a small loss. The origin of the fire could not be ascertained. Mr. Kaulback did not find it necessary to shut down, and repairs are now being made.

PHILADELPHIA.

A meeting of the local committees of the American Rose Society was held at the Bellevue-Stratford on January 18th, President Pennock in the chair. There was a good attendance of the members and all reported satisfactory progress in their various departments. The big Rose Festival that takes place in March is in excellent shape so far, and everybody seems full of enthusiasm—which is as it should be—the absolutely necessary ingredient to make the show a big success.

Another live wire has been added to the outfit of the Philadelphia Wholesale Florists' Exchange in the person of George Cook, for many years one of the leading salesmen for the Pennock-Meehan Co. The Exchange is headed by W. A. Leonard, one of Philadelphia's leading rose growers, and his right bower is J. Deutscher, one of the brightest hustlers on the selling end. Since the new organization was formed one year ago, business has rapidly increased and bids fair to be a big success.

PITTSBURGH.

Julius W. Ludwig is convalescing from a severe attack of influenza.

Otto Oberg, a former Wisconsin man has been added to the Randolph & McClements store force.

"Smith's Floral Magazine" is the most recent innovation of the A. W. Smith Co., and is published monthly.

David Hill, who has an attractive little shop on downtown Fifth avenue, has just opened a similar enterprise at 6117 Penn avenue, East Liberty.

The Zieger Company has re-opened its branch store on North Highland Ave., East End, Miss Martha Myers and Charles F. Manke comprising the sales force.

Edward E. Ludwig, during his seven weeks sojourn at Ithaca, will take up some post-graduate work in the Agricultural Department in which he was a member of last year's graduating class.

After a five months' absence from the city Norbert Huttinger, formerly a designer for Mrs. E. A. Williams, has returned and located in the East End with G. P. Weaklin & Co. While away Mr. Huttinger was in Martinsburg, W. Va., in a new shop opened by Mrs. P. J. Phillips, and in Cleveland, Ohio, as an employee of Jones & Russell.

NEW YORK.

At M. C. Ford's we were shown some flowers of a very pretty sport of the little Old Gold rose, which originated with Myers & Samtman. The color is uniform deep orange, and buds and foliage have a waxy finish which is simply charming. There should be a ready welcome for it among the retail trade.

The new "house committee" of the N. Y. Florists' Club with Phil Kessler again serving as chairman, will inaugurate itself at the February 12 meeting in a manner which will put all past performances in the shade. H. Brown of Richmond, Va., has provided two Virginia hams—but that is only one item.

VALENTINE'S DAY PUBLICITY.

The accompanying illustration shows the design of the posters and stamps for florists' Valentine Day publicity which are being supplied by the Chicago Florists' Club as described in our issue of January 13. Very large orders have been placed by leading florists in some cities for posters for street car advertising and the demand for envelope stickers has been very heavy from all parts of the country. The stamps are $2\frac{1}{8} \times 2$ in., and the posters are $7\frac{1}{4} \times 7\frac{3}{4}$ in. Samples and prices may be had on application to the committee, Fred Lautenschlager, chairman, 440 West Erie St., Chicago, Ill.

Communities having a number of florists can club together as individuals or as an organization, and combine their purchases, which would reduce the cost to each, and at the same time result in an organized and systematic plan of advertising. Wholesale florists and supply houses may order in large quantities for resale or distribution—get busy immediately—order at once.

Send remittance with order as this will save considerable office work for the committee, and make all remittances payable to O. H. Amling, Treasurer, Chicago Florists' Club. Stamps and posters are now ready for delivery.

Flower Market Reports

Nothing distinctly new or BOSTON important can be said about this week's market conditions. The dearth of stock continues to make itself felt, especially in the price list. Business is spirited and steady nevertheless. American Beauty, Russell, Ophelia and Killarney roses bring holiday prices and are sold in fairly large quantities at that. Benora carnations have enjoyed a record call this week, possibly on account of their excellent quality. White carnations are a trifle flaccid. Callas have been at a premium as in the preceding week and lilies only partially filled the gap. Bulb stock is rather poor in quality but seems well in demand as very few are not disposed of. Lily of the valley is of excellent grade but abnormally scarce and high. All greens have enjoyed the usual brisk demand.

"Almost like Christmas"

CHICAGO is the way one wholesaler sums up the rose situation in Chicago. All kinds of roses are scarce and there are no signs of an immediate change in conditions, but the cloud has this silver lining: that there will be all the more for Easter. Spring flowers are everywhere and everyone seems delighted with them. Their good keeping qualities and bright coloring make them ready sellers. Sweet peas, from the small, short-stemmed sorts to the splendid butterfly varieties, are coming now and for the most part are moving fairly well. Carnations are still uncertain. One day the good ones all clean up nicely only to have many left-overs the next, and it is only a very small proportion of the day's receipts that will bring 4c., while a very large proportion go below 3c. There are plenty of theories regarding the cause but on none do the grower, the wholesaler and the retailer all agree. A comparison of prices of carnations with those of last year show that the after-holiday drop came in February. This year it came early in January. Home-grown single violets are bringing one dollar and eastern stock does not affect the market much. A few doubles are now grown locally but as compared with eastern stock they are very small. Smilax is now fine and much of it is in blossom. The local asparagus sprengeri sprays are quite light in color and soft, while that from the south is much better. On the whole, green is scarce. Shipping trade is very good.

Stock is rather CINCINNATI scarce in this market. Daily receipts have decreased and this combined with an active steady demand is keeping the market cleaned up from day to day and has caused high prices. Rose receipts are short of the actual demand for them. Carnations are proving exceptionally good property. Lilies, daffodils and other bulbous stock, are selling well at good prices. Sweet pea receipts are excellent and have a good market. Lily of the valley, orchids and single violets meet with a fair but ordinary demand. Other offerings include forget-me-not, wall-flower, primrose, callas and snapdragon.

NEW YORK This market seems pretty well supplied with flowers. The variety of promiscuous material seen in the wholesale marts is greater than ever before in our opinion. But, notwithstanding all this, one of the most essential items in the flower trade of this or any other market, the medium price rose—say, 12 in. stem—is as scarce almost as the proverbial "hen's teeth." Prices of these, when available, are firm as a rock. Carnations hold up strong also. Lily of the valley lags at the rates now demanded and plenty of this old-time favorite stands unsold in the wholesalers' ice-boxes, but quality is inferior as a rule. Violets are seen in varying quality but the street pedlars have no difficulty in getting high quality flowers in abundance. All bulbous material is increasing rapidly in variety, quantity and quality of bloom. This is especially true of tulips. Lilies and callas are making a big record for the season.

PHILADELPHIA The scramble last week was for short roses—six, eight and ten cents—and there were not quarter enough of these to go around. The buyers did not seem to want to pay the price for the higher grades. This condition naturally lifted a good part of the trade to carnations. These are very fine at present and are bringing good prices although not exorbitant. Orchids are more plentiful and prices have eased up a little. Gardenias the same. Both are excellent. Roman hyacinths, Golden Spurs and paper white narcissi are prominent features, and white lilac is also in abundance. Sweet peas are very fine and in good supply—much of the stock being really of exhibition quality. Bouvardia and stevia seem to be nearing their finish, as we see very little of these around now. Lilies go fairly well but lily of the valley is still a little sluggish.

That prices will soon drop is almost a foregone conclusion, owing to the oversupply of cut blooms which promise to glut the market. With the single exception of roses which still continue "shy," flowers are coming in more plentifully every day. Even orchids are rather plentiful, and there are many sweet peas of superb quality. Tulips are coming in in variety and paper white narcissi and daffodils, lilies and mignonette are all making up for the scarcity of the past several weeks.

Stock is very scarce ST. LOUIS and the wholesalers find no difficulty in cleaning up. Carnations have taken a brace and are selling at 4c. Roses are cleaning up every day. Killarneys which have been selling at low figures are now bringing top prices. Violets are selling well at moderate prices. Sweet peas also move at good figures. Greens are selling well and fancy ferns have advanced in price.

Good prices prevailed in the local market last week because of a general shortage of all cut flowers. Roses ranged from $8 to $20 per hundred, the latter price having increased to $30 for extra specials. Sweet peas, violets, and gardenias, among the smaller flowers, were in considerable demand and at times there were not enough of these to meet all calls. Carnations sell almost as soon as offered, particularly in the lighter colors. Harrisii lilies are selling well. Blooming plants were a feature of the market. The retailers are not buying very heavily of lily of the valley because of the continued high prices. At $6 per hundred there are few buyers, both people and florists alike, demanding a bigger show for their money.

PRACTICAL SCHOOL AND HOME GARDENS, by George W. Hood, Associate Professor of Horticulture, in charge of Vegetable Gardening, University of Nebraska. This book is written especially for elementary school and home vegetable garden work. It can be used for school work between the sixth and twelfth grades, as its language is simple and lucid and it is also suitable for anyone who wishes to prepare and cultivate a home garden large or small as it covers all the ordinary problems of culture from seed or cutting up to harvesting time as in up-to-date practice, with special directions for each class of table vegetables. There are numerous engravings, also twenty-four planting diagrams for gardens of varying extent which will be found very useful by the garden maker. The book contains 182 pages and seems to fill a place that for a long time has been vacant. Valuable references are given at the end of each chapter for those wishing to know more about the subject. The book is published by Long & Company, Educational Publishers, Lincoln, Nebraska. Local seedsmen in every town should be able to dispose of many copies among their customers who aspire to raise their home vegetables and thus materially increase their seed sales.

FIELD NOTES ON SWEET PEAS, ALSO HISTORICAL AND CULTURAL NOTES. Edited by Lester L. Morse and published by C. C. Morse & Co., San Francisco. Price $1.50. This is the leading Sweet Pea Manual published in this country and the present edition is revised and brought right up to date including the season of 1916. The contents are chapters on the following: Classes or Types and History of each; color classification and preferred lists; complete list of Spencers and Grandifloras with descriptions. Complete list of Early Flowering varieties with descriptions. List of Cupids. Mendelism. Culture for Exhibition. Culture for Ordinary Garden Use. Culture for East. Insect Troubles. Hints for Exhibitors. The lists of names comprise a grand total in all classes and varieties of 1,870 names, a considerable number of which are confessedly synonymous. Alternate pages are left blank for observations and notes.

GROWING CHERRIES EAST OF THE ROCKY MOUNTAINS.—This is the subject of Farmers' Bulletin 776, of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, by H. P. Gould, pomologist in charge of fruit production investigation. Everybody likes cherries. Unrivalled in beauty when in bloom or attractiveness as fruit when ripe, delicious to eat as fruit or in the many forms in which it is cooked the cherry is something we like to read about and think about and so this bulletin interests us greatly. There are many fine illustrations. Plant more cherries.

METROPOLITAN EFFICIENCY ASSURES SUCCESS

These two Metropolitan Greenhouses were erected by us for Mr. G. Mabon of Norfolk, Conn.

Mr. Mabon placed his order for these greenhouses with this organization because he understands the Metropolitan method of construction, the success of which is entirely due to its efficiency, economy and speed.

No matter how large or how small the job, this organization strives constantly to increase the value of the owner's investment in his greenhouse.

PRICES

The Common Sense Way To Look at Them

SOME weeks ago, the Skinner Irrigation Company ran an Ad. in Market Growers' Journal, entitled: "Pipe Prices are High, But Crop Prices are Higher."

In that Ad. they gave conclusive facts that made it look like a pretty clear case of penny wise, pound foolish, for a grower to fail to take the fullest advantage of the sky-high crop prices, simply because pipe prices were a little higher. Losing hundreds of dollars for the sake of a few dollars.

The point they made was a good one. To our notion, it is applicable with equal common-senseness to the greenhouse building question.

Practically every item entering the construction of greenhouses, costs more now than it did a year ago.

Therefore, your greenhouse will cost more.

But here's the big point not to lose sight of: The same state of affairs that has boosted greenhouse prices, has boosted the prices of things grown in greenhouses—only much more so. Another case of dollars against hundreds of dollars.

Last year, as you know, was the most phenomenal year that florists in this country have ever experienced. Demand was great. Prices were high. Profits were big.

From all indications this year is going to be another record breaker.

Don't let the fact that your proposed greenhouse will cost a little more than it would if bought a couple of years ago, stop you from being ready for this bonanza business, and getting your full share of it.

The same condition that prevails in the greenhouse market, prevails in practically every other line of business.

Take the paper market for instance. A veritable famine exists. The price of paper is almost beyond belief.

But does that stop manufacturers from getting out their usual catalogs and printed matter? Not a bit of it. To the contrary, most of them are getting out more and better printed matter than ever before. They want their share of the unprecedented amount of money that is being spent in this country, and they are going after it—regardless of the fact that the means of going after it, costs more.

What they get is so much greater, that the increased cost of getting that doesn't cut any figure.

Now is the time to take action on your proposed greenhouse. By getting all materials on the ground, you can start building the very first day the ground is in condition, and have your house ready for your early plants.

Remember we go anywhere for business. Or to talk business.

BURPEE'S SEEDS GROW!

BURPEE'S ANNUAL
The Leading American Seed Catalog

With the close of 1916 forty years of Burpee Effort have passed into Seed History. These were constructive years, years of careful, intensive, scientific investigation and experimenting. Starting in a very modest way, acre after acre, building after building have been added until today we enjoy the distinction of being the World's largest Mail Order Seed House.

The House of Burpee

in this forty years has introduced more distinct new varieties of Vegetable and Flower Seeds that are now in general cultivation, than have any three other American Seed Firms, but never have we catalogued any one of these varieties until it has passed all the exacting requirements of the Burpee Standard. This Burpee Standard is maintained by rigid tests at Fordhook Farms, America's largest and most complete Trial Grounds. These tests are made each year for the purpose of strengthening the bond of confidence between our customers and ourselves.

With the culmination of these forty years we enter the fifth decade of our active business life, with the firm intention of continuing to Better Serve.

Burpee Annual for 1917

The Leading American Seed Catalog is bigger, better and brighter than ever before. Twenty-two pages have been added, and best of all you will find thirty Burpee Specialties illustrated in color. Never before have we issued a catalog with so many accurate color illustrations. Florists and Market Gardeners, in addition to Burpee's Annual, should have Burpee's Blue List, the Market Growers' Handbook. This is a wholesale price list for commercial planters. Write for these catalogs today. A postcard will bring them.

Dreer's New White Canna Eureka

CANNAS

Our Own Introductions

Eureka. We consider this the best white flowering Canna for all purposes to which Cannas are devoted. It is of robust constitution, growing four feet high, forming sturdy, shapely plants very quickly. Its free flowering tendency can be readily understood when we chronicle the fact that a small plant set out May 15th, three months later carried 15 immense heads of flowers. These are of a creamy-white, changing in full sun to a pure white. $1.25 per doz.; $8.00 per 100; $75.00 per 1000.

Favorite. There have been many yellow Cannas spotted with carmine or crimson that were good; it is, therefore, particularly interesting to find a variety that in every way eclipses its many predecessors and for which we have singled out this sort. The color is a rich, deep golden-yellow, produced on tall stems high above the foliage. The red dots, which are not too pronounced, add to the piquancy of the flower, without detracting from the golden mass effect. 5 feet. 35 cts. each; $3.50 per doz.; $25.00 per 100.

Orange Bedder. A particularly attractive bedding variety of a bright orange with just sufficient scarlet suffusion to intensify the dazzling mass of color when the wide branching stems are covered with flowers. $1.25 per doz.; $8.00 per 100; $75.00 per 1000.

The Gem. An entirely distinct spotted variety. The immense trusses of flowers are borne on upright branching stems well above the foliage, and are of deep cream or straw-yellow, spotted with deep carmine. $1.25 per doz.; $8.00 per 100; $75.00 per 1000.

One each of the above 4 varieties for 75 cts.

TWO DISTINCT CANNAS—The Last Introductions Received from Germany in the Autumn of 1914

Lahneck. In this variety we have an entirely distinct departure and advance in the assortment of pink Cannas. First of all we have in Lahneck a free grower, producing an abundance of trusses on erect stalks, well above the foliage. The color is difficult to describe and convey an adequate impression of its worth. It is fundamentally rosy, but throughout the flowers there are lines and shadings of scarlet-carmine hues that add much to their brightness. Add to this a narrow pale-gold border and you may form a slight conception of the beauty of this novelty. 75 cts. each; $7.50 per dozen.

Scharfenstein. Another variety that is sure to take a place among the standard sorts as quickly as it becomes known. The beautifully formed, large round florets are produced in compact but graceful trusses well above the green foliage. The color is a unique light red salmon with orange and carmine suffusions that altogether forms a most attractive addition to the range of colors found in Cannas. You will like Scharfenstein. 75 cts. each; $7.50 per dozen.

ROSE GROWING UNDER GLASS

CONDUCTED BY

Arthur C. Ruzicka

Apply Bone and Tankage Now

As soon as the weather gets so that it will be clear for two or three days at a time, it will be perfectly safe to apply top dressings of bonemeal or tankage. This had better be used now, so that the plants will be sure to get the full benefit of it before they are taken out. Sheep manure can also be used, as soon as the plants show good growth coming on. Before applying any of the fertilizers it will be well to give all the benches a thorough cleaning, removing all dead leaves, pulling up all weeds, also rubbing over the surface a least bit. Steel scratches or weeders should never be used for this work, as no matter how careful the man using them can be he is bound to tear some of the roots. If the plants have just finished a crop and are not starved at all it will be best to water very carefully and not apply any feed until they start again. Syringing quickly twice a week will help the break. See that the plants are wet enough at the root before applying any fertilizer no matter what it may be. Should they be at all dry, the roots will take the feed up too quickly when water is applied and will thus receive a bad check and lose some of their leaves. Better water one day and apply the feed the next. This will insure all plants against any harm from root and foliage burning due to fertilizer.

Temperature During Cloudy Weather

The houses will not want to be too warm during dark cloudy or even foggy days. So far the weather has been fairly good, clear and cold. Have the thermometers read about 66F. with a little air on. This on cloudy days. When only partially cloudy, the temperature can be allowed to get to 72, but no higher than that, as the plants would get very soft and be likely to get mildew here and there. If the weather should continue cloudy for several days it will be better to run even cooler, and the temperature can be allowed to go down to 64F. with a crack of air on. Of course if it is stormy or the wind blowing very hard it will be better not to carry any air, as ice would be likely to form under the ventilators making it impossible to shut them tight for the night.

Keep the Propagator Going

There is only about six weeks in which to root the rest of the cuttings to make the required number of plants for the season, so the propagator should be kept going full all the time. As soon as the first lot of cuttings is taken out another lot should be put in, providing the sand is clean enough for them. When taking out the first lot see that the sand is left clean so that there will be no old leaves, and partly decayed cuttings left in the sand to decay and house a lot of fungus which will spring right at the new cuttings and kill them soon after they are put in. Level the sand well, after which it should be gone over with a brick or some other heavy tool pounding it gently yet firmly until it is very firm. Then when the temperature rises to the proper degree which should be around 66F, the sand will be ready for the cuttings. These should be put in as rapidly as possible so there will be no chance for their getting dry. As soon as a piece of bench is filled, water the cuttings well, being careful not to use too much pressure so that they will not be disturbed in the sand. After each row is put in they should be well firmed by laying a piece of lath right up to them and tapping this with a hammer or a brick; not too hard, for the vibration thus produced would be sure to loosen the sand around those nearby. If any of the shading has washed off it will be necessary to apply more, especially now that the days are a little longer and the sun much stronger.

The First Potting

As soon as a batch of cuttings get so that the roots are half an inch or longer, they cease to be cuttings and become plants. A bench of sand is no place for little plants and the sooner they are taken out and potted the better for them. Use nice fresh soil such as we suggested last week and use clean pots. It will pay in the long run. When lifting the cuttings from the sand see that the work is done carefully so that there will be little danger of breaking roots. These new roots are very crisp and tender, thus easily broken. Take out only a limited number of cuttings, for it will not take much exposure to the air to dry up and shrivel the roots, which will never come to life again once they go down this way. Unless the soil is very heavy it will not be necessary to put any crock into the small pots used for the first potting. If it should be thought necessary then a little screened ashes will do the trick. Care should be taken to fill all the pots evenly so that there will be no trouble in watering them. The amount of empty space allowed on top for water will have to be determined by the nature of the soil. The top of the pot should hold enough water to thoroughly saturate the soil beneath. If this is determined by experiment, and all the pots filled up the same way, there should be no trouble about watering, or keeping the plants evenly wet at all times.

Where to Put the Plants

The best bench in the house is none too good for the young plants, as they will or they will not produce the income the coming year. Therefore the front bench should always be taken out and the plants given this to grow on. If time will permit, all the old soil should be taken out, then the bench should be well washed out and whitewashed. After this a layer or two of newspaper can be spread over the bench bottom, over which an inch or two of screened ashes is applied. These are leveled off well and lightly tamped down, after which the bench is ready for the pots. If there is plenty to do, the soil can be left in the bench, merely taking off about an inch from the top, to get rid of any leaves and mulching that may have been applied when roses were planted there. After this is done and the soil leveled, a good coat of air-slacked or hydrated lime should be applied. This will kill all the earth worms it reaches and those that will remain will never attempt to crawl through the lime into the pot. Over the lime the ashes should be applied using about two inches in order to make sure that no pots will set into the lime, as this would seal the drain in the bottom of the pots and make it very unhealthy for the cuttings.

Sweet Pea Notes

If not already attended to, a start should now be made in sowing sweet peas for next summer's flowering, and where the very best results are desired the seed should be sown in pots. Use $3\frac{1}{2}$ or 4-inch pots, and a suitable compost consists of turfy loam, leaf mold and a little sand, all thoroughly mixed. Instead of troubling with crocks I usually have a little of the roughest of the turf placed in the bottom of the pot for drainage, afterwards filling the pot to within $1\frac{1}{2}$ inches of the top. Over this is placed an inch layer of sharp sand into which the seed is sunk half an inch; the use of the sand being to prevent the seed rotting ere germinating, as many seeds so often do when sown in rougher soil.

Four seeds will be ample for each pot, making all firm and labeling each variety as it is sown. The pots should be placed in a comparatively cool greenhouse and kept as near the light as possible so that growth will be sturdy and dwarf.

When the young vines are two or three inches in height, the support of a few twigs in the pots will help to keep them in an upright position, and encourage regular growth.

After the first thorough soaking to settle soil and seeds, great care should be taken not to overdo the subsequent waterings. If the plants have been grown quite cool they may be removed to cold frames when two inches or so in height, but care must be taken to carefully cover the sash for the first few nights after removal from greenhouse, or until they get perfectly hardened. Give air on all favorable occasions, and some time in March, according to weather conditions, the sash may be kept off entirely.

YARRAWA.

MARGARET ATLEE.

As a perfect root system is necessary for the development of good flowers, and to insure a long flowering period, the plants should be set out just as early in the spring as weather conditions will allow, and if they have been properly hardened off a few degrees of frost will not hurt them in the least.

Just a word as to varieties. If growing primarily for cutting purposes use Nora Unwin as a white, Elfrida Pearson or Lady Evelyn Eyre, light pinks; Hercules, rich rose-pink; Constance Oliver or Margaret Atlee for deep cream-pink; Mrs. Routzahn for light cream-pink; Wedgwood, blue; Margaret Madison, lavender-blue; Orchid and Florence Nightingale, lavender; King Edward Spencer, crimson; Rosabelle and George Herbert, shades of rose.

It might also be well to make a good sowing of Yarrawa as this fine early or winter flowering variety will begin to flower at least two weeks earlier than the first named sorts, while it will continue to bloom as long as what are known as the summer-flowering varieties.

Then the sweet pea lover must also have such invaluable sorts as Royal Purple, Fiery Cross, Constance Hinton, King White, Floradale, Fairy, The President, Cherub, Mrs. Cuthbertson and Wedgwood.

Geo. W. Kerr.

Sweet Peas in California and Massachusetts

Editor HORTICULTURE.

Referring to Eureka Giant Sweet Peas as shown in your cover illustration last week, seeing that my name was brought into the matter by our good friend Mr. Ward when he asks if I or any English grower can beat it (some conceit isn't it?) I would say candidly that equally as good has and are being grown around Boston. Upon close examination of the picture we see quantities of petals on the ground near Mr. Ward's feet which shows that the blooms had been allowed to accumulate for some time; the number of such pods and half wilted blossoms in sight indicates the same thing. However, it is the best picture of sweet peas growing in California I have seen and great credit is due Mr. Ward for showing the people on the Coast what well grown sweet peas look like.

In California, ideal conditions exist for the full development of the sweet pea. In the East we are greatly handicapped in that respect. The variety Illuminator, which is represented in the picture, belongs to the late-flowering class which, owing to the length of time required to bring them into bloom, makes them unprofitable for the grower and they are only grown as an outdoor proposition. If Mr. Ward is going to give us something worth while in a new race of sweet peas they must belong to the early flowering class. This type will produce, I should say, at least six to one to the class in which Illuminator belongs. Mr. Ward states that they have been in bearing for three months which goes to show that climatic conditions are ideal. I am enclosing photograph in courtesy to Mr. Ward, (even if it is from Boston) of a row, or hedge as he calls it, of the type of sweet pea we wish. This photo shows the vines in their third month of bearing, but the blossoms shown had all matured on the three days previous to the taking of the picture. Had they been allowed three days longer to remain on the vines there would have been at least twice the quantity of blooms shown. Owing to the space allotted for them it was hard to make a good photo. Because of the close proximity of the side of the greenhouse we could not show the height of the vines but they are 12 feet high. The variety is Zvolanek's Venus. It is hard to get the loose effect which Mr. Ward's picture shows owing to the fact that the side shoots have to be strung closely to the row to assure straight stems. Take

SWEET PEA BUDS DROPPING.

Will some one kindly tell me the reason for my sweet pea buds dropping off like enclosed specimens? I have been picking flowers since before Christmas and up until now they have been very good, but this last week I have noticed them falling away. The vines look very healthy. I have not given them any feeding in over a month, but when I do it is sheep manure I use and a small quantity at a time, and I keep the temperature at night from 45 to 50 and from 50 to 60 degrees during the day, or as near to that as I possibly can.

New York.

A. J. M.

In reply to yours regarding the withering of the buds of sweet peas, would say that in my opinion the plants were perhaps heavily watered and then the temperature was allowed to get too low or the house over-charged with moisture which was allowed to get cold and clammy. At this season when watering is done enough steam should be kept up to keep the atmosphere of the house sweet and buoyant. The day temperature should be allowed to reach, with the sun out, 58 to 60; if cloudy 67 and drop to night temperature with steam and a little ventilation on. I think your correspondent is keeping the night temperature all right but not high enough through the day.

Warning of the increasing scarcity of many sorts of flower seeds—those especially which are supplied from foreign sources—has been given repeatedly in our seed trade notes and elsewhere of late. On some of these, prices have taken a big jump already, which is bad enough but the likelihood of an absolute clean-up before the season is half under way is much more serious. We would urge upon all our readers to make up the lists of what they require and get their seed orders placed at the earliest possible date. Nothing can be gained by procrastination for conditions are sure to be less favorable later on. No one needs to look any further than the seed houses advertising in HORTICULTURE. They are representative merchants and you'll gain in the long run by sticking to the class you find advertising regularly in HORTICULTURE's pages.

The season of annual festivities and indoor recreation in club and society circles is on. As you like it The momentous question of how to fittingly plan such celebrations has cost many an earnest committeeman sleepless hours and no end of worry. Some organizations adhere tenaciously to the time-honored "stag" dinner—a "laughing, quaffing and unthinking time" with speeches and songs and stories, "so many, and so many, and such glee." Others prefer to doll up and invite the ladies to come and "trip the light fantastic toe." Here under the allurements of the mirthful maze the caterer's art soon goes into the discard and the toastmaster's "We have with us this evening" becomes a dust-dry bone to impatient revellers chafing to

"Knit hands and beat the ground
 In a light fantastic round."

Each variety has its staunch and uncompromising advocates. Take your pick.

The
 place

Nothing but good can come out of the earnest discussions of the commercial status of the carnation as a cut flower which have been going on and, we hope, will still continue in the columns of HORTICULTURE. Incontrovertible facts have been brought out on all sides of the question. On one thing every writer agrees—that there is room for improvement in carnationdom, and the start seems to have really begun, for recognition of one's failings is the first step in any reformation. As these lines are being penned the cohorts of the divine flower are assembled at Indianapolis intent upon doing something in a concrete way to advance the interests of the carnation and American carnation growers. The secretary's warning note of decreasing membership is plain evidence that a good shake-up and revival would not be inopportune. And the Carnation—bless her—is well worthy of it.

 of the future

The call for "odd things" in cut flowers—sorts that have not figured noticeably in the offerings of the city flower stores heretofore—has become so searching and insistent that not a few flower growers are now making a good business out of growing such as specialties for the market in the larger cities. Boston has, perhaps, taken the lead in this departure from the "old ruts." We have just noticed an interesting article by F. Herbert Chapman in the Horticultural Trade Journal, (British) on "Freesias and Nerines," two bulbous plants of which he thinks much more might be made. The freesias, of course, have for a long time been firmly established favorites in this country but the nerine is scarcely known outside of the private conservatories. As Mr. Chapman says, the nerine is plainly on its way to ultimately take its place in the flower market as a plant of great utility. It flowers in innumerable tints from white to scarlet, crimson, rose pink and cerise and its only serious drawback is its slowness to increase but that obstacle will be easily overcome, no doubt, as soon as our invincible California bulb growers get busy with it. As to its reception in the flower market there can be no question.

THE "WHY" OF THE CARNATION

Editor of HORTICULTURE:

Dear Sir—I once heard the late Denys Zirngiebel say "the pansy and carnation are the flowers of the many—the rose, orchid and violet the flowers of the few," but from present indications the carnation must be placed with the rose, orchid and violet, for when carnations sell for $1.50 to $3 per dozen they cease to be within the purchasing power of the great middle class who love, and would be buyers, but have not reached the income-tax stage, yet would buy if they could buy at prices which prevailed a few years ago. No doubt there is a demand for high priced carnations, yet the price limits the number of buyers.

These large flowers with stiff stems lack one most essential element of a perfect flower—they have little or no fragrance, and only appeal to the eye, and the varieties of this class are only a success when grown by the specialist (and sometimes not with them) and when grown by the ordinary grower they are truly "rubbish."

I believe the present system of planting in the field late in May and housing in July is entirely wrong. When housed three to five plants are required to make a substantial bench showing, it being called "doubling-up." It is a well-known fact that carnations in the field make more wood in the month of August than in May, June and July combined and if lifted carefully during the first ten days of September there would be no need of "quadrupling" the plants, for they would have from 25 to 40 sturdy branches.

I can well recollect such varieties as DeGraw, Silver Spray, Crimson King, Ferdinand Mangold, William Scott, Mrs. Fisher, Hector, Astoria, Buttercup, Mad. Brett and others, which, with the exception of the last two, would give plants of an average of 30 branches when lifted and produce from 60 to 100 flowers each during the season, and Buttercup and Brett about 20 blooms. While Mrs. Fisher had a weak stem when grown too warm the others had very good stems from 12 to 15 inches long—fully as stiff as many grown today—with the flowers from 2 to 3 inches in diameter, and none of them "a puny little thing on the end of a piece of string capable of being tied in a knot."

The flowers of the above mentioned varieties in the hands of an ordinary grower were as perfect and as beautiful as those of today, with a delicate, rich fragrance and would keep as well as any carnation ever grown. When planted in September, by removing all buds from one-third of the plants, one-half the buds from one-third of the plants and thinning the buds on the other third of the plants, we had a continuous bloom from October until the following July—with nearly the same cut in December and January as was produced in April and May. Carnations should be sold at retail—except at holidays—for 75 cents per dozen in winter and 50 cents in spring and autumn. A good, fair-sized flower, and they can be grown and sold at those prices at a profit to the grower and retailer if the right varieties are grown. If we are only to have the $3 varieties, and the resultant rubbish of that class, the trade in carnations will rapidly decline, for it has begun.

$6 and $10 chrysanthemums have had their day—the $3 carnation will have its day. While we all recognize the great advance in knowledge at the present time, still the past is rich in experience which would be profitable not to forget or entirely disregard.

R. T. LOMBARD.

112 Canal street, Boston, Mass.

Editor of HORTICULTURE:

I would like to have a little space in your valuable columns in regard to "The 'Why' of the Carnation." As to the diminished sales of carnations, there are quite a few reasons; I can only speak of St. Louis. One cause is the growing of inferior grade stock. Another the cutting of stock not at the right stage, another the bunching of them for market, the placing of inferior flowers in bunches which otherwise would at least have been fairly presentable. The wholesaler also is in my opinion to blame in asking prices for flowers not worth the money, thus merging quality and quantity into the same channel.

Extra fancy, long stiff-stem blooms, out of the ordinary size flowers, should command top price, but I hardly think that any florist in St. Louis would ask $2.00 a dozen for carnations.

Then again, carnations in St. Louis are at times sold as low as two dozen for fifteen cents and run as a special by some prominent retailer on Saturdays downtown. These flowers probably had reposed in the wholesaler's ice box three or four days; or, perhaps, by the shipper who does some retailing himself and who, finding he has a crop coming on, finally decides to ship the kept-over stock to the market. The public buy the flowers, take them home, place them in a quiet little room, no noise, and on return finds the flowers taking a sleep which knows no awakening. This disgusts the general public and condemns the carnation. I believe with Mr. Goddard that better grade and better care in all stages would help to put the carnation in its right place.

St. Louis.

C. W. WORS.

Editor of HORTICULTURE:

Dear Sir:—It was a source of great pleasure to see the article "The 'Why' of the Carnation" appearing in your issue of Jan. 20.

We ship wholesale to about seventy florists in our trade territory, which extends from Asheville, N. C., on the Northeast to Memphis, Tenn., on the northwest, San Antonio, Texas, on the southwest and Key West on the southeast. If you will look at the map you will see that this territory covers between seven and eight hundred miles. We have very little trouble getting from one to two cents more for our stock than Chicago price. Sometimes we have complaints, but we answer this by saying that our stock is this much better class goods, and our customers must believe it for they buy us out every day.

In all of our pricelists of this season, we have been harping on the one thing, and that is, quality. Our stock, shipped from here to Houston, Texas, which is a twenty-four hour trip, is salable from five to seven days after arrival at destination. When put into a vase it never falls over and touches the table, as I have very often seen the Chicago stock do.

I have copied Mr. Goddard's article in full and am now sending it out to our customers.

Thanking you for the printing of Mr. Goddard's article and wishing for you the best of success,

Very truly yours,

WALLACE B. PATERSON.

BEGONIA EPIRUS.

J. S. Doig, of Southboro, Mass., sends us a photograph, which is scarcely clear enough for reproduction, of winter-flowering begonia Epirus which shows this to be a splendid variety. The flowers are salmon pink, 4½ inches in diameter. Mr. Doig states that the plant shown lasted in flower for ten weeks. It was exhibited in Boston on Nov. 1, where it remained for five days, was then sent back to Southboro by express, thence to Marlboro on the 6th and again to Southboro on the 7th, the photograph showing it still in full flower being taken in last week of December. All the other varieties exhibited with it in Boston lost their flowers when put back in the greenhouses. These facts would indicate that this should be a good variety for commercial use.

AMERICAN CARNATION SOCIETY

A Well-Attended and Enthusiastic Meeting and Splendid Exhibition—Boston Selected for 1918 Convention—
W. J. Vesey, Jr., Elected President

As HORTICULTURE goes to press the American Carnation Society, in session at Indianapolis, Ind., is just about donning its "glad apparel" for the annual "feast of reason and flow of soul." Our brief reports by telegraph indicate a serious business convention with plenty of enthusiasm on the part of officers and members for the coming year's work. A more detailed report of the proceedings will be given in our issue of next week.

At the opening session on Wednesday evening there was a good attendance and President Ammann delivered his annual address, as follows:

President J. F. Ammann's Address.

Ladies, Gentlemen, Fellow Craftsmen:

As presiding officer of this organization that has so vastly advanced the interests of not only carnation culture, but floriculture in general, I deem it indeed an honor to welcome you to this the twenty-sixth annual meeting of the American Carnation Society in this beautiful and centrally located city of Indianapolis.

It is unnecessary for me to repeat at this time the history of this organization. Suffice it to say that I feel more and more as I grow older the touch of good fellowship that a meeting like this brings with it. Here we co-mingle in brotherly love with fellow craftsmen from all over this fair land of peace and prosperity; here we renew old acquaintances, and make new ones; now and then we miss an old familiar face—we ask the reason, and find that he has passed on to the great beyond. As the old varieties of our beloved carnations, we miss them but never forget them. It is these fond greetings and memories that really make life worth living after all.

To the members of our craft who are so diligently working to produce new varieties of merit we are probably more indebted than we realize, for were it not for something new occasionally the public interest would soon wane. The American people are great on fads, and in order to keep up an interest new things of special merit are always in demand. I dare say nothing has popularized the rose so much the last few years as the coming on of so many new varieties of merit, and the end is not yet, which I am sure you will be convinced of in your visit to the E. G. Hill Co. place at Richmond. A friend recently told me it was worth a trip across the continent to see the seedling roses there, so I went and I now testify that the statement is true. We see here what one firm can do by untiring efforts in roses. I contend the same must be done in carnations in order to keep this flower as popular in the future as it has been in the past. Much indeed is being done along this line by quite a few of our trusty old friends, but what seems just at this time to lack in the new production of carnations is that they have not enough merit to replace the older varieties. Either they do not produce enough to be profitably grown as standards, or the quality is not good enough to command the extra price a fancy should. But all good things come to those who wait, so let us be patient and I am sure we shall soon be rewarded.

I have but a few suggestions to offer at this time. One I think worthy of, is to recommend that the number of blooms necessary for a preliminary certificate for the Dorner memorial medal, be changed from 50 to 25 blooms. It has been suggested that many times it is hard to get 50 good blooms from a new variety where not so many plants are grown.

We have an evergrowing demand for the society's co-operation with local flower shows, which I am sure we cannot afford to ignore. At the board of directors' meeting in Cleveland on Nov. 12, 1915, a motion was passed to the effect that the board recommend to the convention following in January that the A. C. S. lend its co-operation to local flower shows, provided the schedule, the judges and the underwriting of said show be approved by the president and secretary of this society. I take it that the intention here was to have the society offer its usual medals and certificates. However, this matter never came before the regular January meeting owing, I guess, to an oversight. I feel it is of such importance that I would recommend that at this meeting the officers be authorized to carry out the intent of this resolution, or that at least some action be taken on the matter towards such a co-operation. For the more we can induce the exhibits of carnations the more we can popularize that flower.

I too would recommend that the secretary be authorized to place an advertisement in each of the trade papers, say, when the premium schedule is ready, calling attention to the fact that premium lists are to be had on application, and stating to those who are not members to include price of membership fee, so as to be eligible to exhibit. I believe this will not only help us to get more exhibitors but also new members. On behalf of the Society I want to extend thanks to the trade press for the vast amount of free publicity given the carnation whenever opportunity has presented itself.

In closing I want to heartily thank the secretary, Mr. Baur, for his kind co-operation and advice in many things. Also Mr. Vesey, our worthy vice-president, for his untiring efforts in leading on the preliminary work of this meeting and show. To the local committees and especially to the exhibitors I feel deeply grateful for their hearty co-operation in helping to bring about this creditable show. To the members of this Society I feel much indebted for the honor conferred upon me in the unanimous election as your president. I assure you, gentlemen, it will ever bring to me fond memories of your friendship in years to come, and my good wishes and prayers will be with you always.

The secretary's report was presented as follows:

Report of Secretary A. F. J. Baur.

During the past twelve months, the secretary's office has been unusually busy. With our participation in the National Flower Show in Philadelphia last March and the soliciting of funds in aid of Miss Anna Jarvis, there has been much extra work and some additional expense. The receipts, however, have also increased somewhat, though not quite as much as the expense, so that at the end of this fiscal year we find ourselves with somewhat less money in the general fund than a year ago, but still in very good condition.

During the past year the secretary's office has received in dues, $729.00; advertising, $261.85; miscellaneous, $46.05; Mothers' day, $154.00; total, $1190.90, all of which was turned over to the treasurer and his receipt taken therefore.

The secretary's and treasurer's books were checked over by a public accountant and found correct. All bills are being met promptly and all accounts due the society are being collected without loss. We are pleased to note that 26 pages of advertising space in this year's premium schedule were taken by our members and friends. We feel that our members should make an effort to patronize these advertisers as much as possible, in order to make it worth their while to use these pages as an advertising medium.

The one department that gives the secretary more concern than any other is the membership list. During the past year we have taken in 45 new members and reinstated 6, yet in spite of this unusual number of new additions, we are now 13 members behind last report. The list now stands at 312 annual members and 12 life members, making a total of 324.

During the past year we lost Albert Roper, who died March 1st, Wm. F. Kasting, who died June 15th; Thos. C.

Joy, who died Nov. 10th; and W. L. Kroeschell, who died Nov. 23rd. All of these men were favorably known to most of you and will be missed at our future conventions.

We have 217 members in good standing in the Society of American Florists and therefore continue to be represented on their Board of Directors. Our present president, Mr. Ammann, was selected to that position, to serve during the year 1917.

Since the last meeting, we have received seven new varieties for registration. Fourteen others were sent over by the Perpetual Flowering Carnation Society of England.

A special silver medal was struck to commemorate the society's twenty-fifth year and was awarded to each winner of a first premium in the carnation section at the National Flower Show in Philadelphia last March. Those who received these medals are S. J. Goddard, E. G. Hill Co., Strafford Flower Farms, J. W. Minott Co., E. F. Lieker, Cottage Gardens Co., A. A. Pembroke, Strouts, Wm. Kleinheinz, W. L. Ellis, Wm. Graham, Mrs. Wm. Austin, A. Harvey & Sons, Countess Eulalia and W. E. Lenk. Fifteen in all.

This society took a very active part in the National Flower Show in Philadelphia last March. Not only did we prepare the premium schedule and the rules for staging the carnation section of the show, but members of this society contributed $515.00 toward paying the premiums of this department, thereby reducing the liability of the management to that extent. Our silver and bronze medals were also awarded as sweepstakes in the 100 bloom section.

Early in the year, the secretary by direction of the Board of Directors, solicited funds from the members for the Mothers' Day fund which was being raised by the Society of American Florists, for the purpose of assisting Miss Jarvis in promoting that day. $154.00 was raised and sent to Secretary Young.

The Board of Directors held the customary post convention meeting on January 27th in St. Louis. A second meeting was held in Philadelphia on March 28th, instead of the usual mid-summer meeting. At this meeting some changes were made in the premiums offered, in most of the classes contained in the premium schedule for this year's exhibition. In section A, classes 1 to 11, the premiums were raised from $10.00 and $6.00 to $15.00 and $10.00. In section B, classes 11 to 36, the premiums are raised from $5.00 and $3.00 to $8.00 and $5.00. In section C only one premium, $10.00 is offered instead of $6.00 and $4.00. These changes have increased our liability on premiums by $219.00. Five disseminators have again very generously contributed the premiums in section C.

The identification badges you are wearing were provided as a result of the action taken in the meeting at St. Louis last year. They are the most practical article we were able to find for the purpose. If they are satisfactory we shall continue to use them in the future.

The arrangements for this meeting were left entirely in the hands of our

Vice-President, Mr. Vesey, and his committees selected from the state society. That they have labored earnestly and harmoniously you can see by the results accomplished. The retail men have come forward with a splendid demonstration of the carnation's adaptability for decorative affects. They should be given credit and every encouragement possible.

The trade press has opened its columns to everything we have sent in for publication. To them is due our thanks.

CHELSEA AND HOLLAND HOUSE SHOWS ABANDONED.

We learn from "The Garden," London, that after careful consideration and great anxiety the Council of the Royal Horticultural Society have decided to abandon these two large shows for this year. Added to the trouble arising from the shortage of labor, the difficulties of transport, and the government's desire to reduce traveling, the contractor has, at the last moment, reported that he cannot guarantee to put up the tents. In the place of these two shows ordinary fortnightly meetings will be held at the London Scottish Drill Hall, Buckingham Gate, on the usual fortnightly dates, namely, May 22 and July 3.

CLUBS AND SOCIETIES

MISSOURI STATE FLORISTS' ASSOCIATION.

The appointments of the vice-presidents of the Missouri State Florists' Association were made last week, and comprise the following:

H. Archias, Sedalia, Mo., two years; Frank A. Windler, St. Louis, Mo., two years; William L. Rock, Kansas City, Mo., one year; Earl Reed, Louisiana, Mo. (Stark Bros.), one year.

This includes a representative of the wholesaler, retailer, grower and the nurserymen of Missouri, and President Knapp is to be congratulated on the selection of such able and progressive material to constitute part of the executive board of the Missouri State Florists' Association.

CHRYSANTHEMUM SOCIETY OF AMERICA.

We have received from Secretary Chas. W. Johnson, type-written copy of the preliminary list of Special Prizes to be awarded at the Annual Exhibition in Cleveland, Ohio, November 6-11, 1917. The list includes lots of silver cups and other trophies of very substantial value contributed by public-spirited amateurs and by chrysanthemum specialists in the trade, and there should be some lively competition on that occasion among commercial growers and also among the representatives of private estates.

The advisory council of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society has decided to hold a garden contest each year from 1919 to 1922. In 1919 the contest will be for the best iris garden, in 1920 for the best rose garden, in 1921 for the best lilac garden and in 1922 for the best fruit garden. Commercial growers are excluded from this contest. The prizes are: for first, gold medal and $100; for second, silver medal and $50; and for third, silver medal and $25.

A meeting of the employees of the Pierson greenhouses, Cromwell, Conn., was held Thursday evening, January 25, and a society known as the Cromwell Gardens Horticultural Society was organized. W. R. Pierson and A. N. Pierson were elected honorary presidents and the following list of active officers was elected: President, J. M. McEwen; vice-president, Arvid Anderson; secretary and treasurer, M. C. Searles; publicity manager, George Anderson.

PUBLICATIONS RECEIVED.

PARKS, THEIR DESIGN, EQUIPMENT AND USE, by George Burnap, B. S. M. A. Landscape Architect of Public Buildings and Grounds, Washington, D. C. With an introduction by Richard B. Watrous, Secretary American Civic Association. Frontispiece in color. Large 8 vo, decorated cloth, net, $6.00. J. B. Lippincott Company, Publishers, Philadelphia.

This is one of the really great books of the season. It cannot be justly reviewed in a casual glance over its pages. One does not have to read very far to realize that its author has spent a busy lifetime on the myriad problems of his many-sided subject and is thoroughly in touch with the public—its needs and its whims. There are four books intended for the series, of which this is the first one issued, the subjects and their order as originally planned being Landscape Design, Planting Design, Park Design and Garden Design. The manuscript of the first, we are told, is interned with the author's trunk somewhere on the border between Germany and France.

In the book under consideration there are 163 pictorial illustrations, of which 92 are taken from foreign parks. These pictures are mostly views of restricted areas, small squares, etc., which at first glance were thus somewhat a disappointment until we found that they were presented not particularly as examples of the author's ideals but in a great many instances as exhibits of what should not be done, the foreign ones figuring largely in the category of defective arrangement. The volume contains fifteen chapters under topics as follows: Park Design in City Planning; Bringing Up a Park the Way It Should Go; Principles of Park Design; "Passing-Through" Parks; Neighborhood Parks; Recreation Parks; Playgrounds in Parks; Effigies and Monuments in Parks; Architecture in Parks; Decorative Use of Water; Planting Design of Parks; Park Administration in Relation to Planting Design; Seats in Public Parks; Disposition of Flowers in Parks; Park Utilities. From the foregoing it will be seen that the book follows very practical lines. It is addressed primarily to executives having the development of parks in charge, whose knowledge of the underlying principles of the subject is often vague, of necessity. It is plainly set forth in the preface that the book is intended to establish the fact that there is a definite law and order to be recognized in the shaping of parks quite as in other forms of art-laws which may not be prudently violated or ignored.

Chapter 1 should be read very carefully. Chapter 2 will elicit a cordial "Amen" for the greater part of its contents. The playgrounds chapter is one of the best and presents principles of intrinsic worth as regards this difficult department of park work. Invariably outspoken, the author leaves no doubt as to his position on disputed questions. His remarks on the use of statues and decorative sculpture will please most readers, as will the unstinted condemnation of tree and shrub mutilation by the use of the clipping shears, but not all will agree that the gardener, as such, is the typical offender in this regard. The chapter on Recreation Parks is inspiring and delightful from first to last. It will benefit and instruct all who read it and those with true artistic perceptions will find themselves very much in harmony with the author's utterances. Park Utilities makes a splendid chapter, full of well-considered advice. That on Disposition of Flowers in Parks seems to us hardly up to the quality of the others in comprehensiveness and practical suggestion, and we think sylvan beauty would stand a little larger recognition.

A new Hawmark Red Rose sent out this year by Alex. Dickson & Sons

We have tested this Rose for Winter forcing for two years, and with us it produces more red roses during the winter than any Rose we have ever grown. It is not a large Rose, but has perfectly formed medium sized flowers that sell at sight. Color bright orange carmine; will not turn blue; because the base of the petals is orange. It is not a summer rose, as it has the same substance as Killarney. We build the plants up until November, and from Thanksgiving until May it is a money maker for the Rose Grower, as no pinching is necessary.

As intimated above, the old controversy concerning the respective qualifications and failings of "architects" and "gardeners" intrudes here and there in this work. The author remarks that "It is an absurdity to permit the park gardener to destroy uncensured the soft values of a foliage composition which the landscape designer visualized and hoped to produce." To this proposition all reasonable people will no doubt subscribe, but not necessarily to the presumption that this species of butchery is an inseparable predilection of park gardeners or that refined landscape composition is exclusively a product of academic training in landscape architecture. It is a mistake to assume that for the interweaving of beauty and utility which is essential in every garden conception academic training in the aesthetic arts is indispensable and that intuition is comparatively a minor factor. There are landscape architects and landscape architects and there are gardeners and gardeners, and each in the final analysis must stand or fall, not upon the title he assumes but according to his works. To each and all, however, the possession of "Parks, Their Design, Equipment and Use," will be found a substantial help in his progress to a position of eminence in his chosen profession. To any young man wishing to engage in landscape art as a life work we unhesitatingly commend Mr. Burnap's book as a manual of exceptional value and an unsurpassed aid. The book can be supplied by HORTICULTURE at publisher's price.

The Morristown Dinner.

On Tuesday, January 23, the Morris Co., (N. J.) Horticultural Society became of age, and it celebrated the twenty-first anniversary of its formation in a befitting manner. And a feast it was! From the time Landlord Piper made the clock strike seven until the midnight chimes which were heard from around the corner acted as a cur-few and bade all the jolly good fellows, who were not a bit sleepy, a fond good night.

The dinner was a sumptuous one and the decorations were so lavish as to give the hall the semblance of a flower show more than a banquet. At the speakers' table over which the toastmaster, Richard G. Hollaman presided, sat Edward Reagan, secretary of the society; William H. Duckham treasurer; Frank Breare, president; Britton D. Evans, Hon. Daniel S. Voorhees and Hon. George W. Downs. After the first courses amateur entertainers, who are members of the society, sang several popular songs and amused with an eccentric dago dance.

The toastmaster took for his subject in the opening address, "What I Know of the Cannibal or Insect Eating Plant." This speech was to consume an hour and half of time, but as the speaker said, he was covered with confusion and blushed to admit that he had come away from his home without it. He said in part that at the original organization meeting of the association eight men who were interested in their professions attended and that there are four here tonight, Messrs. Reagan, Herrington, Totty and Duckham, and that they all should feel proud of their accomplishments, and of their success as fathers of the society, for today the active membership is over one hundred.

Arthur Herrington, who was the association's first president, was next called upon, and while he did not admit it, it was rumored that the anniversary punch which had just been served was his own "seedling." Mr.
Herrington said he had long looked forward to this night, for this was the night that his infant, the society, had become of age. He then jokingly spoke of some of the reminiscences of the society in its early days, and of the advancement of horticulture in New Jersey. One man advised him not to publish a paper he had prepared, for by so doing he was giving to the public the secrets of his profession. But the paper was published, and tonight's events speak for themselves, and the man who was afraid of giving the secret to the public is unheard of in his profession.

Mayor Otto Ross was next called upon and for the first time gave away his secret to the public, admitting that he was a gardener, as well as a mayor, and should anyone doubt his integrity they might call at his residence any time next summer and see his garden which occupies a plot two by four feet.

Dr. Britton D. Evans paid a great tribute to the florists for the part they take in furnishing something that adds to the beauty of the world, and brings joy to the distressed. He said that he was thinking of the things which make life beautiful and expressed the thought that a few roses meant more to the living than whole wreaths to the dead. He added that while he is not a florist he is supposed to throw flowers in the human pathway.

J. Austin Shaw, replied with a poem and a toast to the press and the (absent) ladies. Charles Weathered, one of the oldest members of the New York Florists' Club, was then caught as he was about to leave the room, and was prevailed upon to tell several stories and give the history of his organization.

Edward Reagan next spoke on "The Individual Member" and said that while the organization has attained a place second to none in the trade, as well as in the national shows, that the work while in many cases attributed to an association was in many cases, due to an individual. And here he made a presentation speech and presented William H. Duckham with a diamond stick pin, composed of a cluster set in platinum, as an expression of the estimation in which he is held by the members of the organization. Mr. Duckham was greatly surprised, and for a few moments was so touched that he could not collect himself. He then thanked the organization for their beautiful gift.

Uncle Dan Voorhees, who is known as a Republican leader in the county, and claims that he has never made a speech in his life, spoke for a few moments to the members. He said that he was now sixty-five years old and this was the second florist banquet that he had attended, and that from now on he would attend the next twenty-five. He was followed by Arthur T. Boddington, Mayor W. G. Badgley of Chatham and Hon. George W. Downs.

New York Club Dinner.

It is rumored that the New York Florists' Club will give another "Din-Dan" or dinner dance at the Biltmore, on Saturday night, March 17th; which is the first Saturday of the Flower Show—also St. Patrick's Day.

In addition to a dinner of rare goodness, with the happy accompaniment of dancing, there will be a mystery. Chairman A. I. Miller says that it's going to be "A Big Joy Bubble," which will be burst in the centre of the room at exactly 12 of the clock." Further than that, Abe is dumb as an oyster. The committee urge an early reservation of tables. Tickets for lady or gentleman, will be $5 each. Write to The Dinner Committee, A. L. Miller, chairman, T. B. de Forest, secretary, 30 East 42nd street, New York, N. Y.

TOMATO SEED FOR YOUR 1917 CROP

You will get an enormous crop of Tomatoes from Bolgiano's Tomato Seeds this year. Our Seed was saved from one of the largest crops we have ever had, due to being favored by weather conditions. The vines were loaded with Large, Solid, Red Fruit. We know positively by planting Seed from this "Big Crop" your yield will be much larger than if you had bought seed grown where the weather conditions were not favorable.

"I am very much pleased with the result of your work on my trees. . . . From their present appearance I do not see why they should longer, whereas last year we had grave doubts as to their living."

A crude cement patch—ineffective and injurious

Cement patch removed—showing extensive and neglected decay

THE tree is a living organism; it breathes, assimilates food, has a real circulation. Its normal condition is health, but it is subject to disease and decay just as any other living thing.

As with one's body or one's teeth, the tree responds only to that treatment which is in scientific accordance with Nature's laws.

The physician, the surgeon, or the dentist requires years of patient study, plus the intuitive skill born of ripe experience, before he is equipped to obtain successful results.

This is also exactly true in Tree Surgery. However, in Tree Surgery, scientific accuracy is not enough. Think of the terrific windstorm with its bending and twisting! You will then realize that Tree Surgery must be mechanically perfect to withstand it. The mechanical principles and methods of bracing employed by a real Tree Surgeon would amaze you.

Trees cannot be "patched" like barn doors. Men without long training and experience cannot save them. Tree Surgery is a science unto itself—a science demanding highly specialized knowledge and remarkable skill for its successful application.

Facts Little Understood

Because the facts set forth above have not been understood, great injury has been done to thousands of trees everywhere and a vast amount of money has been wasted in disastrous tree "patching."

It has been the fault of nobody in particular. Tree owners simply have not realized the degree of scientific knowledge and mechanical skill required in the permanent saving of trees. And "tree patchers"—the men who have been doing the faulty and dangerous work—are in many cases conscientious enough but ignorant of the facts and lacking in skill.

Photograph No. 1 illustrates a typical case of tree "patching." To the untrained eye this work probably looks good, but a Davey Tree Surgeon saw at a glance that the conditions were bad. Growths of fungus disease appeared along the edges of the filling and on the bark between the large and small fillings.

Photograph No. 2 shows the filling taken out. Nearly every principle of the science of Tree Surgery had been violated—the rough decay only had been removed; the cavity had not been disinfected; the condition of decay behind this crude cement patch was actually appalling, and the filling had only been in two or three months; no bracing of any kind had been used; no means had been provided to exclude moisture; the large filling had been put in as a solid mass, making no allowance for the sway of the tree.

Photograph No. 3 shows all decay removed by a Davey Tree Surgeon; the cavity thoroughly disinfected and waterproofed; the mechanical bracing partly in place; the watersheds cut to exclude moisture.

Photograph No. 4 shows the Davey filling completed, put in sectionally to permit swaying without breaking the filling. This tree has since stood through many severe storms in perfect condition. New bark is now growing over the filling along the edges. The tree has been saved permanently!

Davey Tree Surgery is safe

It is scientifically accurate and mechanically perfect.

Your trees, many of them the product of several generations, are priceless. Once lost, they cannot be restored in your lifetime or that of your children.

To whom shall you entrust them? There can be only one answer, for there is only one safe place to go—to Davey Tree Surgeons.

Safe—because Davey Tree Surgery is time-proved; its record of successful performance for thousands of estate owners spans a generation.

Safe—because no Davey Tree Surgeon is allowed any responsibility until he has conclusively demonstrated his fitness. He must have served his full course of thorough practical training and scientific study in the Davey Institute of Tree Surgery—a school, the only one of its kind in the world, which we conduct for the specific purpose of drilling our men according to Davey methods and Davey ideals.

Safe—because we who know values in Tree Surgery and who demand and deliver the best, select the man to whom the treatment of your priceless trees is to be entrusted.

Safe—because Davey Tree Surgery has been endorsed as best by the United States Government after an exhaustive official investigation.

Safe—because Davey Tree Surgery is recommended by thousands of prominent men and women, whose endorsement you can accept with complete confidence. (Several such endorsements appear on the left.)

Safe—because Davey Tree Surgeons are picked men, thoroughly trained, conscientious, intelligent, courteous, in love with their work. "Men," writes Dr. H. D. House, New York State Botanist and formerly pro-

This is Davey Tree Surgery. It is scientifically accurate and mechanically perfect. The sectional filling permits swaying without cracking fessor in Biltmore Forestry School, "who would do honor to any institution of learning in America."

Safe—because the Davey Company is a successful and responsible house, amply able to make good in every instance, and not needing, for the sake of temporary existence, to sacrifice in the slightest degree its high standards.

Tree "patching" cannot save your trees. Only scientific, mechanically perfect treatment by men trained through years to the point of finished skill can be permanently successful. And for such treatment by such men there is only one safe place to go—to Davey Tree Surgeons.

At this time of the year the Holland bulb salesmen are in Chicago as thick as bees in the clover. This week an unusual number are working the trade here.

The A. Henderson Co. is now very busy shipping out cannas and gladiolus bulbs for forcing. The stock is fine. Mr. Henderson, whose automobile was stolen, recovered it the following day.

Seedsmen report King Humbert canna as the leader in public favor in Chicago. Prices are stiffening on the gladiolus trio that are as popular as ever this season—America, Francis King and Augusta. Seed stock is coming along slowly but surely and dealers are preparing for a good season ahead.

The Leonard Seed Co. is sending out its annual seed catalogue now. This firm is known as Market Gardeners' Seedsmen and makes a specialty of catering to that trade. Three large stores are located in Chicago, the largest at 810 West Randolph street, one on the Northwest side at 4845 Milwaukee avenue and one on the extreme South side, 10912 Michigan avenue.

Miss Louisa Brown is perhaps the most capable and practical seedswoman in the American seed trade today. For thirty years she has held the responsible position of manager of the Leonard Seed Co.'s store, in the center of the largest vegetable market known as Haymarket Square. With a natural aptitude for the work all these years of experience has equipped her with an understanding of the seed business attained by few.

Notes.

Blockade restrictions on importation of clover seed into Norway are abolished.

J. A. Melady, lately with Carter's Tested Seeds, Boston, has accepted a position in the vegetable seed department of Weeber & Don, New York.

Washington, D. C.—The C. B. & Q. R. Co., has been ordered to refund to the Sioux City Seed & Nursery Co., of Sioux City, Iowa, the sum of $363.68, being an overcharge on three cars of clover seed from Cowley and Lovell, Wyo., and Silesia, Mont., to Sioux City, in December, 1915.

PUBLICITY FOR VALENTINE'S DAY.

The Publicity Committee of the Chicago Florists' Club reports that they have sold to date (Jan. 30) 260, 880 valentine stamps, and 7,000 valentine posters, total sales $1,250.00. They give the following few interesting items:

Cleveland Florists' Club purchased 10,000 stamps and 500 posters; the florists of Canton, Ohio, combined their purchases in one order; the florists of Richmond, Indiana, purchased 3,600 stamps and 150 posters; the florists of Buffalo purchased as a body, ordering 10,000 stamps; Dudley & Sons, of Parkers-burg, Va., ordered 5,000 stamps; the florists of Louisville, Ky., ordered 10,000 stamps; about 10,000 stamps were sold to florists on the Pacific Coast; St. Louis Wholesale Cut Flower Co. placed order for 25,000 stamps; many orders were received from Texas; Rochester, N. Y., ordered about 7,000; numerous orders were received from New York City. The records show purchases by the best retail florists of the largest cities in this country.

The committee states that they are still in position to make immediate delivery on orders of any size. Orders will be filled same day received. Hurry up!

The committee was represented at the Carnation Show at Indianapolis with a supply of stamps and posters.

The Directory of Members of the Florists' Telegraph Delivery Association just sent out from Secretary Pochelon's office is a very useful publication. Names and full addresses are given of nearly 400 members in all parts of the country, also names of officers and district representatives and addresses of 81 subscribers to the public-ity fund which now amounts to $1,686.00. Since the last report new members have been added from Louis-iana, California, Pennsylvania and Oklahoma.

The many friends of W. H. Amling, president of the Chicago Florists' Club, are pleased to know that he is rapidly regaining his health.

A. W. Herre, traveling the west central states for the Poehlmann Bros. Co., will be at Indianapolis this week. He reports business in florists' supplies as extremely good.

To date $15,000 worth of posters to advertise Valentine's Day have been sold. This means something like 300,000 and a great impetus to that day's business may be expected.

L. A. Budlong Co. is building another group of four houses, 600 ft. long, duplicating the range built last year. Another 250-horse power steam boiler is being installed by Kroeschell Bros., who also furnished the other one.

Kroeschell Bros. Co. are having an unprecedented winter demand for their boilers, business being more like that of July and August. Manager Fred. Lautenschlager is representing the firm at the meeting in Indianapolis this week.

Harry Balsley has been spending the week here calling upon old friends in the trade. Since he discontinued the manufacture of flower pots, Mr. Balsley has been looking about for something new and it is reported that a good offer have been made him to take up the manufacturing of flower pots again in Terre Haute, Ind., where there is the necessary clay and a substantial backing.

A new wholesale house will open about Feb. 10th at 173 N. Wabash avenue. The name of the firm is Wiltgen & Freres and though the proprietors are both young men they start with considerable experience. Joseph E. Wiltgen is the son of a well-known grower of Evanston and has been brought up in the business. Michael J. Freres has spent 14 years in the wholesale flower market and for the past three years has been with Zech & Mann.

In the comments on the carnation heard in the market some pertinent facts have been brought to light. One who has an enviable reputation of many years standing, has given up growing the carnation because he found it more profitable to grow roses. When asked why he did not advance the price of carnations correspondingly, he replied that it could not be done because the life of a rose when cut averaged three times that of a carnation, and buyers of flowers have learned to discriminate.

PHILADELPHIA.

The American Rose Society had a very interesting committee meeting on the 25th, well attended, and many important matters were discussed in detail in regard to the National Rose Festival to be held in the First Regiment Armory, Broad and Callowhill streets for four days, opening March 20th. The advance prize list is now ready and copies can be had on application to the president, Samuel S. Pen-nock, 1614 Ludlow street, Philadelphia.

PITTSBURGH.

Edward J. Bambach, a designer for the E. C. Ludwig Co., has been seriously ill for the past week with pneumonia.

The Ludwig Floral Co. furnished the decorations for the banquet of the Young Men's Republican Tariff Club in celebration of the birthday anniversary of the late President William McKinley. Approximately 2,000 carnations were used.

Frederick L. James, who recently purchased a farm in Penn township is now negotiating for the erection of two large vegetable houses in the early spring. Mr. James is a son of Edward Stetson James, who has charge of the floral department of the Fort Pitt and William Penn Hotels.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Howard Carney have the sincere sympathy of their friends in the death of their elder son, Hayes Carney, aged twelve years, from pneumonia on January 25. Mr. Carney will be recalled as the former manager of the J. B. Murdoch Co., and who now has a retail business of his own.

WASHINGTON, D. C.

Through an unavoidable error there appeared in a recent issue of HORTICULTURE a statement of the incorporation of the Oehmler Floral Company which was not wholly correct. The officers of this company are Thomas M. Dunbarr, president and treasurer; Gust Wolt, vice-president, and O. A. C. Oehmler, secretary and manager. The business will be conducted at 1329 G street, Northwest, in the store operated for several years by Mr. Oehmler.

Through an oversight we failed to state that the anchor design for the Dewey funeral illustrated in last week's issue was made by George C. Shaffer.

ST. LOUIS.

The annual report of the St. Louis Botanical Garden shows since Sunday openings increased attendance.

On Sunday, January 28th, fire destroyed valuable shrubs at the private greenhouses of Samuel C. Davis. The shrubs were imported and had to be housed in winter. Thirty feet of the greenhouses was destroyed.

On Wednesday, 26 florists left in a special car to attend the carnation meeting at Indianapolis. They will spend Saturday in Chicago and will return to St. Louis, Feb. 5th. In the party were Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Weber, Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Berning, Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Galy, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Rowe, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Windler, Fred. H. Meinhardt, C. A. Kuehn, Charles Meier, Otto Koenig, Julius Bourdet, C. C. Cerney, W. J. Pilcher, Martin Seeger, F. H. Weber, Richard Gubison, M. H. Krusie, Charles Young, D. S. Geddis, Geo. H. Angermueller. These gentlemen will talk Spring Flower Show and will boost St. Louis, the show city.

Cincinnati—Among florists from this city who are attending the American Carnation Society meeting at Indianapolis, Ind., this week are C. E. Critchell, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Peterson, R. Witt-erstaetter, Henry Sheppard, E. G. Gillett, Ray Murphy, Otto Hirschfeld, Fred Bachmeier, Wm. Sunderman and Frank Schneider.

BOSTON.

The party which left the South station, Boston, at 2 o'clock, Monday afternoon, en route for the carnation meeting at Indianapolis, consisted of S. J. Goddard, Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Nicholson, William Nicholson, all of Framingham, Mass.; Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Howard, Milford, Mass.; E. Allan Peirce, Waltham, and Chas. S. Strout, Biddeford, Me. They also carried with them exhibits from the Halifax Gardens, S. J. Goddard, Albert Roper estate, Chas. S. Strout and John A. Nelson.

NEWS NOTES.

Kansas City, Mo.—The municipal greenhouses were destroyed by fire on January 16, and a good many bulbs and plants were ruined. Loss about $3500.

West Hartford, Conn.—The Rose Hill Floral Company has sold its plant and twenty-three acres of land on South Main street, situated on the Newton town line, to Carl A. Carlstrom. Mr. Carlstrom it is expected, will continue the greenhouse business.

Hampden Meadows, R. I.—Fire, which started from some unknown cause, caused damages estimated at $1,000 at the Hampden Meadows greenhouses, January 19. The blaze started in the boiler house, and when discovered had gained great headway. The building was destroyed.

Flower Market Reports

BOSTON Brisk and spirited trading featured this week's market in nearly every instance. An unusual amount of funeral work added an appreciable volume to the routine business and stimulated the demand for white stock. White Killarney had an exceptionally "fat" week. There was no falling off in the colored lines, however, except on last Monday when trading was dull and perfunctory in all departments. The usual favorites are in demand, Ophelia, Hadley and Richmond all going nicely. Carnations have been second in price only, and not far behind at that. Bulbous stock shows nothing unusual in the way of activity, and commands only fair prices. Violets are painfully scarce. Sweet peas are just beginning to come in plentifully.

The Chicago market has nothing especially remarkable about it as the first month of the year closes. Trade, in a general way, is rather better than during the middle of the month when both demand and supply seemed to fall off. The proverbial January thaw came during the past week and with the warmer days came a marked increase in business. More stock was cut and more people were ready to buy it. The shortage is felt now more in short-stemmed roses than anywhere else. Spring flowers are coming in large quantities and while counters seem full of them during the day, all have disappeared when stores close. Some calendulas have sold as high as 6c. and the stock was large and heavy with stems 12 or 14 inches long. This flower has made wonderful growth in favor during the past two years. Carnations are bringing better prices now and while there are quantities of poor grade than are more good ones proportionately than a week ago. Freesia sells well, paper whites are bringing more than formerly. Daffodils are plentiful and there are many tulips.

CINCINNATI Stock is still rather short in this market. Warm, bright spring-like weather the first part of this week undoubtedly will help to bring in larger cuts but up to the time of this writing they had not materialized. The demand for stock is steady and active. Roses are rather scarce and have been selling up as fast as they came in. Choice American Beauties are fairly plentiful but do not move out very quickly. Carnations are more plentiful than they were and continue to favor good property. Bulbous stock is plentiful and meets with a good market. Sweet peas, callas and rubrum are meeting with a good demand. The call for single violets, orchids and lily of the valley is only ordinary.

NEW YORK Exasperatingly drowsy at times and displaying a pleasing snap and ginger erstwhile on some special item this market is jogging along, putting the season of 1916-17 behind it. Nothing sensational has transpired since our last report on market conditions. It is gratifying to note that the quality of flowers offered has never been surpassed and rarely equalled in this section. There are, of course, producers of inferior goods, for these "we have always with us" but on the average stock is very good—almost too good, it would seem, when some of the retailers come face to face with the price. Carnations have taken a substantial descent in price, but roses hold firm as a rule and are not over plentiful. Bulb stock of all kinds are coming in very heavily with a tendency to accumulate. Other stock generally holds along unchanged as to price.

PHILADELPHIA Trading has been a little brisker here while the supply of flowers continues as last reported—on the scarce side. The scarcity is particularly noticeable in roses—especially the shorter grades. American Beauty is very much off crop—a few less every day. Russells and Scott Keys are also much in the same condition—making orders in quantity hard to fill. The scarcity applies to other roses but not to so marked a degree. Carnations are rather more plentiful and continue top-notch as to quality. Orchids are more moderate in price and enough of them for all demands. Gardenias have also dropped in price and the quality in some cases seems under the mark. Sweet peas are going well and continue very fine as to quality. They are one of the best features in the market. Mignonette is very good but for some reason hangs fire. The lily of the valley market is very much improved. Lilies, daffodils and freesias are going very well and at good prices.

The past week has been practically a repetition of its forerunner with very little change in either production, disposal or prices. McKinley Day made the usual inroads on the carnation output. Prospective cold weather with clear, blue skies promises satisfactory results insofar as the production is concerned.

This market has kept up lively. The supply is limited as to roses and carnations, especially. Violets are selling well, also sweet peas.

Prices for the past week have been exceedingly high because of the general shortage of stock. Roses have been in especial demand and orders for these could not be filled in entirety. Red and white varieties are most popular and it has been almost impossible to obtain any quantity of either. The prices range from $8 to $20 per hundred. It was also difficult to procure any considerable quantity of carnations. There is little demand for cattleyas, although they are of very fine quality. The sale and quality of gardenias are improving. Lily of the valley is hanging fire. There are not enough sweet peas to go around. These are among the most popular flowers at this time. Violets are not doing as well as they have been and the prices vary with the demand. Tulips of all colors are selling well. There is quite a scarcity of lilies, only a small quantity of locally grown stock being available.

King Greenhouses

KEEP SUMMER WITH YOU THE WHOLE YEAR ROUND

On account of their sturdy special construction which permits of great strength without the need of heavy shadow casting supports, these houses are so warm and sunny that they are filled with a riot of bloom and fruit when Jack Frost has stripped the garden of its beauty.

The ventilating and heating systems are the result of years of experience in building for professional growers. Things just have to grow in a King.

Write today for Bulletin No. 43. See how beautiful and how productive a greenhouse can be erected for the price you want to pay.

You can't see all of Mr. Stalford's Bar Harbor houses at a glimpse, but here is a half way good peep.

Two of Maine's Live Wires

UP at Bar Harbor, holds forth our genial friend, John Stalford; with his group of Lord & Burnham houses heated by Burnham Boilers.

If you would really know just how live a live wire Mr. Stalford is, next time you are in Bar Harbor, inquire about a bit.

Instead of finding out what he has a hand in, you will soon be wondering if there is anything worth while that he hasn't.

Then at Biddeford, there's Charles Strout, an ex-schoolmaster, of truly masterly accomplishments. Just how masterly some of the growers have learned only too well, when competing against his wonderful carnations. Happily for Mr. Strout, he married a partner as well as a mate. Just how much of the Strout success is due to her exceptional business ability only Mr. Strout knows. Being a really and truly big man, he gives her sweeping credit.

Workroom and Office. Note the Window Boxes. That's John Stalford all Over Again.

Dreer's New White Canna Eureka

CANNAS

Our Own Introductions

Eureka. We consider this the best white flowering Canna for all purposes to which Cannas are devoted. It is of robust constitution, growing four feet high, forming sturdy, shapely plants very quickly. Its free flowering tendency can be readily understood when we chronicle the fact that a small plant set out May 15th, three months later carried 15 immense heads of flowers. These are of a creamy-white, changing in full sun to a pure white. $1.25 per doz.; $8.00 per 100; $75.00 per 1000.

Favorite. There have been many yellow Cannas spotted with carmine or crimson that were good; it is, therefore, particularly interesting to find a variety that in every way eclipses its many predecessors and for which we have singled out this sort. The color is a rich, deep golden-yellow, produced on tall stems high above the foliage. The red dots, which are not too pronounced, add to the piquancy of the flower, without detracting from the golden mass effect. 5 feet. 35 cts. each; $3.50 per doz.; $25.00 per 100.

Orange Bedder. A particularly attractive bedding variety of a bright orange with just sufficient scarlet suffusion to intensify the dazzling mass of color when the wide branching stems are covered with flowers. $1.25 per doz.; $8.00 per 100; $75.00 per 1000.

The Gem. An entirely distinct spotted variety. The immense trusses of flowers are borne on upright branching stems well above the foliage, and are of deep cream or straw-yellow, spotted with deep carmine. $1.25 per doz.; $8.00 per 100; $75.00 per 1000.

One each of the above 4 varieties for 75 cts.

TWO DISTINCT CANNAS—The Last Introductions Received from Germany in the Autumn of 1914

Lahneck. In this variety we have an entirely distinct departure and advance in the assortment of pink Cannas. First of all we have in Lahneck a free grower, producing an abundance of trusses on erect stalks, well above the foliage. The color is difficult to describe and convey an adequate impression of its worth. It is fundamentally rosy, but throughout the flowers there are lines and shadings of scarlet-carmine hues that add much to their brightness. Add to this a narrow pale-gold border and you may form a slight conception of the beauty of this novelty. 75 cts. each; $7.50 per dozen.

Scharfenstein. Another variety that is sure to take a place among the standard sorts as quickly as it becomes known. The beautifully formed, large round florets are produced in compact but graceful trusses well above the green foliage. The color is a unique light red salmon with orange and carmine suffusions that altogether forms a most attractive addition to the range of colors found in Cannas. You will like Scharfenstein. 75 cts. each; $7.50 per dozen.

NEW RED ROSE—DONALD MacDONALD

A new Hawmark Red Rose sent out this year by Alex. Dickson & Sons

We have tested this Rose for Winter forcing for two years, and with us it produces more red roses during the winter than any Rose we have ever grown. It is not a large Rose, but has perfectly formed medium sized flowers that sell at sight. Color bright orange carmine; will not turn blue; because the base of the petals is orange. It is not a summer rose, as it has the same substance as Killarney. We build the plants up until November, and from Thanksgiving until May it is a money maker for the Rose Grower, as no pinching is necessary.

NOTES ON CULTURE OF FLORISTS' STOCK

CONDUCTED BY

John J. M. Farrell

Questions by our readers in line with any of the topics presented on this page will be cordially received and promptly answered by Mr. Farrell. Such communications should invariably be addressed to the office of HORTICULTURE.

"If vain our toil, we ought to blame the culture, not the soil."—Pope.

Bedding Plants

It is always better to allow the growth on stock plants to make enough of headway so that there can be left a couple of eyes of the young wood to follow with another batch of cuttings. If given close attention from now on they will furnish fine material for the cutting bench for weeks to come. Give all your stock plants good light, close to the glass as they want all the sun that can reach them now. The majority of bedding plants will thrive in an intermediate temperature of from 55 to 60 degrees at night, and 70 to 75 with sunshine but those that are of warmer blood will need 8 to 10 degrees more.

Carnation Cuttings

For potting up cuttings use new soil that has been exposed to the action of the weather. Screen through a half-inch mesh and it is important to have it moist enough. Cuttings should be taken in the morning while they are fresh and crisp. Dip them in cool water and trim up in a cool place. Insert as soon as possible in the propagating bench. Spray lightly early every bright morning to keep the foliage moist during the day, but try to have it dry by night. As soon as a cutting is well rooted it does not improve by remaining in the sand any longer. Before potting harden them up a little by gradually giving more sunlight each day, until the roots have pushed far enough to enable them to stand full sun. Cuttings thus treated will take hold much quicker as there will be less wilting after potting.

Chrysanthemums

All slow growing varieties and good new ones should be put in sand and rooted. Keep the sand at near 50 degrees bottom heat with 5 to 8 degrees more top heat. In a north propagating house, one good watering will carry them through until rooted, but where in an ordinary house more or less exposed to sun and ventilation they will take more water and spraying to keep them from wilting. In making a cutting remove the bottom leaves and trim the upper leaves back a little which will allow the air to circulate among the cuttings, thereby lessening the loss by damping. When rooted, pot and place them in a cool house, 45 or 50 degrees at night. Pinch two or three times. They will give an abundance of fine cuttings during April and May when your old stock plants are going to the bad. Pot them as soon as rooted into good fresh soil and keep shaded for a day or two.

Fibrous-Rooted Begonias

The following are all good varieties to grow; Erfordii, Vernon in its several colors, Snow Queen, and semperflorens rosea, Fairy Queen and others. They can be sown in pans that have been well drained, in new loam and leaf mold in equal parts with a fair dash of sand. Fill the pans to within half an inch of the top and on this place a little finely sifted compost and press moderately firm and water. When they have drained, sow the seed evenly over the surface. They do not need to be covered. Place glass and sheets of paper over the pans until the seedlings germinate. Then the pans can be placed in a temperature of about 60 degrees at night. They will want very careful watering until they are big enough to prick out into other flats.

Primulas

It is better to supply the demand, which is good from early in the fall until spring, with stock reared in successive batches, than to rely on the outcome of one or two sowings. From the middle of this month until the end of April sowings should be made at intervals of about four weeks. The first lot, to be sown now, should be seeds of such as Kermesina-splendens, rubra, Chiswick Red and Rosy Morn; also at least one flat of the best strain of Primula obconica; this latter to be followed by another sowing of the same in April. Prepare a mixture of equal parts of new loam, leaf mold and some sand. For the top, sift finely and on this sow the seed and cover very lightly and press firmly. Keep shaded with paper until the seeds start to germinate, which should be in two or three weeks. Place in a close moist house at about 60 degrees at night. When sufficiently large to handle prick out in flats and keep well up to the glass in a temperature of about 50 degrees at night.

Reminders

Keep Spanish iris in a cool house as it resents hard forcing. Do not let the night temperature exceed 50 degrees.

Spiraea japonica and its varieties will now force quite readily. Start them in a brisk heat.

Single violets are now making an abundance of runners. Select the best and root in clean sharp sand. Doubles may be similarly treated.

Repot autumn struck fuchsias and insert more cuttings if they are likely to be needed.

Next Week:—Asparagus; Crotons; Early Asters; Orchids; Sweet Peas; Reminders.

Show arrangement

We take pleasure in presenting this week a diagram showing the plan of the National Rose Festival to be held in Philadelphia, March 20, 21, 22, 23, under the direction of the American Rose Society. It will be seen that this show will be staged to give the effect of one big rose garden. The time is rapidly approaching when all large public flower shows will be laid out on a definite perfected plan in advance. The old method of locating incongruous exhibits without considering their relationship to one another or to the show as a whole, in form, color or character, is bound to disappear and it cannot go too soon. We have very much to learn yet in the art of flower show arrangement, but it is gratifying to see that improvement is well under way.

A "new" old flower day

We are surprised and a bit amused at the claims made by one of our western contemporaries, which has been throwing bouquets at itself for having been responsible four years ago for the inauguration of a new floral holiday—Valentine's Day—and really seems to take itself seriously! The trade press is a good thing. Wherever located it has our good-will absolutely, and when one of its members accomplishes anything for the good of the trade we are glad and don't mind their boasting a little, but there's a limit. The writer of these lines spent some of his youthful years in the retail florist business and can tell our Chicago friend that at that time, forty years and more ago, Valentine's Day was a floral occasion of no small account and with sufficient demand for certain flowers to sometimes affect prices materially. Of course the amount of valentine business done was small as compared with that of the present day, but it bore a favorable relationship to the business as a whole. We refer particularly to Boston but we think the foregoing would also apply to New York, Philadelphia and other places where Cupid is wont to roam.

Is further legislation necessary?

We devote considerable space in this issue to the much-discussed quarantine question. Some of the communications which now appear have been in type for two weeks or longer and should have been used at an earlier date but for the lack of space. The international complications which have occurred in the meantime may perhaps put a somewhat different aspect on the problem from that which existed previously but the subject has lost none of its importance to the American florist and nursery trade and our readers who are at all concerned in the importing, growing or selling of the goods affected by the proposed legislation will do well to peruse carefully the correspondence herewith presented. Of the making of laws there is no end. So far as plant importation is concerned HORTICULTURE agrees that the legislation now on the statute books is all that is needed. Instead of making it more drastic, effort to co-ordinate and simplify what we have would seem to be the better course and such would assuredly meet with the hearty approval and co-operation of the trade.

Carnation classes and values

The "why" of the carnation in its relationships to the market, the grower and the public, proves to be a many angled topic and there is yet much that can be drawn out to the advantage of all concerned and to the future, commercially, of this important crop. It appears to us that the time is not far away when the wide gap between the big "show type" blooms and the old-style every day favorite flower of the people will have to be distinctly recognized in the trade and impressed upon the public, for these two classes serve separate uses and really have but little in common. As one of our correspondents aptly suggests, the production of inferior product from the modern patrician sorts brings only disappointment for the grower and discredit for the carnation. Better, far, for the man who, for whatever reason is growing for the cheap market, to leave the exhibition novelties to the grower who is able to do them creditably and can command an appreciative market at prices according, while he himself sticks to the older breeds which respond better to his methods and can be marketed profitably at a low price. In fine, there should always be a place for both the two-dollars-a-hundred and the two-dollars-a-dozen kinds, provided they are kept distinctly apart and presented accordingly.

ROSE GROWING UNDER GLASS

CONDUCTED BY

Arthur Ruzicka

Questions by our readers in line with any of the topics presented on this page will be cordially received and promptly answered by Mr. Ruzicka. Such communications should invariably be addressed to the office of HORTICULTURE.

Care of Newly Potted Plants

As soon as a batch of cuttings is potted, and set properly on the best and sunniest bench in the house, their care will have begun. A good watering should be given as soon as a number of pots are set on the bench, and if it is a sunny day, the plants should at once be shaded with two thicknesses of newspaper, making sure that the sun does not get a chance to hit the front rows. To prevent this it will be necessary to have the papers hang over the edge of the benches quite a little. It will also be advisable to have them overlap, so there will be no opportunity for the sun to get through. After the sun is well over to the west in the afternoon, take all the papers off and go over the plants quickly with a very fine nozzle, or else press real hard on the nozzle with the finger if an open nozzle is used, and spray the newly potted cuttings well, yet be careful not to get any water into the pots, as the first watering should last until the plants start, which will be about two weeks after they are potted, although root action should begin at once. If the weather is very severe, and the house very dry, see that they are sprayed once or twice during the night. Remember that they should not be drenched, merely sprayed so that the water will lie like dew on the leaves. This will keep the leaves from drying up; also will help soften the eyes, thus encouraging them to break. The night spraying should not be done except when the weather is very cold, when plenty of fire heat has to be used to keep the houses warm. Should the plants be sprayed on warm moist nights, there would surely follow a dose of spot. In the morning they should receive another spraying, after which the papers are applied again as soon as the sun begins to hit the plants. If the house happens to be shaded by its southerly neighbor, then the plants can be allowed to remain uncovered a while longer, but not too long the first few days. The paper can be sprayed over as often as may be necessary, being careful to use a fine spray so as not to have a lot of water standing on the paper to run on the pots later, thus making some very wet. Then in the afternoon the papers are removed and the plants will have lived through their first day in soil. The treatment will be about the same the first four or five days, after which the papers need not be put on until about ten o'clock in the morning, and removed much earlier in the afternoon. This is kept up until finally the shade is left off altogether. Only one thickness of paper need be used after the fourth day. Watch for dry pots along the front rows and moisten them when spraying so that the whole batch will run about even.

Get Ready for Shifting

It will not be very long before the small plants will be ready for a shift, and it will be best to get the three-inch pots all ready and the soil too, so that there will be no delay in the work when the time comes to do it. See that the large pots are all the same size so that there will not be two or three different sizes thus making it almost impossible to keep the rows straight. Use good pots. It will pay. A good pot should be porous, thus giving the soil a chance to get air through its walls, and that is also one reason why pots should be clean and not thickly coated with scum which stops up all pores. The soil need not be so finely screened as for the first potting, and a four-inch potfull of bone meal should be added to each wheelbarrow of soil, also just a little more manure, but nowhere near as much as will be used for the last potting. Manure should be old and finely ground.

Watering the Old Plants

With the thermometer between 10 and zero most of the time, and the wind blowing a gale, plenty of fire heat will have to be applied to the houses to keep them warm. This will mean that the plants will dry out quite fast, and if they happen to be growing they will dry out faster than is expected. For this reason it will be well to look the benches over almost daily, being careful to go right down into the soil when searching for moisture, as it often happens that the soil is quite dry in the bottom of the bench while it appears fairly wet on the surface. If there are only a few dry plants along the front row, then these only should be watered. If however the plants are all more or less inclined to be dry, a thorough watering should be given. Use plenty of water at low pressure, being careful to distribute it well all over the bench, as evenly as possible. Let the water drip freely through the bench and do not worry about the water bill if there does happen to be a pool here and there under the benches. It is absolutely necessary to water heavy so that there will be no dry spots in the benches anywhere. If the benches are wet in places, apply the water just the same, for they will enjoy a little fresh water after they have had the stale water for days. If there are any benches that have not dried out for quite a while, and have not been watered for two weeks or more they had better receive a real good watering even if they are not dry. This will freshen the soil wonderfully thus helping the plants to start along once more.

Tying in the Beauty Houses

With the rush of potting and making cuttings do not neglect even a bench of Beauties, for once they are let go it will take an awful lot of work to get them into hand again, and it is still too early in the season to let them go to pieces as with a little care they can be made to produce fully as much if not more than they have since they were planted. As the season advances some of the blind wood can be removed while tying is in progress, also bear in mind the remains of the long stemmed flowers that were cut down to the wire, but had been bent down previously. If these are removed it will give the eyes that remain a chance to break again. Watch out for plants that do not have much top to carry, and see that the buds that may appear on these are removed so that they will have a better chance to take the water and feed that is applied. If any plants are cut off real badly they had better be marked by scattering some lime around them, and keeping the water away from them while watering. Not having much growth they will not need much water.

THE PLANT QUARANTINE PROJECT

Editor of HORTICULTURE:

Dear Sir:—My attention is directed to the letter from "Importer" in your Dec. 30 issue, also to John C. Wister's reply in your Jan. 20 issue. Since "Importer" (whose phraseology reveals his identity to many of us) pays state, city and Federal taxes, he surely has a right to protest against unreasonable interference with his legitimate business interests—especially when that interference comes from men in public service whose policy should be destructive only as applied to plant pests, but constructive and helpful as applied to business.

Your correspondent censures you for publishing "Importer's" letter, but is not HORTICULTURE a forum as its name implies? Is not its mission partly to protect and promote the welfare of Horticulture? "Importer" merely says in his own way what the retiring Governor of Ohio recently said—that "the realization had come to him that business was being inspected and regulated to death," while Mr. Wister uses old stock arguments that have been dunned into our mentality for so many years that we almost wish they were true, so that they would cease. The fact that you published both articles indicates a commendable sense of fairness and patience.

In most instances the importer is merely the agent for the importing florists or nurseryman; his services are required largely to enable the real importer to comply with the increasing number of Customs and Entomological regulations, he promotes American Horticulture by helping supply it with the necessary raw materials, and he is not in any way responsible for the annual damage of 700 million dollars (or is it billions) to our farm crops or forests.

The fact seems to be entirely overlooked that most of the imported pests and diseases do not come on commercial shipments, but from remote parts of the world from which the Department of Agriculture and other experimental institutions alone import, yet the measure proposed by the American Forestry Association to which "Importer" refers, seeks to place an absolute quarantine on every form of plant life—except what is consigned to the Dept. of Agriculture.

To refer only to the diseases which Mr. Wister mentions. Was not the gypsy moth imported by one of our entomologists? Did not the white pine blister rust come in on a shipment from a German firm who grows stock only for forestry purposes? Did the asparagus beetle, the cabbage worm, the onion maggot come on commercial shipments to nurserymen or florists? did any florist or nurseryman ever import any cabbages, onions, or asparagus?

Our friend "Importer" asks why we cannot combat these pests if Europe can, but I have a different reason than the one Mr. Wister gives. The Europeans cultivate the birds that live on insects; their inspectors are trained men and do not report a bad case of "crown gall" on Manetti stocks because of the callous at the base of the cuttings; they are supposed to know their business and attend strictly to that business.

The recent Forestry conference was attended by the forestry and lumber interests, also by several prominent entomologists. I listened to more misstatements than I ever heard before in the same time, no opportunity was given for discussion after each paper, but the responsibility for about every pest, from the cotton boll weevil to the wheat rust was laid at the door of the nurserymen and florists, and resolutions were unanimously adopted endorsing an absolute embargo on all plant and tree life in future—for the protection of our national forests and crops. Then I left.

Many of these men were eminent scientists, most of them no doubt fair-minded men, but how much do such men know about the commercial end of the florist business—the production of the plants and flowers they buy at Christmas and Easter? Their proposed embargo would shut out such indispensable items as Japanese lily bulbs lily of the valley pips, French and Dutch bulbs, Manetti stocks, etc. What disease could valley pips or Japanese lilies bring in that could affect our forests or crops?

The old argument is always advanced that in this broad land of ours anything can be produced that is produced elsewhere. That applies perhaps to manufactures, but not always to the products of nature. Nature drops her favors in widely scattered localities—not always within our borders. Kentias grow naturally only on Lord Howe Island; you could hardly find it on the map. Many imported items can be grown here—but not in a commercial sense. We can grow lily of the valley pips in our back yard—but which of our growers would force them?

A successful florist naturally loves plants or trees; a plant that is dry asks for water in the language he understands. A nurseryman will get out of his wagon to relieve a wayside tree from a nest of caterpillars. An average one is willing to subordinate his own interests to the general welfare at any time, but he asks the State to keep their property fairly clean so that he can keep his nurseries or greenhouses really clean, and he objects to having his business unnecessarily dislocated—especially when that dislocation would not reduce the pests that affect our forests or farm crops to any degree.

The Federal Horticultural Board of Washington consists of bureau chiefs of the Department of Agriculture. It has power to quarantine any foreign country or locality from which any pest does come—or might come—a power which it uses with discretion and in co-operation with not only our most eminent entomologists, but with the nursery and florist interests, and I think that all matters with regard to quarantine can be safely left in its hands.

JAMES MCHUTCHISON.

Editor HORTICULTURE:

Prior to the passage of the "Plant Quarantine Law" of 1912, agitation was worked up by lectures, magazine articles, pamphlets, etc., with the evident object of creating an atmosphere favorable to its passage. The impression was given that about all of the insect pests and plant diseases that affect our forests and farm crops were imported into the United States by selfish nurserymen and florists—along with the plants and nursery stock which they imported from Europe. This propaganda resulted in the passage of the Plant Quarantine Act in 1912, though the agitation still continues.

To operate the "Plant Quarantine Act" the Federal Horticultural Board was created with headquarters in Washington, D. C.; it consists of five bureau chiefs of the Department of Agriculture, with Dr. C. L. Marlatt as chairman. All of these men are well qualified for their duties and though the law gives them almost autocratic powers, power to quarantine any foreign country or locality, they have used this power with commendable discretion and moderation. But this does not satisfy a group of State Entomologists who demand nothing less than an absolute quarantine against the importation of plant life from all foreign sources.

At a meeting of Entomologists about a year ago, resolutions were passed which in effect requested the Federal Horticultural Board to put this absolute quarantine into effect, but as no action was taken, the Entomologists interested the American Forestry Association in its plans (this association consists largely of foresters, entomologists, lumber men and others interested in our forests). Naturally such men know little about the commercial side of the nursery or florist business, but when they were informed (by men who should know better) that an absolute quarantine of all imported plant life was necessary for the protection of our forests and farm crops, they took up the subject with enthusiasm and called a special conference in Washington, D. C., to adopt measures to stop importation—even of the raw materials.

The conference was held on January 19th, myself as chairman of the Legislative Committee of the S. A. F. and O. H. and J. McHutchison of New York, a member of my committee being present on behalf of the S. A. F. The Legislative Committee of the American Association of Nurserymen was also there, besides several individual members of the Nurserymen's and Florists' organizations. Many speeches and papers were delivered advocating an absolute quarantine, but no opportunity was given for discussion after each paper, so the horticultural side of the question was not voiced. Resolutions were unanimously adopted favoring an absolute quarantine, and to show what it means to the florists and nurserymen, I quote from the proposed bill the first two sections as follows:

Section 1. That it shall be unlawful for any person to import or offer for entry into the United States any nursery stock. PROVIDED, That the Secretary of Agriculture may import, grow and propagate nursery stock in small quantities for experimental and scientific purposes, upon such conditions and under such regulations as he may advise.

Section 2. That for the purpose of this Act the term "nursery stock" shall include all field-grown florists' stock, trees, shrubs, vines, cuttings, grafts, scions, buds, bedding plants, all herbaceous plants, bulbs, roots, and other plants and plant products for propagation, except field, vegetable, flowers and tree seeds.

This bill, if passed, will shut out practically everything the florists now import, Azalea indica, bay trees and araucarias, valley pips for forcing or any other purpose, Jap lily bulbs, French bulbs, Dutch bulbs, Manetti stocks used for greenhouse grafting of roses, orchids and nursery stock of every kind. It would not only shut out Dracaena plants, but the canes which are necessary to produce them. It would shut out Kentia plants—also the seeds necessary to grow our own plants. "What for?" you ask; the answer is "To save our forests." If any member of the S. A. F. thinks it necessary to stop the importation of valley pips, Manetti stocks, or Jap lily bulbs to protect our forests, I would like to hear him.

Arrangements were made in the Conference Committee so that the measure would not be introduced in Congress until committees from the National Associations of Florists and Nurserymen had an opportunity of conferring with a special committee of the American Forestry Association appointed for that purpose. This arrangement shows the right spirit, and while the special committee consists mostly of State Inspectors we hope to be able to show them that while their plan, if put into operation, would put back the florist business many years, it would not go far in protecting our forests or farm crops or reduce the diseases which afflict them to any appreciable degree.

The measures that have threatened our interests for several years have now reached a crisis. We will need on our committee men of ability who are willing to subordinate their personal interests to the welfare of the trade—men who understand why stock is imported, why at least the raw materials are necessary to our welfare—men who know something about insect pests and plant diseases and who can adequately express their views.

Since our policy will likely have to be defined before our annual convention in August (The Nurserymen's Convention being held in June), I will seek the advice of the executive committee of the S. A. F. on the subject, but as the matter is such a vital one to many of our members, I deem it wise to inform the general trade through the medium of your columns and trust you will give this report the publicity you consider it deserves.

WM. F. GUDE,

Chairman, Legislative Committee, of the S. A. F. and O. H.

Editor HORTICULTURE:

Referring to the resolutions passed at the recent meeting of State Foresters and Inspectors in Washington, D. C., and the view held by various Federal Government officials I think the stand taken by these gentlemen in this matter to be altogether too drastic.

If a disease breaks out among our people we try to stamp this out by means of prevention of its spread and by cure, not by prohibiting immigration, unless the disease is prevalent in local parts of a certain country and entry is forbidden from that particular locality until the disease has been controlled. This is the way we have been treating the plant disease question, and with good results; why should we have to depart from this, now that the Government has the power to restrict and forbid the importation of most any plant known to be infested?

The absolute quarantine will work a terrible hardship on the growers from other countries and be disastrous to several business enterprises in this country. If it could be conclusively shown that it would prevent the spread of pests and diseases, it might have to be established, but no one can prove this to be an absolute certainty because there are so many other carrying agencies besides plants that we should have to build a Chinese wall around the U. S. A. with mosquito netting over the top of it.

Several countries have established organizations to combat these evils and notably Holland has been doing pioneer work of this kind. For the past twenty years there has been established in that country a phytopathological service equalled by that of no other country in its efficiency. It is well known that even the most rigid inspectors in these States have to admit that all nursery stock coming from Holland is practically free from pest or disease and so effective have been the measures instituted that France and Belgium shortly before the war sent several of their inspectors to see how it was done.

Professor Ritzema Boss has been at the head of that Government Bureau ever since its establishment. With a competent staff of assistants, appointed by the Government after careful examination, stationed at the different growing centres, men who make it their life work, they absolutely control the situation with wonderful effectiveness. Not only is every nursery inspected during the summer but all plants are again looked over before being packed at the time they are ready to be placed in the boxes and not until they are found to be absolutely clean is a permit issued allowing the owner to pack and ship.

All infested stock is rejected and ordered destroyed at once and this is done. The large nurseries all have their own disinfecting material and appliances to work with, with competent workmen. The small growers are assisted by an organization established by the Pomological Society of Boskoop, supplying the disinfection service at a nominal cost per acre and no grower can afford to go without it, so low is the cost and effective the work. Again in every season bulletins are issued warning growers of the approaching breeding seasons and telling how to exterminate the evils.

It can readily be seen that such a complete service makes it practically impossible for any pest or disease to come from Holland to other States. The proposed restrictions would simply result in a material loss to our nurserymen as well as to the consumer.

PLANTS CERTIFICATED AT BOSTON.

Editor HORTICULTURE:

I notice in the January 27th issue of The Florists' Exchange an editorial under the caption of "Plants Certificated at Boston," and I am wondering why the writer should single out only the plants which were certificated and say nothing whatever about those which received honorable mention and medals.

While I have not all the data in regard to these awards at hand, I think it safe to say if the whole list were published a very different impression would be given.

Since the early days of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society the recognition new and improved varieties of plants, fruits and vegetables by special awards has been an important part of its activities and it is justly proud of the work done along these lines. Its records go back for many years and about all the introductions of worth can be found therein.

The awards are made by standing committees appointed each year. These committees are composed of men who have the reputation of the Society at heart and who look well to the quality of an exhibit before placing an award upon it, feeling that only the best and most distinct should bear the stamp of approval of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society.

The writer of the article referred to enumerates nine novelties which received certificates and makes the statement that "Surely there is something wrong somewhere." "What is it?" This remark seems to me to be a little ambiguous, but I take it that he thinks there is something wrong with the Massachusetts Horticultural Society as he professes to be astonished by the small number of novelties awarded certificates. I can hardly believe that he would have us award a certificate to every novelty that is shown, good, bad or indifferent, for if we did they would not be worth the paper they were printed on. If there is "something wrong somewhere" he must look elsewhere for the cause and there is a bare possibility that it might be found in the actual number of novelties presented and in the quality of them. In the matter of new carnations, honorable mention is the highest award made to a variety shown for the first time. It must prove its value before it can hope to get a certificate or higher award, and in this connection the committee take cognizance of any action taken by the American Carnation Society in regard to the variety in question, believing that in making such awards to plants or flowers which have become of such importance that special societies have been formed to care for their interests, the wise plan is to co-operate and corroborate rather than act without information, which means much to future growers.

CLUBS AND SOCIETIES

AMERICAN SWEET PEA SOCIETY.

The following prizes will be offered at the ninth annual exhibition of the American Sweet Pea Society to be held under the auspices of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society, Horticultural Hall, Boston, July 7-8, 1917. This list includes the prizes offered by the Massachusetts Horticultural Society, and all offers of special prizes received by the American Sweet Pea Society to date. Additional prizes will be offered in the official schedule to be issued March 1.

SECTION A. PRIVATE GARDENERS.

1. Arthur T. Boddington Co., Inc., prize—Challenge Silver Cup, value $50. To be won twice by the same exhibitor for a collection of 25 distinct varieties of Sweet Peas, not less than 20 sprays to a vase, shown with sweet pea foliage only. We will also award to competitors each year cash prizes of $25 (1st), $15 (2d), $10 (3d).
2. Carter's Tested Seeds, Inc.—For three tubs of Sweet Peas, any color, in bloom. $10 (1st), $5 (2d).
3. Thomas J. Gray Co.—For 6 vases of Sweet Peas, 6 distinct varieties, 20 sprays to a vase. A cut-glass vase, value $15.
4. Lord & Burnham Co.—For display arranged for effect in a space of 3x4 ft. not to exceed 3 ft. in height. Gypsophila, grasses or other foliage may be used. A gold watch, gold medal, or $20 in cash.
5. Henry A. Dreer, Inc.—For vase of Edward Cowdy. $5 (1st), $2 (2d).
6. Do. for vase of New Miriam Beaver. $5 (1st), $2 (2d).
7. Do. for vase of R. F. Felton. $5 (1st), $2 (2d).
8. J. M. Thorburn & Co.—For 12 vases of Sweet Peas, 12 distinct varieties, 20 sprays to a vase. Silver cup, value $25.

SECTION B. PRIVATE GARDENERS AND AMATEURS.

9. W. Atlee Burpee & Co.—For 12 vases of Sweet Peas in 12 distinct varieties, 20 sprays to a vase, correctly named. Silver cup, value $25, and $10 (1st), $10 (2d), $5 (3rd).
 10. Stump & Walter Co.—For 6 vases of Sweet Peas, 6 distinct varieties, 20 sprays to a vase. $10 (1st), $5 (2d).
 11. Malvern Greenhouses.—For vase of 25 sprays of Hercules. $10 (1st), $7.50 (2d), $5 (3rd).
 12. Peter Henderson & Co.—For the best vase of 50 sprays of mixed Spencer Sweet Peas containing 12 varieties, $10.
 13. R. & J. Farquhar & Co.—For the best 6 distinct varieties of Sweet Peas growing and blooming in pots or tubs not less than 9 or more than 12 inches inside diameter, one variety in each pot or tub. A silver cup.
 14. Sutton & Sons.—For the best display of Sweet Peas arranged for effect on a round table about 4 ft. in diameter. Gypsophila, grasses and sweet pea or other foliage may be used. A silver cup.
 15. Henry F. Michell Co.—For the best 6 vases of Spencer Sweet Peas, 6 distinct varieties, 20 sprays of each. Silver medal.
 16. Do. for the best 20 sprays of Hercules. Bronze medal.
 17. Mt. Desert Nurseries.—For 8 vases of Sweet Peas, 8 distinct varieties, 20 sprays to a vase. $12 (1st), $8 (2d).
- The National Association of Gardeners' silver medal will be awarded to the member of the association making the most meritorious exhibit in Sections A and B.

SECTION C. AMATEURS.

18. Joseph Breck & Sons.—For 3 vases, 3 varieties, 15 sprays to a vase. $5 (1st), $3 (2d), $2 (3rd).
 19. Do. 15 sprays any white variety. $3 (1st), $2 (2d), $1 (3rd).
 20. Do. 15 sprays any pink. $3 (1st), $2 (2d), $1 (3rd).
 21. Do. 15 sprays any lavender. $3 (1st), $2 (2d), $1 (3rd).
 22. Do. 15 sprays any crimson or scarlet. $3 (1st), $2 (2d), $1 (3rd).
 23. Do. 15 sprays any cream. $3 (1st), $2 (2d), $1 (3rd).
 24. Do. 15 sprays any maroon or purple. $3 (1st), $2 (2d), $1 (3rd).
- The Secretary's Prize. A sweepstake

SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS AND ORNAMENTAL HORTICULTURISTS.

Department of Plant Registration.

The Conard & Jones Company of West Grove, Pa., submit for registration the cannas described below. Any person objecting to the registration or to the use of the proposed names is requested to communicate with the secretary at once. Failing to receive objection to the registration, the same will be made three weeks from this date.

Aurora (Wintzer's)—Green foliage; plants 5 ft. high; good habit; large clusters of flowers of a brilliant scarlet; petals broadly edged with pure yellow.

Snow Queen—Flowers 6 inches across, of crystal whiteness, revealing faint opalescent flashes of fairy pink spots. The general effect is distinctly white. Petals are 2½ inches broad and of firm texture. Foliage is green and plant about 4ft. in height.

Druid Hill—Dark stems and deep red flowers; foliage nearly like "Black Beauty;" of unusual grace and effectiveness; high; well-poised heads of average sized flowers; color combination unmatched.

Morning Glow—A most picturesque color contrast; foliage olive-green striped and veined with bronze, flowers an exquisite soft shell-pink with orange-red center.

National Flower Show, St. Louis, Missouri, April 6-15, 1918.

The following prizes have been offered by Henry A. Dreer, Inc., Philadelphia, Pa., to be competed for by private growers only:

Hardy Perennial Plants—Best collection in flowers, covering not less than 100 sq. ft. First prize: Gold medal, value $50.00 or purse of $50.00 in gold. Second prize: Silver medal, value $25.00, or purse of $25.00 in gold.

Hybrid Tea Roses—Best collection of varieties, covering not less than 100 square feet. First prize: Gold medal, value $50.00, or purse of $50.00 in gold. Second prize: Silver medal, value $25.00, or purse of $25.00 in gold.

Hybrid Tea Rose, Los Angeles, Best Six Plants in Bloom—First prize, $10. Second prize, $5.00.

Fancy Caladiums, 12 best plants, not less than 6 inch pots—First prize, $10.00. Second prize, $5.00.

Cyrtomium Rochfordianum Compactum. Best plant—First prize, $5.00. Second prize, $3.00.

Astilbe Arendsi Hybrida. Best six plants in bloom—First prize, $8.00. Second prize, $4.00.

Bletia Hyacinthina. Best plant in bloom—First prize, $5.00. Second prize, $3.00.

Iris Germanica. Best plants, 6 varieties, 8 inch pans in bloom. First prize, $5.00. Second prize, $3.00.

JOHN YOUNG, Secy.

AMERICAN CARNATION SOCIETY.

Our report last week covered the major part of the proceedings and exhibition news from the Indianapolis meeting of this society. Probably one of the most impressive object lessons, from the standpoint of the growers was the splendid condition of the flowers from the extreme East. The long keeping qualities of carnation blooms when well grown and properly handled was impressively demonstrated in the exhibit of C. S. Strout, for example, which had traveled 1,500 miles from Biddeford, Maine, and only one flower was found not in perfect condition on arrival at Indianapolis.

Besides the regular carnation exhibits on which we made full report last week, there were six well-arranged table decorations by the leading retail florists of the city, also the following:

Rose Pink Ophelia, from Breitmeyer, Mt. Clemens, Mich.; Rose Mrs. Sarah Yeats, by J. E. Yeats, Champaign, Ill.; Rose Red Radiance, from Gude Bros. Co., Washington, D. C.; Dwarf Solanum capsicastrum, by C. Hagenburger, West Mentor, O.; Chrysanthemum Hamburg Late White, from C. T. Guenther, Hamburg, N. Y.; Chrysanthemum Mistletoe, from H. P. Smith, Piqua, O.; Cattleyas, by W. J. and M. S. Vesey, Fort Wayne, Ind.; Begonias, by J. A. Peterson, Cincinnati; Sweet peas, from Hartje & Elder, Indianapolis, Peter Weiland, New Castle, Ind., and Deerfield Nurseries, Deerfield, Ill.; Freesias, from Zech & Mann, Chicago.

The Hitchings & Co., sweepstakes cup offered in the 100-bloom class was won by Cottage Gardens Co., Queens, N. Y.

Prof. Lempke, of the University of Ill., read a paper on Carnation Yellows, which brought out considerable discussion. A talk by W. A. Clarke, of Pittsburgh, Pa., on the Marketing of Carnations was well discussed.

J. A. Peterson gave a very enjoyable stereopticon lecture on Begonias and Cyclamen.

The visitors enjoyed an automobile ride to several of the local growers' places.

MASSACHUSETTS HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY.

There were some rather interesting plants shown at the small exhibition held Saturday, February 3d. First prize was awarded to Mrs. John L. Gardner for six plants of Begonia Gloire de Lorraine. Mrs. Gardner also received 1st prize for six plants of Primula sinensis, A. M. Davenport, 2d. A silver medal was awarded to George Melvin for Dendrobium mobile virginialis. Honorable mention was awarded to Thomas Roland for an exhibit of Begonias, sports of Gloire de Lorraine; also to Alfred E. Parsons, Manchester, Mass., for a new seedling of Primula malacoides. Vote of thanks to Mrs. Gardner for an exhibit of Senecio petasites, and gratuity to Eric H. Wetterlow of Manchester, Mass., for hybrid primulas, a cross between Primula stellata and Primula sinensis. Mrs. Gardner was also awarded a gratuity for Aphelandra aurantiaca Roezlii.

NEBRASKA STATE FLORISTS' SOCIETY.

A well-attended meeting, useful discussions and a very enjoyable banquet were the features of the annual session of this society at Lincoln on Tuesday, January 16. Officers were elected as follows: President, C. H. Frey of Lincoln; vice-president, G. M. Johnston, of Beatrice; secretary-treasurer, Lewis Henderson, of Omaha; directors, W. B. Yule of Lincoln, J. R. Simanton of Falls City, W. E. Davidson of Holdrege.

A credit committee consisting of Roy Wilcox, of Des Moines, Ia.; Frank X. Stuppy, of St. Joseph, Mo.; C. H. Frey, of Lincoln, Neb.; C. P. Mueller, of Wichita, Kan., and J. J. Hess, of Omaha, was appointed. There was a good display of flowers for which prizes were awarded as follows:

Fifty roses—Lewis Henderson, Omaha, 1st; Simanton & Pence, Falls City, 2nd.

Fifty carnations—J. K. Hiltner, Lincoln, 1st; Simanton & Pence, 2nd. One hundred sweet peas—J. K. Hiltner, 1st; Simanton & Pence, 2nd.

Display of cut flowers—Simanton & Pence, 1st; Lewis Henderson, 2nd.

The speakers at the banquet included Chas. Green, Fremont; J. J. Hess, Omaha; Chas. Mueller, Wichita, Kan.; P. J. Foley, Chicago; Roy Wilcox, Council Bluffs, Ia.; J. S. Wilson, Des Moines, Ia.; M. H. Levine, New York.

HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY OF NEW YORK.

An exhibition of plants and flowers will be held on Saturday and Sunday, February 17th and 18th, at the American Museum of Natural History, 77th street and Central Park West. It will be held in the foyer of that building, which affords much better facilities for display than did the room formerly used for this purpose.

Classes are provided for cut blooms of orchids, roses, sweet peas, mignonne, snapdragons, narcissus, freesias, early tulips, Darwin tulips, flowering shrubs and trees. Premiums are also offered for plants of schizanthus, cyclamen, amaryllis, lilies, primulas, cinerarias, and ferns. Special prizes may also be awarded for worthy exhibits not provided for in the schedule. Schedules are now ready for distribution and will be sent on application to the secretary, George V. Nash, Mansion, New York Botanical Garden, Bronx Park, New York City.

There will be a meeting of the society on Saturday, February 17th, in the West Assembly Hall, at 4 P. M., at which an illustrated lecture will be delivered by Mrs. Max Farrand, on "Roses, and the New Rose Garden at the New York Botanical Garden."

GEORGE V. NASH, Secy.

At the annual meeting of the New Bedford, (Mass.) Horticultural society, the following officers were elected: President—L. J. Hathaway, Jr.; vice-president—Dr. Garry deN. Hough; financial secretary—Walter K. Smith; secretary—J. M. Taber; treasurer—W. A. Luce; executive committee—Frank G. Tripp, chairman; Arthur E. Griffin, C. W. Young, Joseph S. Figueiredo, David F. Roy, Joseph W. Webster, James H. McVicker, Andrew J. Fish, Joseph A. Niolet, J. Arnold Wright; entertainment committee—Frank C. Barrows, chairman; James H. McVicker, Nathaniel P. Sowle.

The executive committee will make arrangements for four shows this year.

The "Why" Of The Carnation

"Economic Interminism" guides our every act, hence the distributor of bulbs, flowers or plants sells those giving greatest "profits." The carnation in some sections is not in highest favor, but can we expect more? At Christmas, Easter, etc., we crowd the price high, handle fully developed stock the keeping quality of which is worthless; no florist would for a moment accept the stock—pay the price, too—never! It would prove more profitable to keep average prices a bit higher and not so high at Christmas, etc.

Today carnations have so much disease—in recent years entirely too much so—which gives much of the stock an off-color, impairs their keeping value, and yields a lot of inferior blooms. Several sorts sent out in the past several years have shown up 50 to 100 per cent. worthless because of disease. This season it shows in the inferiority of the blooms; next year the cuttings taken from these plants give stock that is worthless to bench. Yet in buying cuttings one gets these all counted in. No one can produce clean, healthy cuttings for $15.00 or $20.00 per 1,000, but so long as it is price rather than quality we must cater to price, and low price must carry with it poor quality, and poor quality cuttings means low quality blooms—no profit.

By careful selection we have Philadelphia that is a joy to behold, also others in the same class; but we cannot sell the cuttings at "market rates." Today we received 2,000 of a 1917 novelty, a lot of it reeking with disease. About one-third should never have been put in sand, or the plants in the bench, last fall. It cannot give results. These sick ones go back and in return I will be roasted as a "kicking quibbler," impossible to please. But why should I accept and pay for diseased stock?

If I keep them all, when ready to go into the field I shall have about 1,750; when ready to bench, 1,400; in March, 1,000 fit for fine blooms and cuttings of health.

Our introducers must send out healthier cuttings, give greater care in propagating and selecting, and less disease. No certificate should be granted nor award made unless the stock is in a high health condition; no novelty that runs as high in diseased ones as several recent ones can be anything but chilling to the enthusiastic grower. If the exacting grower can show benches nearly 100 per cent. perfect our breeders ought to come to a close 100 per cent. also.

The A. C. S. should test out all novelties to guard against the undesirable ones. No one ought to object if necessary to ask more for novelties. If they test out O. K., then we can afford to pay more.

If carnations are "undesirable" in some sections, better quality, better prices, better growing, growers, wholesalers, retailers, ought to bring up the remedy.

TOMATO SEED FOR YOUR 1917 CROP

You will get an enormous crop of Tomatoes from Bolgiano's Tomato Seeds this year. Our Seed was saved from one of the largest crops we have ever had, due to being favored by weather conditions. The vines were loaded with Large, Solid, Red Fruit. We know positively by planting Seed from this "Big Crop" your yield will be much larger than if you had bought seed grown where the weather conditions were not favorable.

Bright fresh quality at right prices will always be demandable—at least such is the observation of Canal Dover, O. C. BETSCHER.

We have in the St. Louis flower market at all times to contend with a large supply of "junk." When a grower endeavors to supply the market with first class stock he should be rewarded with a fair price, which would compel a flower buyer to consider the flower a luxury. We western folks hear about Boston retailing carnations in mid-winter at $2.00 per dozen. At the carnation meeting held in St. Louis in 1916 many visitors, who saw the splendid blooms grown in the east, remarked, "we do not get such carnations on sale here, but would the buyers be willing to pay the price that such flowers should bring?" I venture to say they would if they were educated to it. On the other hand if Al stock can be as easily grown and in as great a quantity as inferior grades then there should be prices established as nearly as possible to make it profitable to all the hands this stock passes through on the way to the consumer. It seems to me that parties buying flowers for cash and carrying same away with them should be able to buy at a cheaper rate than parties desiring delivery and credit. A retailer could in such a case certainly be satisfied with a less profit. Thus a retailer paying 4c. for a carnation could turn his money over at 75c. per dozen, but with delivery and credit he would have to charge one dollar. Could not this be discussed? Should like to hear from others.

St. Louis.

West Hartford, Ct.—Carl A. Carlstrom has purchased the greenhouses and 23 acres of land on South Main street from the Rose Hill Floral Co.

Scranton, Pa.—Members of the Scranton Florists' Club followed their usual custom on McKinley Day and placed a wreath of carnations on the bust of McKinley on the Federal building lawn at Washington avenue and Linden street.

Belfast, Ire.—Alex. Dickson & Sons, Ltd., have completed and moved into their new and extensive premises which will be known as "Hawmark Buildings." It is a five story structure with a frontage of 52 feet of much architectural beauty and elegant appointments.

New Haven, Conn.—A. P. Horne, of Manchester, N. H., was elected president of the New England Nurserymen's Association at the closing session of its annual convention here January 30. Other officers chosen include: Secretary D. A. Clarke, Fiskville, R. I.; treasurer, V. A. Vanicek, Newport, R. I.

Philadelphia—Mark L. Ruck, late of Binghamton, N. Y., a prominent and experienced man in the retail flower business, has taken charge of the Ross establishment at 60th and Market St., which has lately been rebuilt and converted into one of the most up-to-date flower stores. Many thousands of dollars have been spent in making this old store the youngest on the map and a visit to same will be worth while to note all the improvements and congratulate Mr. Ross and greet the new manager.

BOSTON

Weis, the florist, with store on Hyde Park avenue in the new Dana block, has discontinued his business here.

H. Barrows, of Brockton, Mass., has taken charge of a large private estate in Florida and the business is now being handled by R. B. Frost.

The parents of Miss Sadie Mitchell have announced her engagement to Adrian F. Kommers, of Newtonville. Miss Mitchell has been the head bookkeeper for Henry M. Robinson & Co. for nearly two years.

Prof. Arno H. Nehrling of the Massachusetts Agricultural College gave an illustrated lecture in Horticultural Hall on Saturday, Feb. 3. His subject was "Perennials We Should Grow." There was an audience of between four and five hundred present.

The carnation party leaving Boston for Indianapolis got their flowers, about 3,000 blooms in all, there in perfect order and brought home fourteen 1st prizes, ten 2nd prizes and one certificate of merit. C. S. Strout, out of eight entries got six 1st and two 2nd, and C. S. Goddard made an equal capture. They each took along about 800 blooms. "That's going some."

On Friday, Feb. 16, a garden conference of women, Mrs. Joseph S. Leach, chairman, will be held in Horticultural Hall. At 10.30, W. N. Craig will speak on "The Home Vegetable Garden," with a discussion following, led by Miss Helen Holmes. Mrs. Effie S. Nowers will speak on "The Home Fruit Garden and Apple Orchard," with Miss Sarah Brassill as leader of the discussion. "Making Use of the Vacant Lot for Gardens" will be the subject of an address by Wilfrid Wheeler. At the afternoon session Loring Underwood will give a message on the planning of the home grounds through his lecture, "Old New England Gardens," illustrated by the new process of direct color photographs used as lantern slides. Miss Louise Hetzer, of the Lowthorpe School of Landscape Architecture for Women at Groton, will speak on "Succession of Bloom in the Flower Garden." Miss Annie Burke, director of boys' and girls' agricultural work in Plymouth County, will speak on "Children's Home and School Gardens," and several pupils will give an account of their garden experiences. All women interested in these subjects are invited to attend and to take part.

WASHINGTON, D. C.

Mr. and Mrs. William F. Gude and George W. Hess were members of the delegation which recently visited Monticello to look over the property with a view to acquiring it by purchase for the purpose of making it a second Mount Vernon.

The mountain laurel was last week advocated by a delegation of women as the national flower. The House Committee on Library had before it the bill providing for such recognition. W. F. Gude, for the S. A. F., who was the first witness, told the members of having inserted a request in the florists' trade papers for an expression of opinion and that with the exception of one, all the responses favored the mountain laurel.

CHICAGO.

A new flower store has been opened by Mrs. Marie Smith & Co., at 5225 N. Clark St., under the name of the Clark St. Posey Shop.

J. J. Mohrley has purchased the store known as the Fisher Flower Shop at 23 S. Crawford Ave., and will change the name to the Mohrley Flower Shop.

No one is complaining of results as the January sales are footed up and it is fair to infer that the month averaged well. John Michaelson states that the E. C. Amling Co.'s sales were $7400 ahead of those of last January.

R. Schiller of the Gift Shop learns that his brother-in-law in El Paso, Tex., is critically ill and that his demise may occur at any moment, consequently no date will be set at present for his wedding, which was scheduled for this month.

A telegram has been received announcing the safe arrival in southern California of E. C. Amling and H. N. Bruns and their families, where they will spend the balance of the winter. With the mercury away down in Chicago, friends are a bit envious of their escape.

The question of charging customers for boxes and packing has been revived with the advance in the cost of lumber, paper, etc., and was the main object of a meeting of wholesalers on Jan. 30. The subject was not decided and after discussion, was left to another meeting, Feb. 6.

NEWS NOTES.

Cromwell, Conn.—Ground has been broken on Main street for a building to be used as a rooming house to take care of the large number of out-of-town young men now employed at the greenhouses. This spring a new building is to be erected to be used as a clubhouse to give the men a place for social recreation, something which the town is lacking.

New York—Mr. E. R. Storey has been appointed sales manager of the Metropolitan Material Co., this to take effect March 1st, 1917. On and after that date, they will move to their new ten acre plant at Flushing and Woodward avenues, Brooklyn, New York. A special announcement to the trade from the Metropolitan Material Co. will be made later.

Middletown, Conn.—There has just been completed at the State hospital for the insane a greenhouse, 150 feet long, which was made by the patients under the direction of a superintendent. The grounds are to be graded about it and it will be one of the beauty spots on the hill. The cost was little more than for the material and the effort itself was of much value to the patients.

During Recess

Gardeners' and Florists' Club of Boston.

Wednesday night, February 8, was a gala occasion for the members of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club of Boston and their ladies, for on that evening they celebrated, to the number of 250, the 30th anniversary of the Club's birth. Horticultural Hall presented a beautiful and inspiring picture. The tables and stage were lavishly adorned with flowers of rare loveliness. During the feast, there was plenty of stirring music by the orchestra. President Methven, although suffering from an attack of grippe, was right on his job and after a brief address of welcome and congratulation called upon A. P. Calder to fill the post of toastmaster, and it is almost superfluous to say here how well that finished master of oratory fulfilled his duties.

The first speaker was President R. M. Saltonstall, of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society, who captured all hearts with the eloquent sincerity of his presentation of the society's cordial good wishes and his appeal for a generous support for that time-honored institution in the plans for its work of the future and special activities of the coming year. He outlined the ambitious program of exhibitions now laid out and reminded his audience that the centennial of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society is now but twelve years distant.

Wm. J. Stewart, being next called upon, as the Club's first president entertained with some amusing reminiscences of the early days of the organization.

Secretary W. N. Craig and Vice-President A. K. Rogers were the only other speakers. Mr. Craig was enthusiastic as ever in his comment on the activities of the Club and aroused his hearers to a high pitch by offering a resolution of support to be expressed in a telegram to President Wilson in the present international emergency. The vote was unanimous.

Between the speeches there was singing by Miss S. MacPherson, Mr. James Singer and Mel. Eastman, and piano music by Miss Lewis. "My country 'tis of Thee" was then sung, after which came the dancing, twelve numbers on the program, under the direc-

PERSONAL.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Millang, of New York, are in Florida for a stay of several weeks.

Percy B. Rigby, manager of the New York store of the S. S. Pennock Meehan Co., is sojourning for a few weeks at Palm Beach, Fla.

Frank A. Waugh, head of the department of horticultural and landscape gardening at the Massachusetts Agricultural College, has been named as consulting landscape architect of the United States Forest Service. Professor Waugh will work under the direction of Chief Forester Graves, and in April will start on a trip of inspection through Idaho, Montana, Wyoming, Utah and Colorado. He is a native of Wisconsin, and was educated mainly in Kansas, although he did his final work in horticulture specialization at Cornell University. He has been a success as a teacher at the college at Amherst, and expects to return there to teach after his advisory work and touring are done. Excellent books from his pen have widened his area of influence.

A CORRECTION.

In the note about Sweet Pea Buds dropping, by Wm. Sim, in our issue of last week, the temperature figures as given were reversed through a clerical error. They should read, "with sun out, 67; if cloudy, 58 to 60."

Pittsburgh—Owing to the intense cold the Ludwig Floral Co. have had $1,000 worth of palms (funeral work) held up in various North Side homes.

N. Y. STATE FEDERATION.

The New York State Federation of Horticultural Societies and Floral Clubs will meet at Ithaca, February 14, in connection with the tenth annual farmers' week at Cornell. According to the advance announcement the program will include five speakers, an informal luncheon, and a business meeting of the federation.

E. A. White will discuss "Roses in Greenhouses and Their Feeding," to be followed by David Lumsden who will talk on orchids and orchid breeding. "How to Make Home Grounds Attractive," will be the subject of a lecture by Henry Hicks of Westbury, from which the meeting will adjourn for an informal luncheon at noon. The afternoon program includes: "Garden Roses and Their Culture," by A. C. Beal; "Diseases of Roses," by L. M. Massey; a business meeting of the federation will take place at 4 o'clock.

In addition to this program of the federated clubs, the department of floriculture of the college has arranged for Tuesday, Thursday and Friday of farmers' week a program that includes ten lectures on floral subjects, demonstrations of methods of work in greenhouses, floral decoration and other phases of plant work. On Tuesday and Wednesday, will be exhibits of student's work in flower arrangement, also of roses, carnations, violets, sweet peas, and other florist crops exhibited by specialists in cut-flower production in the eastern states. Round table discussions on flower growing will be featured in the program.

CONNECTICUT HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY.

Carnation Night had been announced for last Friday night's meeting and John F. Huss, exhibited ten varieties, and Warren S. Mason, five varieties. The judges awarded a first-class certificate to the collection of Mr. Huss, and to that of Mr. Mason a cultural certificate. Francis Roulier and Warren S. Mason gave a talk on the cultural principles, emphasizing the fact that the plants must be well nourished. President Hollister will name a committee to plan the June flower show.

ALFRED DIXON, Secy.

Flower Market Reports

BOSTON The long expected break in prices arrived this week accompanying an increase in stock generally. Short roses have fallen off one half, both in price and sales. Better qualities were not so hard hit, but an appreciable decrease in volume of sales was noted here also. White carnations have stood up well under the sharp decline, neither falling off in quality or amount. Reds, however, are slightly inferior to those seen hitherto and not so much in demand. The market is slowly being filled with its usual spring specialties. English primroses are in abundance, and apparently have made a decided hit with the public. Paper whites have been rather drowsy all week. Tulips of excellent grade are much in demand and have enjoyed stiff prices. Calendulas and wall flowers are being sold in meager quantities at a low price.

For two weeks past BUFFALO business has been rather uneven, one day a heavy demand for stock and the next day business only normal. Design work was in demand for a few days, which kept the carnations and other stock for such use cleaned up. Roses are not too plentiful, especially shorts, while medium continue somewhat scarce and prices have been firm. Lilies are on the short side but the bulbous stock is coming in more plentiful each day. There are fine mignonette, orchids, sweet peas, etc. Beauties are coming in good quality and prices rule high.

The extremely low temperature cut down sales on the first Saturday in February. A genuine blizzard developed and both local and out-of-town trade showed a decided tendency to await its departure. Monday had not changed conditions very decidedly, but there was some improvement, especially in shipping trade. Stock was naturally kept back by the low temperature and cloudy days so prices varied little. There are more carnations just now than the market needs and some of the largest consigners are now cutting heavily. Bulbous stock is much in evidence on all the counters and its bright colors and good keeping qualities are adding to its popularity as the season advances. There are enough Beauty roses to supply the regular demand. Single violets are selling well and many double ones are moving but at a much lower figure. All kinds of roses are in good supply and they generally move each day at satisfactory prices. A good many lilies are selling now. Lily of the valley is scarce but freesia, its nearest approach to a rival is increasing daily, while Roman hyacinths also help out. There is a large quantity of good stevia seen in some houses and with pussy willows are much used with the large flowers. Some excellent green is coming from the South as well as being cut locally.

Notwithstanding several NEW YORK wild blizzard days when supply ran meagre on some important items and stiff prices were maintained temporarily, yet the very evident tendency of the market is towards a surplus condition, lower values and freer sales. Spring influences are in the air and will soon change the aspect of scarcity to one of superabundance. The variety of flowers offered in the wholesale district has never before been equaled and the quality leaves little more to ask for. Bulbous stock is getting a little troublesome.

PHILADELPHIA Conditions remain about the same as reported during the past three weeks. Roses are still scarce and the carnations are having their inning. Acacia pubescens is among the new items to be seen around; also white camellias. Snapdragon is very fine now and meeting with much favor.

PITTSBURGH Stock has again shortened up considerably and it is often impossible to supply orders in full. This is particularly true of long-stemmed roses. On Monday one retail firm had an electric fan in front vigorously fanning warm air on the windows while here and there the entire length of the long store room were tall copper receptacles filled with burning charcoal blocks. The Pittsburgh Cut Flower Company, which heats entirely with natural gas, suffered considerably for several days.

Prices generally have remained high and stock in all lines is still scarce. There has been a heavy demand for roses and carnations. Sweet peas are of excellent quality. There are plenty of violets but they are moving very slowly. The supply of orchids has increased. Bulb stock so far has been scarce, due in part to late importations, and is not of very good quality. Orders for snapdragon in many instances must go unfilled and the price is $2.50 per dozen at wholesale. Gardenias show improvement and are in fair demand.

Plant Propagation, Greenhouse
and Nursery Practice*By M. G. KAINS

We have had many inquiries from time to time for a reliable and up-to-date book on plant propagation, but were always at a loss to find any publication that we could recommend. The subject has been dealt with in fragmentary manner only in books that have come to our notice. So it is well that this new work has been issued, especially as it is both comprehensive and practical, and it should meet with a ready sale among plantmen, nurserymen and gardeners. There are nineteen chapters covering in detail topics of germination and longevity of seeds, propagating by buds, layering, cuttings, grafting, etc., fruit tree stocks, clones, etc., and there are eight pages of condensed cultural instructions in tabulated form, covering annuals and perennials from seed, woody plants, evergreens, vines, bulbs and tubers, greenhouse and house plants, ferns, palms, water plants, orchids and cacti. The illustrations are numerous, comprising 213 figures and halftone plates. There are 322 pages well bound and on heavy paper, teeming with helpful information. It is a book which no cultivator can afford to do without. It is worth many times its price. Copies can be supplied from the office of HORTICULTURE at publisher's price, $1.50.

The Civil Service Board of the West Chicago Park Commissioners will hold an examination as follows:
Examination No. 241.

Gardener, Class G, Rank II. Original entrance. Pay $.30 to $.45 per hour. To be held February 19th, 1917, at 9.00 A. M. at the general offices in Union Park. Open to men between the ages of 21 and 50 years, regardless of residence. Applications must be filed in the office of the Board in Union Park before 12 o'clock noon of February 17th, 1917.

Subjects: Special Subject, weight of 6; Experience, weight of 3; Physical, weight of 1.

Special Subject: To include a written and oral test on the identification, general care, planting and characteristics of trees, shrubs and perennials and on making and maintaining lawns.

The duties of Gardener include the planting, pruning and general care of trees, shrubs, perennials, lawns and outside gardens and occasional supervision of laborers in related work.

Persons who desire to take these examinations must obtain application blanks by calling or telephoning the Civil Service Board at Union Park (Phone, Monroe 5840). The application blanks must be filled out and returned to this office—by mail or in person—so as to reach here before the time fixed in the notice.

Superintendent of Employment.

Walter M. Lowney has made a gift of Lowney Park, containing one and one-half acres, to the town of Mansfield, Mass.

An elaborate Italian garden is being constructed at Watch Hill, R. I., for Mrs. E. R. Turnbull of Montclair, N. J., under the supervision of Wilbert A. Clarke.

The Massachusetts Forestry Association has sent out a circular recommending as a means of frustrating the white pine blister rust in future commercial plantings that white pines and red pines be planted in equal numbers alternating them in the rows or planting them in alternative rows. When the thinning period arrives, if the white pines are infected with the rust, they should be taken out and the red pines allowed to reach maturity. On the other hand, if at that time the white pines are free from the disease, the less valuable red pines can be removed and a crop of the white pines grown. It is further advised that all currant and gooseberry bushes, both wild and cultivated, in the vicinity, be pulled up.

The Burning Question Regarding The Present Building Situation Is —

WHETHER you had best buy your greenhouse now or wait for a drop in steel prices.

Let's get right down to the facts of the matter.

Steel prices are higher now than they have ever been before. They have been climbing steadily. They haven't stopped climbing; and from all indications they're not going to stop climbing.

Briefly—the longer you wait, the higher the price you'll probably have to pay for your greenhouse. Besides, losing all the business at sky high war-time prices that you might have gotten had you had your greenhouse while you were waiting for prices to go down.

The possibility of peace being declared is unfortunately a remote one at best. Conservative New York bankers whose fingers must needs be continually on the pulse of world events, are almost unanimous in their opinion that while several peace parleys may be forthcoming during the next year, the war will still drag on.

It is a significant fact that when peace was first broached by the Central Powers, steel slumped only the expected number of points, incidental to Wall Street flurries. Which loss was followed by a steady climb, back to normal.

Far in the future as the end of the war really seems, if it should end tomorrow, it would still have but little effect on steel prices.

Most of the big steel concerns have orders for their output for many months to come. The entire output of the Bethlehem Steel Co. during the year 1917 is already contracted for.

Other steel mills have orders placed by foreign powers, for two and three years ahead on the non-cancelable, but transformable basis. That is, if the war should end, the balance of the order not already filled in the form of munitions, shall be filled in the form of other steel products to be specified for use during the Reconstruction Period that must necessarily follow the war.

In view of which, is it really good business to wait for a fall in steel prices that may be a long time coming? Especially to delay in building your proposed greenhouse, at this time of all times, when everybody else is going after record-breaking, war-time business with a vengeance—and getting it.

Many florists are protecting themselves against a further jump in steel prices by ordering their greenhouses now. Beside being able to get them for a price probably lower than it will be a few months from now; there's the added advantage of having all materials right on the ground so that just as soon as the ground is in condition, the building can start, and the house be ready for roses and other early plants well before the first of June.

It is often even possible to build in mid-winter during a protracted spell of mild weather. For instance, last Winter we built four, 61' by 500' houses for L. B. Coddington of Murray Hill, New Jersey.

Let us talk over the advantages of this early ordering, more fully with you.

We go anywhere for business. Or to talk business.

Dreer's New White Canna Eureka

CANNAS

Our Own Introductions

Eureka. We consider this the best white flowering Canna for all purposes to which Cannas are devoted. It is of robust constitution, growing four feet high, forming sturdy, shapely plants very quickly. Its free flowering tendency can be readily understood when we chronicle the fact that a small plant set out May 15th, three months later carried 15 immense heads of flowers. These are of a creamy-white, changing in full sun to a pure white. $1.25 per doz.; $8.00 per 100; $75.00 per 1000.

Favorite. There have been many yellow Cannas spotted with carmine or crimson that were good; it is, therefore, particularly interesting to find a variety that in every way eclipses its many predecessors and for which we have singled out this sort. The color is a rich, deep golden-yellow, produced on tall stems high above the foliage. The red dots, which are not too pronounced, add to the piquancy of the flower, without detracting from the golden mass effect. 5 feet. 35 cts. each; $3.50 per doz.; $25.00 per 100.

Orange Bedder. A particularly attractive bedding variety of a bright orange with just sufficient scarlet suffusion to intensify the dazzling mass of color when the wide branching stems are covered with flowers. $1.25 per doz.; $8.00 per 100; $75.00 per 1000.

The Gem. An entirely distinct spotted variety. The immense trusses of flowers are borne on upright branching stems well above the foliage, and are of deep cream or straw-yellow, spotted with deep carmine. $1.25 per doz.; $8.00 per 100; $75.00 per 1000.

One each of the above 4 varieties for 75 cts.

TWO DISTINCT CANNAS—The Last Introductions Received from Germany in the Autumn of 1914

Lahneck. In this variety we have an entirely distinct departure and advance in the assortment of pink Cannas. First of all we have in Lahneck a free grower, producing an abundance of trusses on erect stalks, well above the foliage. The color is difficult to describe and convey an adequate impression of its worth. It is fundamentally rosy, but throughout the flowers there are lines and shadings of scarlet-carmine hues that add much to their brightness. Add to this a narrow pale-gold border and you may form a slight conception of the beauty of this novelty. 75 cts. each; $7.50 per dozen.

Scharfenstein. Another variety that is sure to take a place among the standard sorts as quickly as it becomes known. The beautifully formed, large round florets are produced in compact but graceful trusses well above the green foliage. The color is a unique light red salmon with orange and carmine suffusions that altogether forms a most attractive addition to the range of colors found in Cannas. You will like Scharfenstein. 75 cts. each; $7.50 per dozen.

"HAMBURG LATE WHITE" CHRYSANTHEMUM

Above picture was taken Nov. 26, 1916, and will give a good idea of what "Hamburg Late White" looks like when grown to single stems and planted six inches each way.

"Hamburg Late White" is pure white under all weather conditions and is a sport of Maud Dean white, but has no trace of pink, as the original.

The average grower of chrysanthemums must have varieties which are easy to handle and from which he can cut as near 100% of perfect blooms as possible. "Hamburg Late White" has been grown for the last four years and produces a very high proportion of good flowers. It is not an exhibition variety, but for late white, one of the best for commercial purposes. It can be had in bloom the latter part of November, by taking an early bud; but by selecting later buds, most of the flowers are cut during December and we would advise to select a late bud, as the later buds come somewhat fuller, and by selecting late buds, flowers can be had as late as the middle of January.

Keeping qualities are excellent and where a light, graceful white flower is wanted, "Hamburg Late White" cannot be surpassed.

"Hamburg Late White" will be disseminated in the Spring of 1917. Plants will be ready April 1st, 1917, and all orders will be filled in rotation.

Certificate of Merit awarded by Chrysanthemum Society of America.

NOTES ON CULTURE OF FLORISTS' STOCK

CONDUCTED BY

John J. M. Farrell

Questions by our readers in line with any of the topics presented on this page will be cordially received and promptly answered by Mr. Farrell. Such communications should invariably be addressed to the office of HORTICULTURE.

"If vain our toil, we ought to blame the culture, not the soil."—Pope.

Calceolarias

Green fly is very partial to calceolarias. Slight fumigation repeated often will tend to keep them in check. As the flower spikes push up they will need some wire stakes for support. They should now have a shade of some kind during the bright hours. Give them some cow or sheep manure water, once or twice a week, just as soon as the pots are filled with roots. Keep the night temperature as near 45 degrees as possible and be very careful in watering, avoiding extremes either way. Give them plenty of ventilation, but see that they are not swept by cold draughts. Set the pots on a moist bottom, and keep it so by syringing between pots. Do not crowd these plants but give plenty of room.

Candytuft for Memorial Day

Candytuft will not stand any coddling and does better in a night temperature of 45 degrees than at 50. If your plants seem at all late you can run them a little warmer as the flowers open. This is a very good crop to grow for Memorial Day trade. For that date it should be sown no later than the 20th of February. If there are not empty benches in February the best plan is to sow in 3-inch pots. Put half a dozen seeds in a pot and thin out to three. You can also sow in flats of light soil, but great care must be taken to pot off in good season, as candytuft seedlings do not transplant as easily as some other annuals. Place the pots or flats on a shelf or bench in a moderately cool and well aired house, with a temperature of not more than 48 degrees at night. If vacant beds or benches are at disposal, sow it in rows 12 to 15 inches apart and rather thinly. Do not leave more than three or four good seedlings to the square foot. Keep moist at the roots, with a good syringing on all good days.

Cyclamen

Give a moderate amount of air daily whenever possible and keep the atmosphere rather moist on bright days and they will need some shading as the sun becomes stronger for three or four hours of the hottest part of the day. Through all their season of growth they should never lack water at the roots. Shift before they become pot-bound, and so on until they have reached their flowering size. Seedlings that were sown in the fall should now be ready for 2½-inch pots. Place them near the glass in an average minimum temperature of 55 degrees at night with 10 to 15 degrees higher during sunshine. Give syringing proper attention so you can keep thrips and red spider in check. A light weekly fumigation will help to keep them clean. A good compost to use is sifted fibrous loam three parts, leaf mold two parts, and well rotted cow manure one part, with a little sand.

Fancy-Leaved Caladiums

First, sort all the available tubers into sizes, planting each size in a box separate. Put some moss in the bottom of the box and then lay the tubers close to one another, as their stay in these boxes should be short. Place about three-quarters of an inch of moss over the tubers and then set in a frame over the pipes, where a temperature of from 70 to 75 degrees can be maintained. When they have made a nice lot of roots they should be potted into the smallest-sized pots that will hold them comfortably. Use a compost of two parts leaf-mold with equal proportions of peat and sand. Until the roots have made some progress, watering should be done very carefully. For subsequent shifts use fibrous loam peat and leaf-mold in equal parts, with the addition of some well-rotted cow manure and sand. These plants like a temperature not lower than 65.

Gladioli

The first planting of the large-bulbed varieties can now be done and do not omit a good number of that inexpensive, but excellent scarlet variety, Brenchleyensis, in addition to America, Augusta and Mrs. F. King. For a good Memorial Day crop gladioli should be planted now in benches. The market for these is usually good in April and May, and fairly good in June, and there is not much likelihood of spikes being wasted even though a good many of them flower before and after Memorial Day. Of course, so much depends on climatic conditions that it is not easy to hit the date just right with this crop. Do not use any fresh manure which will come in contact with the bulbs. If you have no old manure, try fine bone and pulverized sheep manure, incorporating this well with soil. Again, the bulbs do not flower at one time, which is generally an advantage. They do well in from 50 to 55 at night.

Propagation of Rubbers

In answer to a subscriber who inquires about mossing rubber plants you can moss them any time from now and up to May with success. With a temperature of 65 to 70, and a close moist atmosphere they should begin to root through the moss in four to six weeks. After you have mossed the stems place a stake to each one and tie above the moss and below it. The moss should be kept moist all the time. It is always better to keep the rubbers quite dry at the roots while mossing is going on. When the roots come through the moss the cutting can be cut off, potted and kept shaded in a moist atmosphere.

Reminders

See that no frost reaches the house where azaleas are being kept back for Easter.

Keep Gladiolus Colvillei and others of this section cool, as they then produce better flowers.

Allow tuberous rooted begonias to come along in a moderate temperature, as they do better for it.

Keep the cutting benches free from dead or dying cuttings. If it is seen that a few cuttings have missed pull them out without disturbing the sand.

Next Week:—Compost; Habrothamnus; Lilies for Easter; Making Hot Beds; Orchids; Reminders.

ROSE GROWING UNDER GLASS

CONDUCTED BY

Arthur Ruzicka

Questions by our readers in line with any of the topics presented on this page will be cordially received and promptly answered by Mr. Ruzicka. Such communications should invariably be addressed to the office of HORTICULTURE.

Mulching

The sun being much stronger during the day the roses will easily take much more feed than they have been getting all along. It will also be necessary to give protection to the roots, as these will suffer if the soil in the benches is laid bare and exposed to the rays of the sun and to the air. There is nothing better for this work than old well decayed cow manure, which to be just right will have to be composted some time in advance and turned over about once in a week or fortnight to insure its decaying, and to break up the large lumps into smaller ones, thus insuring a good even mixture all the way through. If no well decayed manure is on hand then fresher manure can be used, but it will have to be used very carefully so as not to burn the roots and foliage. Before putting it on have the plants well watered, and if time will permit, clean the benches thoroughly of all dead leaves, weeds and other waste matter. Another important thing is to make sure that the plants are in the right stage to receive the mulch. To be this way they should just be starting for another crop of flowers, and the growths about three inches long. Do not apply the manure too heavily at the one time. If it happens to be a least bit fresh, use only about a shovelful to four square feet of bench. This will have to be spread carefully, so as to put more to the front of the benches and much less to the back and centers. Right after the mulch is applied, water the benches well. This will wash the manure into the soil at once, and also kill any heat that may be in the manure. If the weather is severe when the mulching is done it will be best to do only a bench in one house, so that the fumes would not burn the leaves. If the weather is milder, more can be applied at the one time and a little air carried during the day, and at night for the first two nights, after which it will be safe to run the houses same as usual. Avoid using manure that has too much long straw in it. If it is real short it will not matter so much.

Disbudding

The plants will show new signs of life now that spring is nearing, and it will be necessary to go over them twice a week to make sure that all the side growths are taken off as fast as they appear on the buds proper. On rare occasions it will be advisable to leave the buds as in the case of strong bottom breaks which generally throw a poor bud, making it better if the side buds are allowed to remain on until about the time that the bud proper begins to show color. When disbudding it will be well to watch for plants that are pretty well cut off, and if there are any short stems with buds just about showing, the buds should be removed, thus giving the plants a little more growth to carry and giving them a better chance to grow. The stems disbudded will throw one or two shoots which will not take very long to grow into good flowers. When these are cut they can be taken away back to the original two eyes, which will keep the plants low, doing away with a lot of unnecessary hard wood. The stems thus cut will also be much longer, so there is no loss whatever, for if the buds are taken at the right time the eyes below will branch out almost at once, and the flowers following will be only a few days behind the date the original buds would have flowered.

Cleaning Young Stuff in Pots

There are times when even with the best of soil and clean pots, the soil around the young stock will get green on the surface, sometimes so badly that if it were left alone it would seriously hamper the growth of the new plants. To rid the plants of this it will be necessary to go over the pots one by one with a small hand soraper and remove the very surface of the soil with all the green scum. This will take a good deal of labor but it will be time well spent, the plants being worth fully more in the end. As the work is done, all poor and dead plants can be thrown out. The best and tallest of the plants should be put to the back of the bench, giving the entire front to the smaller and weaker plants. It will be necessary to do this and if the work is done right the plants will all have an equal show. The taller plants will take more water, but being in the back they will not dry out so fast as the poorer ones in the front, which again will not take as much water, but being to the front they will dry out much quicker. In this way all the plants will run nearly the same as far as moisture is concerned, with the exception of the first row in the front and rear, which naturally will dry out very fast and may have to be watered two or three times to one watering of the rest. A little hydrated or air slacked lime applied to the plants right after they are cleaned will help keep the soil sweet and open. Or if time will permit they can be watered with lime water which is made by putting about a peck of stone burned unslacked lime into a barrel and adding enough water to slack it. After it is thoroughly slacked the barrel can be filled to the top with water, which is allowed to settle, and the plants watered with the clear liquid. It will not hurt if a little of the lime from the bottom of the barrel is stirred into the water, only the plants would look disfigured.

Care of Young Beauty Plants

These will have to receive altogether different treatment than given the other roses, especially when it comes to spraying. All other varieties will take spraying late in the afternoon, yes even at night during zero weather. This is not the case with Beauties, however, which should never be sprayed in the afternoon and never at night. If they were there will surely follow a bad dose of spot which will give the plants a severe check and cause them to lose much foliage which they need very badly when they are just starting. Also be careful to go over the young plants very often, and take off all the little buds that may begin to show here and there. If these were allowed to remain on until the flowers opened, the plants that bore them would never amount to anything, being only weaklings. Do everything that will keep all the energy that the plants now possess and if there is any way in which more can be added, do so.

Hardy Opuntias

Up to the present day the study of our native flora as a hobby among the horticultural craft seems an extremely rare exception. During the twenty-five years of my career in this country I know of only one instance, meeting a young American-born landscape architect interested in and well posted on this subject. The consequence is a very vague idea of the immense richness of our home vegetation in beautiful plant-forms among our rank and file. And yet, the fact that during the last century many valuable native plant species have been collected by European explorers, sent abroad, and, after acclimatizing and perhaps hybridizing returned in exchange for American dollars and cents as "indispensables" for our gardens, seems to prove that the study of our flora does not necessarily need to be a mere freak. Turning to the hardy growing wild in the barren districts of mountainous sections of Arizona, Nevada and California, I am well aware that to speak of them in adjectives as beautiful or indispensable means to invite contradiction from various directions. Surely, who ever attempted to handle them without wearing thick leather gloves had his hands full. To trace and dig them out is tediously annoying. But facing the task of planting a dry-wall exposed to the south with the chances that our plantations will receive very little care, we find resistant material scarce. Opuntias we know live and grow in a small amount of soil, surviving prolonged aridity and extreme cold without injury. In form of growth oddly interesting, their appearance when in full bloom during July is decidedly handsome. Of the species listed in trade catalogues Opuntia Rafinesquei, a strong grower, producing large sulphur-yellow flowers in great abundance, is one of the best. Opuntia comanchica and spirocentra, also of robust habit of growth, have longer spines than the first mentioned. Very useful for naturalizing on dry slopes as well as for the pockets of the rockery exposed to the south and southwest, is the smaller growing very lightly spined Opuntia humilis with short flat branches and countless little yellow blossoms. Fully matured limbs of opuntias root very easily when inserted in sandy ground out in the open. Our hardy cactuses of the western desert districts are inconvenient to handle, but we need them for dry-walls and the open south and southwest exposure of the rockery and to lose sight of them at this time does not seem very wise.

MASSACHUSETTS AGRICULTURAL COLLEGE NOTES.

Professor A. B. Beaumont, of Cornell, has been appointed to head the Department of Agronomy.

Professor A. H. Nehrling addressed the Horticultural Society of Boston last Saturday on "Perennials We Should Grow."

Prof. A. K. Harrison addressed the Tuckerman Botanical Club, Thursday evening on the subject "Native New England Plants Used for Ornamental Planting."

The Landscape Art Club Bowling Team defeated the Florist & Gardeners' Club Team ("The Grave Diggers and Decorators") by 78 pins last Friday evening.

Emile Mardfin, Cornell '16, has been appointed graduate assistant in the Department of Botany to fill the vacancy left by the appointment of William Doran as Instructor in Botany and State Botanist at Durham, N. H.

The seminar meetings conducted by C. E. Wildon in the Ten Weeks' course have proven exceedingly successful.

The meetings are being held every Tuesday evening, and various subjects are taken for discussion. Last Tuesday evening a very interesting discussion of Informal and Formal Gardens took place. On next Tuesday evening the subject of Soil Sterilization will be taken up. L. H. Jones, of Milford will start the discussion with some very interesting facts on partial sterilization of greenhouse soils.

Farmers' Week program, Dept. of Floriculture, Tuesday afternoon, March 27, 1917:

- 1.00 The Use of Native Plants. Prof. F. A. Waugh.
- 2.00 Garden Flowers (Illustrated). Prof. A. H. Nehrling.

Wednesday morning, March 28.

- 9.00—Fertilizers for Greenhouse and Garden. Prof. F. W. Morse.
- 10.00—Ornamental Vines and Their Uses. Prof. C. H. Thompson.
- 11.00—Landscape Gardening on the Farm. Prof. A. K. Harrison.

Wednesday afternoon, March 28.

- 1.00—Garden Roses and Their Culture. Dr. A. C. Beal (Cornell Univ.)
 - 2.00—Continuation of preceding hour.
- A collection of spring flowering bulbous plants will be on exhibition in the greenhouse during Farmers' Week.

NATIONAL ROSE AND PEONY GARDENS.

Request is made by the Office of Horticultural Investigations of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C., for contributions to the test gardens at Arlington, Virginia, of roses and peonies of varieties not now represented in the Government collections. At the present time approximately 700 varieties of roses and 400 varieties of peonies are growing in the Arlington gardens. The Department of Agriculture is creating the test gardens in co-operation with the American Rose Society and the American Peony Society. Persons who believe they have varieties of roses or peonies not represented in the Arlington gardens and who wish to contribute to the collections should first write to the Office of Horticultural Investigations, Washington, D. C., offering specific varieties or requesting a list of the varieties desired.

A plain case A note from Chicago has been going the rounds of the daily newspapers to the effect that a resolution had been passed at a joint meeting of Irish societies in that city asking for the adoption of an ordinance prohibiting the sale of "green pigs, snakes and other freak curios in mockery of the patriotic saint" on St. Patrick's day. Can't say we blame the Irishmen very much for their protest and how did they happen to overlook the green carnation in their condemnation? We pass it along to the Chicago city council that in case the proposed quarantine does go on, the green carnation should be included as contraband. Is it not folly to discuss the

"why" of the carnation while the "divine flower" continues to be so shamefully degraded?

Two ways "The ideal valentine is, of course, a bunch of posies. The florists now make the flower valentine the most charming of all their contributions to the holidays of the year."—Worcester (Mass.) Post.

The young man who is trading gold certificates for American Beauty roses isn't the only lad who wishes that Cupid had passed on his way and let him alone. Yesterday florists said common pink roses, mere white ones, ordinary yellow ones and the hybrids of known and unknown degrees all were costing more than before.—New York Herald.

The effort to make flowers popular as valentine gifts may be greatly assisted or lamentably hindered by notes such as the foregoing in the daily newspapers and the florist, not the reporter, is the responsible party. Comment as to the influence upon the attitude of the public towards the florist trade, for valentine or other occasions, by the publication of such notes, is unnecessary here. Which of the two shows best judgment, in your opinion?

Co-operative publicity The plan of combined advertising by the retail florists of a community, as, for example, in the case of the florists of Washington, D. C., mentioned in our retailers' department this week, has much to recommend it. Space on the best pages of the leading daily papers, of sufficient size to admit of adequate display, costs much money—more than many florists feel that they can invest alone in that direction, but by the joint use of the space a strong showing is obtained at a small cost to each one contributing and the main object is accomplished—which in the present instance is to encourage the use of flowers as valentine gifts. In the resultant business from this joint publicity every florist in the neighborhood may expect to share. Another pleasing outcome from this little co-operative enterprise on the part of the trade, and one much to be desired, is the friendly intercourse and amicable relationship it tends to foster and establish between members of the same business who have been too prone in the past to keep at a distance from one another.

Well done Favorable action by the New Jersey legislature on the application for an extension of the corporate existence of the Florists' Hail Association of America for thirty years more, is reported in our news columns. The Florists' Hail Association has proved itself to be a most beneficent institution and its success has been exceptional when we consider that it has gone along without encountering any formidable unforeseen complications or finding necessity for any radical changes from the original plans as put in operation thirty years ago—a fact which is all the more notable because the scheme was on lines previously untried and which had been declared visionary and impracticable by men well experienced in such matters. Many a hard-working florist owes his business existence today to the hail association which, when calamity overtook him, stood between him and utter ruin. While it is true that the association has had continuously the backing and serious attention in its affairs of many able business men yet we think it will be universally acknowledged that the perpetual secretary, John G. Esler, is pre-eminently the man to whom the credit belongs for the institution as we have it today. HORTICULTURE extends felicitations and the hope that Mr. Esler may be found still at his post when another thirty years shall have rolled along.

SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS and ORNAMENTAL HORTICULTURISTS

The arrangements for the Trade Exhibition in connection with the convention to be held in New York next August are progressing satisfactorily. The florists' supply trade and others doing business with growers and retailers are evincing a keen interest in the exhibition, as will be seen by the following list of those who have already reserved space on the exhibition floor. John G. Scheepers, Inc., George L. Stillman, B. Hammond Tracy, John Lewis Childs, Arthur Cowee, Schloss Bros., H. Bayersdorfer & Co., Reed & Keller, Arthur T. Boddington, Inc., John C. Moninger Co., John A. Evans Co., The Advance Co., King Construction Co., Jackson & Perkins Co., American Greenhouse Co., Lord & Burnham Co., Russin & Handling. A very large attendance of representatives of the trade from all sections of the country is assured, consequently the Trade Exhibition will be unusually large.

The Convention Garden which has been laid out in the Botanical Gardens at Bronx Park, under the supervision of Dr. N. L. Britton, is an undertaking worthy of New York. Preparatory work was engaged in until the ground became too much frozen to make the continuation possible. Besides serving the purpose of the society the garden will be an object of interest to hundreds of thousands of the public, all horticultural enthusiasts. With this in view Dr. Britton has spared no effort to make the garden attractive. So far, the following have arranged for planting: W. A. Manda, Maurice Fuld, John G. Scheepers, Inc., Bobbink & Atkins, Henry A. Dreer, A. N. Pierson, Conard & Jones Co., John Lewis Childs, Raymond W. Swett, Arthur Cowee, B. Hammond Tracy, Arthur T. Boddington, Inc.

The annual report of proceedings of the society will be mailed to members of the society about Feb. 20. Conditions without control of the society have caused some little delay in the publication of the volume this year, but it will be worthy of close study, being more than usually interesting. One thing particularly the society is to be congratulated upon is that the list of members in good standing published in the book is much larger than ever before recorded in the history of the society.

Rules Relating to the Management of the Trade Exhibition, New York City, August 21, 22, 23, 1917.

1. The Society shall, through its Executive Board control all the features of the trade exhibition.
2. The Secretary shall act as a Superintendent of trade exhibits with an Advisory Committee of Three, said Secretary shall have general charge of all details of the Annual Exhibition. He shall receive all applications for space and assign the same in the order in which they are received by him. He shall furnish the Judges a list of the exhibitors and exhibits by 1.00 P. M. on the day of opening the convention. He shall also furnish the Judges with a list of novelties and new devices submitted for awards.

He shall make no expenditure exceeding

$10 in amount without the consent of the Advisory Committee. He shall keep full detailed records of receipts and expenditures and other matters of importance relating to the exhibition. Immediately after the close of the convention, he shall make a complete report, which, after having been audited and approved by the Advisory Committee, shall be filed with the records of the Secretary. All the moneys collected by him shall be forwarded from time to time, without undue delay to the Treasurer. All bills incurred shall be indorsed by him and submitted to the Advisory Committee for approval, after which they shall be paid in the usual manner as provided.

The Advisory Committee shall act as an advisory board and audit board, subject to instructions of the Executive Board, and in case of disagreement between them and the Secretary, their decision shall be final except it be reviewed by the Executive Board.

3. Exhibition space shall be designated in square feet. The charge for space shall be as follows:

Minimum charge $20.00

Flat rate, per square foot....40 cts.

Exhibition space shall be limited to six feet six inches above the floor, except for plants, greenhouse structures or other exhibits which necessarily extend to a greater height. Plant and cut flower exhibits may be also built up to any height authorized by the Superintendent. All exhibits, except as above specified, which extend above six feet six inches in height, shall be charged 20 per cent. additional, on the exhibit. All signs must be kept within the space limit. Where tables are against the wall, wall space up to six feet six inches above the floor and of the length of the table, will be furnished the exhibitor without extra charge. Wall exhibits extending above this height will be charged for the additional space, at wall space rates. Signs on the wall, or elsewhere, shall not extend higher than six feet six inches above the floor in any exhibit.

Wall space, without floor or table space, or when exceeding in dimensions the amount allowed with the exhibition space, shall be charged as follows:

Minimum charge $8.00

Flat rate, per square foot....15 cts.

Wall exhibits shall not project over one foot from the wall.

Exhibitors' signs must be kept within the limits of wall space.

Exhibitors must furnish at their own expense all tables, cloth and other accessories and incidentals. The Secretary will be willing, so far as his other duties will permit, to assist exhibitor in securing tables and other needed articles; but neither the Secretary nor the Society will pay for or assume any financial responsibility for the purchase or placing of such articles.

Roll top desks will be furnished to those requiring them at a rental of $5.00 each.

All signs shall be uniform in character and be furnished by the Superintendent of the Exhibition, at a cost not to exceed $3.00, and no other signs to be permitted.

Charges for freight or expressage will not be paid or guaranteed for exhibitors. Goods shipped, charges collect, will be refused unless the owner is on hand to pay the charges.

4. Payments for space. Twenty-five per cent. of the total amount shall be paid on signing the contract and the balance before the exhibitor takes possession. Neither the Superintendent nor the Advisory Committee shall have power to suspend or change the above requirements as to payments.

5. Exhibition classes to be arranged as follows:

A.—Plants.

B.—Cut Blooms.

C.—Boilers and Heating Apparatus.

D.—Greenhouse Structures.

E.—Florists' Supplies (including fancy earthenware).

F.—Bulbs, Seeds and Garden Requisites.

G.—Miscellaneous.

6. Exhibitors showing novelties or other improved devices which they wish to have examined by the Judges for such special notice or award as they are deemed worthy of, shall make an itemized entry thereof with the Secretary in advance. Firms or Corporations desiring their exhibits considered for award must state the name of a member of the firm or company who is a member of the Society.

7. The President shall appoint in advance of the convention, the following Judges.

Three for Classes A, B and F.

Three for Classes C and D.

And three for Classes E and G, who shall serve without compensation. They shall examine specially entered exhibits and make detailed reports thereon promptly to the Secretary on the afternoon of the first day of the convention. The Judges are authorized to recommend to the Executive Board any exhibits they deem worthy for award of the Society's Medals, such exhibits to be of unusual merit, but such action not to be made public until passed upon by the Executive Board.

8. For exhibits deemed worthy thereof, diplomas of three grades may be given as follows: Certificate of Merit, Honorable Mention, Highly Commended.

9. No distinction as "First," "Second," "Best," or "Largest," or other mention indicating comparisons with other exhibits shall be made, and diplomas of equal value may be awarded to several exhibits in the same class.

10. Each award must be accompanied by a statement indicating on what special points of excellence it was based.

11. In case any article or device has received an award at a previous S. A. F. exhibition, awards shall cover subsequent improvements only.

12. No award shall be made covering the quality of seeds, fertilizers, plants and other articles of such a nature on which an intelligent opinion cannot be had without a practical test.

None but flower pots conforming to the Society's standards will be considered for award by the judges.

13. No award shall be made to exhibitors who are not members of the Society of American Florists and Ornamental Horticulturists.

All protests and complaints must be presented in writing before the close of the exhibition, and complaints or protests not so made will not be considered.

14. The matter of opening or closing the exhibition will be left to the discretion of the Executive Board.

15. Exhibits not in position before 1.00 p. m. of the first day of the convention, may be excluded from mention in the Superintendent's Report or consideration by the judges.

16. The exhibition shall be open not less than two hours before the opening session, to remain open until 10 P. M. each day except as provided in Section 14.

17. All articles exhibited must be left in place until the close of the business session of the Convention which shall be 10 o'clock P. M. on the third day.

18. While the Society will exercise all due care to safeguard the exhibits, it will not assume any responsibility or liability for any loss or damage to any of the exhibits.

19. The selling of goods by persons not having engaged space shall be prohibited unless such person or firm shall have secured a permit or license from the Secretary, the same to cost not less than twenty dollars ($20).

20. When more than one exhibitor joins in the same space there shall be an additional charge of $20 for each additional exhibitor.

21. The Executive Board will make such further rules as it may deem necessary for the proper conduct of the exhibition.

22. All adjustments not covered by rules or published action of the Executive Board shall be referred to that Board.

23. To protect the floor from damage by water, platforms and saucers must be placed under exhibits of plants.

Meeting of the Executive Board.

President Robert C. Kerr authorizes me to call a meeting of the executive board to be held in New York, March 16th and 17th, 1917.

CLUBS AND SOCIETIES

AMERICAN ROSE SOCIETY.

Meeting of the Executive Committee.

The Executive Committee of the American Rose Society met in Philadelphia on the 8th of February to take up matters pertaining to the coming show. A list of names for judges was presented and the same will be communicated with, requesting their services as judges at the spring exhibition.

The premium list is growing by the addition of some special premiums, and the interest that is being taken to make this a great show certainly warrants the belief that there will be nothing lacking for a great popular exhibition. The returns from the call for 50 per cent. of the guarantee fund have been very satisfactory. Application was made for the registering of four new roses, which was submitted to the committee for report.

The Portland Rose Test Garden which has been receiving some careful attention for several months past, was brought forward showing that on the 11th of January, 1917, there met in the city of Portland, Ore., a group of people representing ninety-nine different organizations of the city, the Royal Rosarians, the Portland Rose Society, the Portland Chamber of Commerce, the Portland Floral Society, The Rotary Club, the Research Club, the American Institute of Architects, the Parents' and Teachers' Association, etc., who organized themselves into the Portland Association National Rose Test Garden. This organization was promised the co-operation of the city government of Portland through its park department, and is now an established organization ready for work.

This movement for a rose test garden in Portland has been encouraged from the start by the American Rose Society, the executive committee of which at their meeting in Philadelphia on Feb. 8th decided unanimously to designate Portland, Ore., as the official Rose Test Garden of the Pacific Northwest, and to co-operate with the local organization appointed Mr. Currey, Mr. Clark and Mr. Tucker, who, together with the Portland Association and the City Government of Portland, will formulate plans for the location and government of the garden and provide rules and regulations for all tests and contests.

The membership dues for 1917 were reported, by the secretary, as coming in finely. There are about 400 associate members now on record, and a ticket of admission to the coming show is forwarded to each member as the dues are paid.

Robt. Pyle presented an invitation from Newport, R. I., to hold an exhibition of outdoor roses on the 4th of July next. It was considered best to defer action on this matter until certain details pertaining to the same could be obtained.

Representatives from the leading firms in Philadelphia were present at the meeting.

CHICAGO FLORISTS' CLUB.

At the February meeting of the Chicago Florists' Club Ella Grant Wilson, of Cleveland, Ohio, gave a very interesting talk on advertising and publicity. James H. Burdett, Mr. Ekstrom, Mr. O'Tool and Mr. Nauman gave some good talks on the same subject. Poehlmann Bros. exhibited a very nice collection of orchids, including a vase of Phalaenopsis Schilleriana. The Publicity Committee was re-appointed to suggest advertising for Easter. Duncan Robertson was elected a member, and the following applications were received: M. Wright, John Sinner, Chas. Nienams, Geo. Kastalnik, Arthur M. Luedtke and T. E. Waters. There was a very large attendance; in fact, one of the best meetings the Chicago Florists' Club has ever had. The Club decided to make the March meeting a Novelty Night.

FLORISTS' HAIL ASSOCIATION.

Assembly Bill No. 16 of the New Jersey legislature to extend the corporate existence of the Florists' Hail Association for thirty years has passed the House, and is now on the calendar of the Senate for future action. Assemblyman Walter G. Winne was the sponsor for the measure and to him the F. H. A. is under obligation for the rapid transit of the bill through the lower House.

JOHN G. ESLEK, Secy.

NEW YORK FLORISTS' CLUB.

The February meeting of the New York Florists' Club was well attended and full of thrills, in which Philip Kessler's commissary department figured high. The greater part of the proceedings were committee reports and deliberations on various important matters having to do with the approaching International Exhibition, the annual dinner and the S. A. F. Convention. Over ten thousand trade tickets have already been sold for the "International." The annual dinner is to be held at the Biltmore. Nineteen new members were admitted and eleven more were proposed. The Club has never been in such splendid condition for heavy responsibilities such as it has to meet this year, Secretary Young's report showing a membership approaching five hundred and a treasury balance approximating $15,000. David M. Roth, memory training expert, gave an interesting talk on his system. Richard Vincent, Jr., president of the American Dahlia Society, addressed the meeting on matters of current interest. J. Harrison Dick told of the experiences of the visitors to Indianapolis, and a vote of thanks was extended to Lon. Hafner, of the N. Y. C. R. R., for courtesies and attention en route. Greetings were received from F. Marquardt, who is now enjoying the attractions of sunny Florida.

The exhibition was the best seen at the Club for a long time. Carnations were superb and no less than six preliminary certificates were awarded. These were as follows: "Laddie," 88 points; "Doris," 85, and "Rosalia," 85, all exhibited by S. J. Goddard, of Framingham, Mass.; "Cottage Maid," 88 points, from Cottage Gardens Co., Queens; "Lucy," 85 points, from Flora Hill Gardens, Chatham, N. J.; "Olive Whitman," 85 points, from M. Matherson, Baldwins, N. Y. Thanks were voted for Seedling 46 from Flora Hill Gardens, "Cornell" from Ira Marvin, Wilkes-Barre, Pa., "Mrs. John F. Marsden" from J. F. Marsden, Far Rockaway, and Enchantress sport from F. B. Abrams, Blue Point, with a request to see the two last named again. Thanks were also given to Robert Simpson, Clifton, N. J., for a sport from the rose J. J. L. Mock and to Florex Gardens, North Wales, Pa., for rose September Morn.

CONNECTICUT HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY.

The bi-monthly meeting of this society was held in the county building, Hartford, on Friday evening, Feb. 9. John F. Huss exhibited cyclamen and primulas. A committee was appointed to make arrangements for the June Flower Show. Mrs. Wilhelmina Seliger submitted a paper translated from a German garden magazine on the culture and habits of cyclamen and primroses, which was read by the secretary. A vote of thanks was given to Mrs. Seliger and to Mr. Huss for his exhibits.

ALFRED DIXON, Secy.

PITTSBURGH FLORISTS' AND GARDENERS' CLUB.

The meeting of February 6th was largely attended. The election of officers resulted as follows, Messrs. A. A. Leach and Neil McCallum withdrawing their names as candidates for the offices of president and secretary, respectively:

Carl Becherer, president; E. C. Reineman, vice-president; T. P. Langhans, treasurer; E. J. McCallum, secretary; W. A. Clarke, assistant secretary; P. S. Randolph, C. H. Sample and A. Frishkorn, executive committee.

This meeting marked the completion of fifteen years' service for the retiring secretary, H. P. Joslin, during which time he had missed but one meeting. He received a rising vote of thanks.

There was considerable discussion on the merits of cyanide of potassium as a fumigant; one or two of the private gardeners reported good success with it, but one of the largest commercial growers spoke strongly against its use as too dangerous.

Some very fine flowers were shown. Herman Rapp, Leetsdale, Pa., received cultural commendation for primulas; Wm. Thomson, Jr., Sewickley, cultural certificate for primulas. Bureau of Parks, Northside, Pittsburgh, a cultural certificate for cyclamen; Jno. Jones, Sewickley, certificate of merit for pot of cyclamen having 78 open flowers—a grand sight; Bureau of Parks, Schenley Park, vase of Amaryllis hybrids, magnificent blooms on thick stems 3 ft. long, a cultural certificate.

Messrs. Loew and Morgan, who had attended the carnation convention at Indianapolis, did not report any outstanding novelties, but a good collection of blooms. They were very enthusiastic in regard to E. G. Hill's new roses which they had an opportunity to inspect.

Carl Becherer and E. J. McCallum were appointed a committee to arrange for lecture to be given at the next meeting by A. A. Coggeshall of Carnegie Institute on the Cliff Dwellers; also for the ladies to be invited and a lunch to be given after the lecture. It was suggested that it would be a good thing to arrange for the National Association of Gardeners and the Chrysanthemum Society to hold their meetings in Pittsburgh in 1918 at the same time. H. P. JOSLIN.

NORTH SHORE (ILL.) HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY.

"Insects and bugs injurious to plant life and the best methods of control" was the subject upon which Prof. D. K. McMillan, assistant to the State Entomologist of Urbana, Ill., spoke to the North Shore Horticultural Society of Lake Forest, Ill., on Thursday, January 25th.

The members of the Society were all invited to Melody Farms, the estate of J. O. Armour, by the superintendent, Thomas W. Head, as it was the opening night of the new reading and recreation room which Mr. Armour had built for the men employed on the estate.

The lecturer mentioned the thousands of dollars of damage done every year to one crop and another by injurious insects, which by proper efforts could be considerably curtailed even to the extent of reducing the loss of 50 per cent. of its present dimensions. The scourge of the corn belt in recent years, known as the cinch bug could be easily controlled by throwing up a barrier, around any of the corn areas, of two or three furrows, smoothing the same and a line of tar or creosote laid evenly on the smoothed furrows preventing the in-wads of the bug.

Professor McMillan spoke on quite a number of insect pests prevalent among truck gardeners in Cook county and in some of the West Side parks and also on some of the bacteria for which some insects act as the intermediary. CLARK M. TWINNEY.

SOUTHAMPTON HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY.

At the regular meeting of this Society, held on Thursday, Feb. 1st, much interest was shown in three exhibits of evergreen, deciduous and berried shrubs put up for competition, and for which J. Cassidy Wainscott was awarded first prize. L. McRobbie from Swan River Nursery, Patchogue, gave an instructive address on the varieties exhibited.

Some well grown carnations were also shown by Mr. Cassidy, for which he was awarded a certificate of merit. An exhibit of more than usual interest was put up by S. R. Candler in some very fine sprays of the beautiful Skimmia japonica, which, as Mr. Candler explained, is quite hardy in this section and deserves to be more generally grown.

Mr. Candler also showed some well berried sprays of Ilex crenata. It was agreed to hand over these exhibits to the botany class of Southampton High School and Southampton Hospital.

The annual flower show will be held on July 25th and 26th in tents on the Park grounds at the head of Lake Agawam.

J. DICKSON, Cor. Secy.

HOLYOKE AND NORTHAMPTON FLORISTS' AND GARDENERS' CLUB.

The regular meeting was held at G. H. Sinclair & Son's establishment, Holyoke, on Feb. 6. E. J. Canning, fresh from the recent convention of the New England Nurserymen's Association, aroused keen interest by an instructive talk on the proposed bill to entirely prohibit plant importations. It was felt that such a drastic measure, if allowed to pass, would seriously affect the nurserymen and florists without achieving the supposed objects of the bill. President Strugnell exhibited a specimen cyclamen in an eight-inch pot with over eighty fully expanded flowers, and it thoroughly deserved the certificate of merit awarded. G. H. Sinclair had a very nice display of carnations, sweet peas, snapdragon, mignonette and forget-me-not. D. J. Gallivan showed a vase of carnation Gorgeous. H. E. D.

IN this catalog you will find only the dependable things.

Most of our novelties originate with us.

We know exactly what they are and what to expect them to do.

Any novelties produced by any individual that we may decide to adopt, after making careful investigation; we then proceed to give our own trying tests, before cataloging.

When they come to you, you can depend on their doing exactly what the catalog says they will.

In spite of the war having so generally upset things over here, we have succeeded in bringing out our usual number of choice new things.

Our catalog is so elaborate and expensive to produce, that you will readily appreciate why we make a small charge of 35c. for a copy; but this is promptly refunded when your orders amount to $5 or more.

FLORISTS CLUB OF WASHINGTON.

The Florists' Club held its monthly meeting last week. The attendance was small, the unprecedented cold weather demanding the presence of the growers at the greenhouses. The store interests, however, were well represented. Under these conditions it was decided to renominate all of the present officers for the ensuing year. The annual election will be held on March 6. Some little discussion was had on the subject of taxation, the club having before it the proposal of Congress to place a tax of eight per cent. on all businesses making a profit per annum of $5,000 plus eight per cent. Among other matters discussed was the action of the House Committee on Library in the matter of the selection of a national flower.

HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY OF WESTERN PENNA.

A meeting of the above named society will be held on Tuesday evening, Feb. 20, at 7.45 o'clock in the East Liberty Carnegie Library, Station street. The subject of the evening will be Carnations and Seasonable Flowers. It is expected that there will be some of the newer varieties of carnations exhibited. Bring along what you have in carnations or seasonable flowers so as to make the meeting interesting and give us something to talk about. ERNEST R. BOLTON, Sec.

CLUB AND SOCIETY NOTES.

At the meeting of the Stamford (Conn.) Horticultural Society held on Friday evening, Feb. 2nd, a very interesting paper on the Culture of Chrysanthemums was read by Adam Patterson. Mr. Morrow read a paper on Budding, Grafting and Arching. Among the exhibits were the following:

Seedling carnations by A. Wynn, highly commended; mixed carnations, cultural certificate; sweet peas Yarrawa by A. Pederson, cultural certificate; Shawyer roses by J. Foster, cultural certificate; Carnations Matchless, highly commended; flowering and foliage plants by P. J. Burns, Adiantum Farleyense Regina by G. Cannon, Streptosolon Jamesonii and Primula malacoides by J. Wynn and Primula malacoides by A. Pederson, each a vote of thanks. Numerous vases of artistic design were offered by G. Cannon. At the close of the meeting refreshments were served, and a very interesting musical entertainment was arranged by Miss Helen Smith.

F. S. HARTWRIGHT, Cor. Secy.

The topic at the next meeting (February 20) of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club of Boston will be the Carnation. A fine display is expected.

NEWS NOTES.

Calla, O.—The Calla Greenhouses & Garden Company has been purchased by Ernest E. Sigle.

Billerica, Mass.—Gustave Thommen, who has made an enviable reputation as carnation grower for Backer & Co. for the past seven years, has resigned his position and moved to Reading, where he has purchased a farm. Milford R. Irving will be in charge of the Backer greenhouses now.

During Recess

Southampton Horticultural Society.

The annual banquet was held in the Commercial Hotel, Southampton, N. Y., on Thursday, Feb. 8th, Chas. F. Guilloz, president of the society, presiding. The attendance of members and their wives was up to its usual standard. The seed stores were well represented, amongst whom were J. Morrison, from Weeber & Don; W. C. Rickards, from J. M. Thorburn & Co.; D. A. Dean, from Arthur T. Boddington Co.; W. A. Sperling, from Stumpp & Walter Co. The banquet committee, Messrs. Candler, Campbell and Malcolm, exceeded all previous efforts. The repast was thoroughly enjoyed and the tables were beautifully decorated with roses.

The president made a few remarks and presented the retiring president, M. McLaughlin, with a gold watch-charm as a small recognition from the society. Speeches were omitted, an entertainer being substituted and dancing was enjoyed. J. DICKSON, Cor. Secy.

NEW RED ROSE—DONALD MacDONALD

A new Hawlmark Red Rose sent out this year by Alex. Dickson & Sons

We have tested this Rose for Winter forcing for two years, and with us it produces more red roses during the winter than any Rose we have ever grown. It is not a large Rose, but has perfectly formed medium sized flowers that sell at sight. Color bright orange carmine; will not turn blue; because the base of the petals is orange. It is not a summer rose, as it has the same substance as Killarney. We build the plants up until November, and from Thanksgiving until May it is a money maker for the Rose Grower, as no pinching is necessary.

TOMATO SEED FOR YOUR 1917 CROP

You will get an enormous crop of Tomatoes from Bolgiano's Tomato Seeds this year. Our Seed was saved from one of the largest crops we have ever had, due to being favored by weather conditions. The vines were loaded with Large, Solid, Red Fruit. We know positively by planting Seed from this "Big Crop" your yield will be much larger than if you had bought seed grown where the weather conditions were not favorable.

WESTERN UNION PLANS TO TRAIN OPERATORS.

The Western Union Telegraph Company has offered a bonus to about 1,000 manager-operators in small cities and towns for each junior operator such managers shall enlist and train. This unusual step arises out of the extraordinary growth in the use of the telegraph and the consequent need for competent operators to handle the company's business with the dispatch which its standards require.

Any person, man or woman—over the age of sixteen and with the requisite education and intelligence can become a junior operator. The Company provides the necessary instruction free. When the junior grade is reached, employment is assured.

In the larger cities, telegraph schools are already maintained for teaching operators. These, however, have not been able to turn out a sufficient number of trained men and women to wholly meet the present demands. It is now sought to give persons in smaller places as well as the cities an opportunity to study telegraphy either by exclusive application or in conjunction with their other employment.

Hubbard Wood, III.—Herbert Walsh has gone into business here growing florists' plants.

The seeds listed in the Thorburn Catalog are of just one quality—the best.

You run no risk in using them—they will yield you a splendid return for the time, labor and money you invest in their planting and cultivation.

In spite of conditions abroad, which make importations irregular, the assortment of seeds offered in our 1917 catalog is unusually attractive and complete. The cultural directions given represent the experience gained during the 115 years this firm has been in the seed business.

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION

Officers—President, Kirby B. White, Detroit, Mich.; First Vice-President, F. W. Bolgiano, Washington, D. C.; Second Vice-President, L. L. Olds, Madison, Wis.; Secretary-Treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.—Convention at Detroit, June 19, 1917.

An Important Post Office Ruling.

Seeds put up in opaque-sealed envelopes, properly labeled, would appear to constitute "proprietary articles of merchandise and be mailable at 4th class rates" as set forth in Sec. 469, Par. 5, instead of requiring transparent envelopes (Par. 4). This is a new ruling obtained Dec. 20th, last, from the Third Assistant Postmaster General's Office by Howard M. Earl, of W. Atlee Burpee & Co. and member of the Executive Committee of the American Seed Trade Association.

One Week's Imports.

Imports at the port of New York, of horticultural material, for the week ending Feb. 2, were recorded as follows:

Bulks—Netherlands, $3,341; England, $81; Japan, $1,469.

Plants—France, $800; Netherlands, $1,318; England, $977; Ireland, $35; Brazil, $121; Japan, $32.

Red clover seed—France, $12,861.

Clover seed—France, $1,482.

Other seeds—Denmark, $11,130; France, $21,489; Netherlands, $1,980; Portugal, $13,335; England, $36,236; British East Indies, $3,337; Italy, $1,853; Spain, $3,671; Panama, $38.

Nitrate of soda—Chile, $12,983.

Dried blood—Argentina, $9,853.

Other fertilizers—Argentina, $5,939.

The loss at the recent fire in the St. Louis Seed Co.'s establishment is given as $100,000, fully covered by insurance.

PATENT GRANTED.

PUBLICATIONS RECEIVED.

The Sweet Pea Annual for 1917, published by the National Sweet Pea Society (British), has been received. This publication, edited by J. S. Brunton, is the official organ of the Society, of which Henry D. Tigwell, Greenford, Middlesex, is secretary. Notwithstanding the terrible stress and strain of the times, this book is fully the equal of any of its predecessors and it shows that the Sweet Pea Society, although bereft of many members and beset with many difficulties, in common with other institutions, arising out of the titanic struggle on the Continent, has achieved a creditable measure of success. The reports given indicate that the trials of novelties were never more successfully conducted and the many beautiful full-page illustrations show that the exhibitions of the past year reached a high standard of excellence. There are twenty-seven half-tone plates, including portraits of the late W. Atlee Burpee and George W. Kerr, president of the American Sweet Pea Society. The book is generously supplied with advertisements of the trade.

ANNUALS AND BIENNIALS. The Best Annual and Biennial Plants and Their Uses in the Garden. By Gertrude Jekyll, with Cultural Notes by E. H. Jenkins. This is the latest addition to the popular Country Life Library, published at the office of Country Life, Ltd., London, and in this country by Charles Scribner's Sons, New York. Miss Jekyll is widely known as the author of "Color Schemes for the Flower Garden," "Wall and Water Gardens," "Gardens for Small Country Homes," each of which has passed through several editions. As with our own Mrs. Francis King, color harmonies and sequences in flower garden arrangement is the key-note of much of her writings and, in a like degree with Mrs. King is she a substantial friend to the catalogue seedsman for their specialties and improved forms are given careful scrutiny and, when found acceptable, generous publicity. The many uses of annual and biennial plants in pictorial flower gardening are well covered in the book before us and the descriptions will be found very helpful by the amateur reader. There are some useful lists of selections for various purposes and aspects, a chart of color and height and 44 full page pictures of which three are in natural flower colors. The price of the book is $3.00 net.

NEWS ITEMS FROM EVERYWHERE

CHICAGO.

It seems probable at this writing, Feb. 13, that St. Valentine's Day is going to exceed any previous record made as a florists' holiday. It has been steadily gaining in importance for several years and the effect of the special advertising campaign, promoted by Fred Lautenschlager, who by the way, is a past representative of HORTICULTURE, is being felt all over the city. Some of the retail florists have ordered heavily of potted plants and preparations for the day have been second only to those for Christmas. Mrs. Russell rose took the place of American Beauty, now extremely scarce, in more ways than one, for prices ran to $6.00 per dozen wholesale.

The wholesale florists of Chicago have held two meetings recently, the main object of which was to plan concerted action regarding charges for shipping boxes, etc. The prevailing opinion was to the effect that a reasonable charge should be made. The real outcome of the meeting, however, will be the forming of a permanent organization of the wholesale florists of Chicago, which will make for closer acquaintance and better understanding, when all the details of the business may be discussed and worked out together. Aug. Poehlmann was elected chairman and Allie Zech secretary. A banquet is arranged at the La Salle Hotel on Feb. 16th, when the organization will be perfected and permanent officers elected.

A fire in the Atlas Block, corner Randolph street and Wabash avenue, headquarters for more wholesale florists than any other block in Chicago, caused a great commotion Monday, Feb. 12th, and business was interrupted for several hours as water poured down stairs and elevator shafts. The fire originated on the fourth floor, where the only florist is the California Floral Co. The second floor and basement houses over a dozen florists and for several hours no one was allowed to enter or leave the building. There was really no loss to the florists, but the age of the building and its reputation for not being particularly substantial caused much alarm and all were relieved when the fire was extinguished.

Bulb growers are not placing their orders as quickly as the store men, but are carefully watching the stock now coming into bloom, to see where it can be improved. In hyacinths nothing so far has surpassed La Innocense as best white for pots and pans. Gertrude, the old favorite, is still holding its own in pink, though Lady Derby, Nimrod and some of the new varieties are well thought of here for light shades. The old blue, Grand Maitre seems to be on the decline. In the new blue varieties Bismarck and Capt. Boyton are very promising, making strong growth and the former comes early. In tulips Brilliant Star, a bright early red, Prosperity and Flamingo, bright pink, bid fair to replace Proserpine because their color is more attractive. It is too early to form opinions on many of the new ones which flower later on.

NEW YORK.

C. H. Atkins, of Bobbink & Atkins, is home from his visit to Cuba.

P. L. Bogart is reported as still very ill with no improvement noticeable.

Fred Marquard, of Middle Village, is enjoying the zephyrs at Palm Beach, Fla.

Westerbeck & Klyn, of Sassenheim, Holland, have opened an office at 25 Beaver street.

Philip Breitmeyer, of Detroit, Mich., was a visitor this week on his way home from Cuba.

The New York and New Jersey Plant Growers' Association will "whoop'er-up" on Saturday evening, Feb. 17.

We were pleased to see W. H. Long at the Florists' Club meeting after his serious illness and looking so well, too.

Mr. F. R. Newbold is confined by illness at his New York home and is greatly missed by his fellow workers on exhibition committees.

Bound Brook Nurseries is now well settled down in the new city headquarters at 57 West 28th street, with Mr. Spaulding in charge.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Schenck celebrated on Monday, Feb. 12, the tenth anniversary of their wedding, at Wallace Hall on West 153rd street. About eighty friends were present.

A. L. Miller proposes a special party from New York to visit the Rose Festival at Philadelphia next March similar to the excursion which was so successful on the occasion of the National Flower Show at Philadelphia.

Very few days pass now without a committee meeting of some kind in the flower district. What with flower shows, annual dinner and S. A. F. convention planning these are busy times for the craft in New York.

W. L. Trumpore, buyer for J. H. Small & Sons, is now able to attend to business, but still shows the effects of his recent suffering and affliction, his wife having died at their home during the time he was himself in the hospital in a serious condition, undergoing a dangerous operation. Widespread sympathy is expressed in the wholesale and retail trade for Mr. Trumpore, where he has been well known and esteemed for many years.

PHILADELPHIA.

William Gibson, late of the Idle Hour Nurseries, Macon, Ga., was a recent visitor. He left on the 20th inst. to occupy a new position with C. P. Mills, retail florist of Jacksonville, Fla.

The executive and local committees of the American Rose Society had a meeting at the Bellevue-Stratford on February 8th. Much important business was transacted and everything in connection with the National Rose Festival seems to be moving along nicely.

CINCINNATI.

Ralph Schlomer has joined C. E. Critchell's force of employees.

Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Gillett are visiting Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Ohmer at West Palm Beach, Fla.

We are glad to report that Geo. Berner, of C. E. Critchell's is greatly improved after his recent operation.

The proceedings of the thirty second annual convention of the Society of American Florists and Ornamental Horticulturists has been received from Secretary John Young. It is the most bulky volume ever sent out by the S. A. F., comprising 444 pages, the reports, including the proceedings of the Houston Convention and of the Florists' Telegraph Delivery Association being given verbatim, the F. T. D. alone filling 118 pages. The illustrations include a portrait of Ex-President Daniel MacRorie and seven full page views of bulb and plant culture at the Cottage Gardens plantations in Eureka, Cal. The report is very complete, and affords a vast amount of information on all departments of the work and objects of the S. A. F. The list of members totals 1,751, of whom 447 are life members and 1,304 annual members. Mr. Young is to be congratulated on the volume and the official fidelity and industry of which its pages are impressive evidence.

AN AGREEMENT FOR MUTUAL BENEFIT.

Several of the leading florists of Buffalo have organized an association, at present under the leadership of S. A. Anderson, for the purpose of maintaining uniform prices throughout the city. A price list is sent to each member every day, covering a full line of flowers. The members have agreed to give a discount of 25 per cent from the price list on anything they purchase from each other. The association was formed because several of the retailers found that it was necessary to raise the prices of flowers in order to meet the growing overhead expense. The association is doing some good community advertising and promises a brilliant future. It would be well for the leading florists of other cities to take notice of this movement for their own good.

Boston—P. L. Carbone, who has gone abroad to purchase pottery antiques, etc., has cabled his family that he arrived safely in France the first of this week. Mr. Carbone was obliged to go on this business trip because of the fire in his store which destroyed so much of his stock of pottery, vases and choice antiques.

PERSONAL.

George Howard has concluded his services as gardener at the Gordon Abbott estate, Manchester, Mass.

David Gaus, formerly with John Sykes, has accepted the position of manager for Clayton Weaver, Emaus, Pa.

A. T. Ellison, formerly with Mullanphy Florists, St. Louis, will manage the greenhouses of Wm. C. Smith at Kirkwood, Mo.

The engagement of Nicholas Grillo, greenhouse grower, of Milldale, Ct., and Miss Anna Castaldi, of Milldale Park, has been announced.

Howard McRae, son of Alex. McRae of Providence, has returned to the Mass. Agri. College after a year's practical experience at Cromwell Gardens.

A. P. Crossley, who was recently appointed florist at the N. J. Experiment Station at New Brunswick, has been forced to give up his position on account of ill health.

William James has been appointed superintendent of Little Lake Cemetery, Peterboro, Canada, succeeding Frank Wise, who has resigned and will go into landscape work.

COVER ILLUSTRATION.

At this season of the year jardinières of various shapes and material filled with ornamental foliage plants are a prominent feature in the first-class flower stores of New York and other centres of first-class trade. Our cover illustration shows a very graceful arrangement which if so desired, may be brightened up by the addition of a spray or two of harmonizing cut bloom and ribbon.

BUSINESS TROUBLES.

Pepperell, Mass.—E. M. Stewart, gardener, Park St., liabilities, $729, no assets.

Haarlem, Netherlands.—Notwithstanding the prohibition of bulb importations to the British Isles, the Association of Dutch Bulb Growers reported at their recent annual meeting that the year 1916 had been generally more favorable than either 1915 or 1914.

The total export of bulbs in the principal export months of August, September and October showed a decrease of 2,500,000 kilograms as compared with the corresponding period of the previous year, but when it is remembered that Britain took nearly 7,000,000 kilograms in 1915 it will be seen that the loss of the British market in the past year was largely compensated for by increased export to other countries. Higher prices were obtained than at any time since the war began.

Of the 19,000,000 kilograms exported in the three months named, America took 9,000,000, or nearly half, Germany 5,000,000, and the Scandinavian countries, 4,000,000 kilograms. The export to America and the Scandinavian countries underwent a very considerable increase, as was the case in the previous year, whereas the export to Germany, which closed its frontiers to all other flower garden products, remained stationary.

Flower Market Reports

Valentine's Day helped BOSTON to brace up this market for a brief period and prices held good on violets and roses, particularly. The heavy influx of bulbous stock, especially narcissi of the Golden Spur type has been a depressing burden and the markets are over-weighted with the surplus. The double daffodils have now made their appearance also the Poeticus ornatus. Carnations are hard hit now and there is a sharp break in value. Sweet peas are also on the downward track. Calendulas, which are grown better in Boston than anywhere else, maintain their mid-winter prices, the demand for these from other cities preventing any accumulation in the home market. There are some beautiful anemones to be seen occasionally now, also English primroses, acacias, myosotis, and the other dainty uncommon things which are always so acceptable to the typical Boston flower purchaser.

Extreme cold weather CHICAGO has affected the Chicago market somewhat. Roses have become even more scarce and prices have advanced accordingly. Valentine's Day has increased the demand for almost all kinds of cut flowers and pot plants, roses and orchids having first place in the choice of many buyers. Carnations are not finding the favor that they did early in the season but the situation is no worse than it has been most of the winter. Sweet peas are selling well, the first bringing two dollars and the poorer grades moving at very good prices. Lily of the valley is very scarce. Freesia has been rather in excess of demand but this week is selling better. American Beauties are still decidedly scarce as compared to demand and lilies are also far from enough to go around, while callas are almost out of the question.

St. Valentine's Day NEW YORK was rather disappointing in this market. While there was more or less desultory buying in the retail stores yet with the present well-filled wholesale supply the event made but little impression on the market. Violets moved pretty well, also sweet peas, and there was some activity on roses, although the prevailing prices on the latter are lower than they were a week or two ago. Bulbous stock is coming in very heavily with the results that prices have gone to smash on trumpet narcissi and some other things and the downward tendency has dragged everything else along to a greater or less degree. The newest thing this week as a commercial item is Buddleia asiatica, which by reason of its permeating fragrance has already made a place for itself. Carnations are plentiful and much lower in value.

Although a little PHILADELPHIA draggy previously, the first returns showed up well for last week, and taken altogether results were satisfactory. Roses are still scarce, especially American Beauty. These are very scarce indeed and mostly long stemmed, there being no medium grades arriving. Carnations are very good and fairly plentiful, the leaders as to quality at present being Mrs. Ward, Benora, and Belle Washburn. Considerable improvement is noticeable in the sweet pea crop; form, stem and finish being extra fine. Daffodils and other bulbous stock are very plentiful and as a rule of good quality. They are selling well at moderate prices. Gardenias and orchids go fairly well. The cypripedium crop is over for the season. Buddleia, myosotis and forsythias are among the recent items to make their appearance.

ST. LOUIS Severe weather all the past week has caused transient trade to fall off, yet roses and carnations are holding up well in price. Some good color Beauties are seen but these are moving slowly. Bulbous flowers are increasing in supply.

WASHINGTON There has been quite a heavy call from southern points making exceptionally good the telegraph business of the local florists. Roses of all varieties continue scarce and there are not as many carnations as could be desired. Snapdragon is as fine as has ever been offered in Washington and brings $3 and $4 per dozen at wholesale. There is no over supply of daffodils, tulips and other spring flowers, and such of these as are now coming in meet with ready sale. Purity freesia is in over supply but meets with a fair sale. Violets are in fairly heavy supply. Sweet peas are fine and move well.

Plant Propagation, Greenhouse
and Nursery Practice*By M. G. KAINS

We have had many inquiries from time to time for a reliable and up-to-date book on plant propagation, but were always at a loss to find any publication that we could recommend. The subject has been dealt with in fragmentary manner only in books that have come to our notice. So it is well that this new work has been issued, especially as it is both comprehensive and practical, and it should meet with a ready sale among plantmen, nurserymen and gardeners. There are nineteen chapters covering in detail topics of germination and longevity of seeds, propagating by buds, layering, cuttings, grafting, etc., fruit tree stocks, clones, etc., and there are eight pages of condensed cultural instructions in tabulated form, covering annuals and perennials from seed, woody plants, evergreens, vines, bulbs and tubers, greenhouse and house plants, ferns, palms, water plants, orchids and cacti. The illustrations are numerous, comprising 213 figures and halftone plates. There are 322 pages well bound and on heavy paper, teeming with helpful information. It is a book which no cultivator can afford to do without. It is worth many times its price. Copies can be supplied from the office of HORTICULTURE at publisher's price, $1.50.

Every Metropolitan greenhouse is planned with an eye to results—successful crops.

Our cares do not cease with the mere mechanical part of the work. And, while we no doubt owe a great deal of our success to the high grade character of our labors, still we base our claims for your consideration, upon our ability to erect the right kind of a greenhouse in the right manner, at the right price.

NEW RED ROSE—DONALD MacDONALD

A new Hawlmark Red Rose sent out this year by Alex. Dickson & Sons

We have tested this Rose for Winter forcing for two years, and with us it produces more red roses during the winter than any Rose we have ever grown. It is not a large Rose, but has perfectly formed medium sized flowers that sell at sight. Color bright orange carmine; will not turn blue; because the base of the petals is orange. It is not a summer rose, as it has the same substance as Killarney. We build the plants up until November, and from Thanksgiving until May it is a money maker for the Rose grower, as no pinching is necessary.

ROSE GROWING UNDER GLASS

CONDUCTED BY

Arthur Ruzicka

Questions by our readers in line with any of the topics presented on this page will be cordially received and promptly answered by Mr. Ruzicka. Such communications should invariably be addressed to the office of HORTICULTURE.

Last Call for Cuttings

Now with the first of March right here it will be necessary to go carefully over all the young stock and if there is a shortage of any variety, cuttings should be taken at once and crowded into the sand. If this work is not done at once, it may prove difficult to root the cuttings later, as the weather may get warmer, making it very hard to control the temperatures in the propagating house. It may not be difficult to keep the sand cool enough but the top temperature will surely go up, which will make the cuttings start top growth, and if they do this before the roots start it is very unlikely that they would root. If some did root the plants would never have the vitality that the cool rooted plants have, and which all plants need so much to be profitable in the greenhouse. When making the cuttings do not allow them to carry too much foliage. If three-eyed cuttings are made then two leaves with two leaflets left on each stem will be plenty. If too much foliage is left the cuttings will have quite a time to hold it, and a good many will drop their leaves and amount to a very little as a result. If the sand that this last batch is put into has already been used once, see that it is perfectly clean, free from old leaves and dead cuttings. It will also be advisable to give the sand several good waterings so that it will have a chance to get washed out. After this it can be firmed and the cuttings put in. As all other lots, these should receive a spraying of copper to eliminate the danger of spot. Care should also be taken not to spray any more than is necessary to keep them up, so that there will be little chance for the leaves to be wet all the time. This applies especially to all red roses which are more apt to get spot in the sand than other colors. All grafting that is to be done should be rushed right through, too, so that the plants will be in shape when planting time comes.

Lime

If there are some benches which are showing bad color, will not dry out readily, and the growth is weak and sickly, the plants will be greatly helped by a good application of lime. The benches should be cleaned off well before the lime is applied, and the surface rubbed over a least bit in order that the lime may not stick to the surface of the wet soil and form a water proof crust. Air-slacked lime or hydrated lime should be used—not ground up limestone, which is too slow in action for greenhouse use. After the lime is applied it will be as well not to water at once, but to rub the lime in and let it remain a day or two. This way it will cling to the crumbs of soil and form a rough surface, after which it will gradually rub off and get into the soil. This will also prevent too much of the lime getting in at once. If there are too many earth worms in the benches, water as soon as the lime is applied. This operation will kill a good many of them. Too many worms in the benches will make the soil all slimy and sticky so that it will be almost impossible to have good drainage.

Repotting

As soon as the young stock is fairly well rooted so that the ball of the plants will hold together nicely, do not wait for the plants to get pot bound, but begin at once and shift them to larger pots. The soil can be made much richer than it was for the first potting, containing at least one-fourth of finely decayed manure. A pot-full (four-inch) of bone meal to each wheelbarrow of soil can also be added, being very careful to see that the bone is well mixed into the soil so that there will be no danger of getting too much of it in any one place. See that the three-inch pots are clean and well crocked. Finely broken old pots or fine cinders will be the cheapest crock to use, although charcoal makes the finest crocking material. If time will permit, it can be made at home, as most places have hardwood trees around with plenty of spare branches which need cutting anyway, and these can be easily burned into charcoal. See that the plants are potted deep enough. There should be at least a thin layer of soil over the old ball. Fill up with soil all around and press this. Do not press the old ball into the new soil. Such an operation would surely crush it, tearing the roots all to pieces and ruining the plants completely or else giving such a severe check that it will take weeks for them to recover. If the plants are properly potted they should take hold of the new soil at once and show an improvement in the color of the leaves about the third day. When knocking the plants out of the small pots clean them off at once. This should include taking off all the scum that may have formed on top of the soil, all yellow and diseased leaves so that the plants will be clean when they go into the new pots. See that the plants have been watered several hours before they are to be repotted. If they were potted dry, it would be impossible to get the ball wet through properly, as the water would drain right through the new soil leaving the ball dry. If the pots are very dry see that they are dipped into water before they are used. Were this not done, difficulty might be experienced in knocking the plants out of the pots later, as the soil would stick fast to the pot. Another important thing to watch for is earth worms. See that there are none in the soil of the plants and none in the new soil. If the one knocking the plants out is quick enough he can catch all the worms that may be in the ball as they are generally between the soil and the pot, and when the plant is knocked out they are left exposed, thus giving the grower a chance to catch them before they have a chance to hide back into the soil. These worms may be of benefit to plants in the benches but they are a nuisance in pots, for potted plants will seldom do anything if there are earth worms in the soil.

The news of the havoc wrought in Alabama, Florida and other sections of the south by the recent freezing weather is quite disheartening. The cause for these abnormal inroads of low temperatures is probably past finding out but the instances seem to be more frequent in recent years and the query arises as to whether the stripping of the forest protection is not responsible in part at least. The ruin in the present case seems to have been complete and industries from the development of which much was expected have suffered a deplorable set back. To all those who have sustained so grievous a loss HORTICULTURE extends profound sympathy.

Deserves support

The action of the American Society of Landscape Architects at its meeting in Boston last week, in planning a vigorous campaign to suppress the odious "bill-board nuisance" is timely and commendable and should have all the support possible from the professional gardeners, florists, nurserymen, seedsmen and others of the craft, whom HORTICULTURE reaches. The predilection which finds expression in the planting of gardens, the erection of greenhouses, the employment of trained gardeners and the buying of flowers and plants is identical with the sentiment which would maintain the public thoroughfares and wayside attractions against the intrusion of these discordant blots upon the landscape. Without such ideals as this movement represents we should have parkless cities and flowerless homes, and development of the florists' avocation, the progress of the gardeners' art and all other horticultural industries would languish. So, wherever and in whatever way the gardener and florist and allied interests can help in this reform, which promises to be an uphill fight, it surely is their duty individually and collectively to give ungrudging support not only as a matter of principle and refinement but of good business policy.

The early closing movement

A note from Philadelphia intimates that the sentiment in favor of early closing of flower shops is rapidly gaining favor and that probably within a short time five or six o'clock P. M. will be the universal closing hour in that city, in winter as well as summer. There are indications that in other cities besides Philadelphia this subject of early closing is being seriously discussed and we are of the opinion that it only requires that a few of the leaders in the business make a bold move in order to inaugurate a good start on this very proper reform. There is no valid reason why a florist, any more than a dry goods house, a grocer, or other business place, should keep his employes hanging around the store until an unreasonable hour when all others, save the druggist, undertaker, cigar man and lunch room are permitted to go home, excepting, perhaps, on Saturday night. This ever-open custom, covering nights, Sundays and holidays, is an unfortunate legacy from the time when most of the retail flower selling was done from greenhouses, where the public expect to find always some one on duty and willing to serve them. The amount of transient business done in any store, unless exceptionally located, as in a theatre or metropolitan hotel, after six o'clock, is usually small and most of it would no doubt still be had were the rule of five o'clock closing established. The conditions of service in the florist business make a very serious handicap in securing young men of character and ability for the work. More reasonable hours will elevate and improve the service.

Marvelous Improvement in the Iris

We cannot spare our old favorites—the very early and fragrant Florentina Alba, the Am. Black Prince—earliest of the German family, the stately and fragrant Fairy, the queenly Madame Chereau, snowy white, frilled with blue, and the splendid and imposing Pallida Dalmatica.

But there are many of recent origin that must take the front ranks. There is Oriflamme, with immense petals sprinkled with silver that often sparkles in the sunlight; the grand Monsignor, the striking Loreley with its intricate and surprising veining; the alluring and dainty Catherina with its exquisite aroma; these are certainly welcomed with their smiles and cheer.

Then I believe Nature dearly loves a joke and delights to provoke a smile and so she has recently given us Parvar, a cute little pickaninny that cunningly looks at us with a roguish smile. Then comes the foliage iris. This is one of Wilson's introductions. It has a blue flower much like the Siberian. But the most striking feature is its wealth of foliage. The leaves are long, narrow and pendulous, giving a mass of the most vivid green, which retains its freshness through the heat and drought of summer down to the hard frosts of autumn. A walk bordered with such a wealth of green would be very charming. I noticed the bees were busily at work on the flowers. I saved a quantity of their pollenized seed and hope for something new and fine. The seed pods are different from all others, being shaped like a small weavers' shuttle.

The iris is the most easily improved from seed of any flower. I have been surprised at my own efforts along this line and have originated some of superior merit. W. E. Fryer of Mantonville, Minn., has originated more, I presume, than anyone else. He had some splendid ones on exhibition at the Minnesota Horticultural summer meeting. He had 300 varieties in his collection before he commenced propagating. He takes delight in showing these to visitors and then he takes them to his own productions which are conceded to be of superior merit. Jacquesiana of the Squalens group is one of striking beauty and stands well at the front of the old varieties. But he has certainly improved on the parent in size and beauty. He finds that his new creations are seeding much more freely than the old sorts and this opens a wide door for improvement.

It seems a law of Nature that the further a plant is removed from its original parentage the more it is inclined to break out into a wild abandon of loveliness—like the dahlia with its wide divergence, so far removed from the original type that its own mother would not know it.

THE CLASSIFICATION OF EXHIBITORS AT FLOWER SHOWS.

We present herewith Prof. Hall's proposed classification of exhibitors at flower shows. The classification was drawn up particularly for the American Dahlia Society, and was formally discussed by some members of the Executive Committee, meeting in New York on Feb. 12, but these recommendations, or definitions, Nos. 1-6, by Prof. Hall were not adopted yet by the Dahlia Society, and are now published with a view to having discussion on this subject, as it is one that concerns all over show societies, and if an agreement can be reached and widely accepted, much good will have been accomplished.

1. NOVICE AMATEURS.—This section shall include those growers who raise the flower or plant for personal pleasure or satisfaction only, who do not profit financially in any way through its cultivation, who employ no skilled labor in its growth or handling, and who have been growing the species not more than fifty years or who have grown less than 100 plants (or 40 varieties) of it during the season of the exhibit (or show) at which the display is made.

2. AMATEURS.—This section shall include growers as described in Section 1, but without limitation as to length of time or extent of cultivation of flower or plant.

3. ADVANCED GROWERS.—This section shall include those growers who raise the flowers or plants mainly for personal pleasure or satisfaction or through scientific interest in its development, who employ no skilled labor in its care or handling, who do not advertise as growers by signs, cards or announcements at the field or garden, by statements or letter-heads or by price-lists or catalogues, and whose expenditure for new varieties, for the development of seedlings, or for other testing or experimental work to promote the interests of the flower exceeds all receipts from sales of flowers, stock, or seedlings developed. Expenditures for added stock of varieties already grown are not to be considered in the preceding computation.

4. PROFESSIONAL GARDENERS AND THEIR EMPLOYERS.—This section shall include owners of estates and other growers who raise the flower or plant for personal pleasure or satisfaction only, who do not profit financially in any way through its cultivation, but who employ paid skilled assistance in the selection of varieties, in the arrangements and managements of the plants, or in the handling of the flowers. The section shall also include the professional gardeners employed by such growers when exhibiting flowers grown by their employers. Exhibits from such gardeners growing flowers for themselves shall be classed in such other sections as conditions determine.

5. SEMI-PROFESSIONAL GROWERS.—This section shall include those growers who raise the flower or plant mainly for personal pleasure or satisfaction, who may or may not employ skilled labor in connection with its culture, who do not regularly advertise as growers by any of the means indicated in Section 2, but whose returns from the sale of the flowers, stock and seedlings exceed the limit specified in Section 2.

6. PROFESSIONAL OR COMMERCIAL GROWERS.—This section shall include all growers who raise the flower or plant for the financial return from its cultivation, whether from sale of flowers, stock or seedlings, at wholesale or retail, and who advertise as growers by signs, cards or announcements at garden or field, by statements or letterheads or by price-lists or catalogues.

W. J. VESEY, Jr.

Somewhat tardy, we acknowledge, but still worthy of the place of honor we accord to it, is the portrait of the new president of the American Carnation Society. We thought it best to wait until we could have a real up-to-date portrait of Mr. Vesey and we think our carnation friends, west and east, will agree that we acted wisely. W. J. Vesey, Jr. is a young man who has made many friends in his career as a florist, as his selection for the responsible position of president by the Carnation Society attests. We anticipate a year of progress under his direction of the affairs of the organization.

CLUBS AND SOCIETIES

N. Y. FEDERATION OF HORTICULTURAL SOCIETIES AND FLORAL CLUBS.

A most enthusiastic meeting of the Federation was held at Ithaca, New York, February 15, 1917, in connection with Farmers' Week. Of the ten federated societies and clubs, nine sent delegates. Because of the scheduled meeting coming on St. Valentine's Day, it was considered better to postpone the luncheon and official meeting of the Federation from Wednesday, the 14th, until Thursday. During the morning and afternoon the delegates attended lectures and viewed the exhibit prepared by students in the Department of Floriculture of the University. At noon a luncheon was given by the Department for the various delegates in attendance; thirty were seated at the luncheon. At four o'clock the business meeting of the Federation was held. At this meeting it was voted to amend the constitution so that four meetings will be held during the coming year: the annual meeting at Syracuse in connection with the State Fair; a winter meeting at Ithaca, during Farmers' Week; a third meeting at New York City during the annual flower show, and a fourth meeting to be held with some affiliated society, upon the call of the President. An invitation was accepted from Dr. Bates of the Syracuse Rose Society to hold a meeting in Syracuse at the time of the next annual exhibition of the society.

A discussion then took place regarding the progress of a bill for the erection of a Horticultural Building on the New York State Fair Grounds. After discussion it was decided to appoint a committee, with a joint committee of the New York State Vegetable Growers' Association and with members from horticultural organizations to confer with various officials at Albany, influential in appropriations. It was voted to instruct this committee to make every effort possible to impress these officials with the need of an immediate appropriation for starting the development of the plans for a Horticultural Building. It was the feeling of the Federation that such a building was absolutely essential for the best development of the horticultural interests of the State of New York.

It was also moved that the question of the introduction of a bill to the Legislature, asking for a range of glass houses for investigational use in flower growing and vegetable culture at Cornell University be referred to the same committee, with power. It was voted that the President appoint a committee of three to work with the Commissioner of Agriculture and the Superintendent of the New York State Fair in revising the premium list.

LANCASTER COUNTY FLORISTS' CLUB.

To Manheim in a driving snow storm, eleven of us all told, but a merry party and a pleasant visit. At Munroe Hostetter's we found a general assortment of stock for cutting; at Phares Hostetter's, twenty thousand callas in bloom and more than that coming on for next season, with sweet peas filling every inch of remaining space; at E. P. Hostetter's, Sprenger and Plumosos, mignonette and baby primroses by the ten thousand, all used for cutting, sweet peas by the tens of thousands; in carnations, principally Enchantress Supreme and Matchless, with a few very fine Victory. All this and more we saw at Manheim.

In the evening the attendance was not quite up to the mark and the exhibition small but excellent. Sweet peas were staged by Frank L. Kohr, Phares Hostetter, B. F. Barr and E. P. Hostetter.

Having been disappointed in getting the essayist expected, the writer read an article on "Sweet Peas under Glass" from the Year Book and also gave a resume of the Indianapolis carnation meeting and show.

In the question box was one on the coal situation for next season, but the minute co-operative buying as mentioned there is a sudden freeze-up over what had previously been a very cordial assembly, and it will take a harder situation even than the present one to get real intelligent co-operation started. It is to be hoped that our sons or at least our grandsons will have wiser heads on their shoulders. We are, however, getting together on a few things and invite the attention of the florists in general and the S. A. F. in particular to some things that are going to emanate from Lancaster shortly.

At the next meeting, March 15, the topic will be Easter Plants by Thomas Fries.

ALBERT M. HERR.

NASSAU COUNTY (N. Y.) HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY.

The monthly meeting of this society was held on Feb. 14th. A letter was read from the Davey Tree Expert Co., Kent, Ohio, inviting a delegate representing this society to attend their annual convention to be held on March 5-10 inclusive. Awards were made as follows: John F. Johnson for cyclamen; Harry Goodband for tomatoes; Frank Watson for roses; hon. mention to Robt. Jones for sweet peas, Rose Queen. A very instructive essay was ably read by Robt. Jones, entitled "What Science Has Done and Will Do for Floriculture," by Prof. E. A. White of Ithaca. P. W. Popp offered a special prize of $5.00 for the most meritorious exhibit at our next meeting. Robt. Jones offered a prize of $10.00 to be competed for at our annual tulip show to be held in May.

Exhibits for the next meeting, March 14, are 12 white, 12 pink and 12 mixed carnations.

MASSACHUSETTS HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY.

Special Prizes Offered for Flowering Bulbs at the Spring Exhibition in March, 1918.

The Massachusetts Horticultural Society announces the following special prizes for flowering bulbs at the Spring Exhibition in March, 1918.

For exhibits by foreign growers of bulbs in bloom.

It is understood that the following five classes shall be open only to growers resident abroad who will furnish the bulbs to be flowered in this country and exhibited under the name of the foreign grower of the bulbs.

Hyacinths—For the best collection of 25 varieties, single-flowered, 3 plants of each variety. Gold medal.

Narcissi—For the best collection of 100 varieties, arranged in their classes, one 6-inch pot or pan of each variety. Gold medal.

Tulips—For the best collection of 50 varieties, single early, one 6-inch pot or pan of each variety. Gold medal.

Tulips—For the best collection of 100 varieties, Darwin or other late-flowering, one 6-inch pot or pan of each variety. Gold medal.

Bulbs and Tubers—For the best collection of spring flowering bulbous, fibrous, or tuberous-rooted plants to fill 100 square feet. Hyacinths, narcissi and tulips excluded. Gold medal.

Any new varieties in the foregoing five classes or other meritorious exhibits by foreign growers will receive suitable recognition.

For exhibits of bulbs which have been produced in the United States, in bloom.

It is understood that the following four classes shall apply only to bulbs produced in the United States and exhibited under the name of the producer of the bulbs. Exhibitors will be required to furnish an affidavit that this condition has been complied with. The producer is at liberty to send his bulbs to be flowered by a grower in the vicinity of Boston, should he prefer to do so.

Hyacinths—For the best collection of 12 varieties, 3 bulbs of each. Appleton Gold Medal.

Narcissi—For the best collection of 30 varieties, one 6-inch pot or pan of each variety. Appleton Gold Medal.

Tulips—For the best collection of 12 varieties, single early, one 6-inch pot or pan of each variety. Appleton Gold Medal.

Tulips. For the best collection of 12 varieties, Darwin or other late-flowering, one 6-inch pot or pan of each variety. Appleton Gold Medal.

Preliminary Notice of Other Special Prizes.

The society offers also the following prospective prizes for gardens during the next four years. Commercial growers excluded. The medals to be awarded to the owners and the money to be given to the gardeners.

SEWICKLEY (PA.) HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY.

At the regular meeting held on Feb. 13th the society voted to accept the invitation to send a delegate to the Annual Davey Convention to be held at Kent, Ohio, March 5-10. A committee was appointed to make preliminary arrangements for the coming September Show. M. Curran presented the financial report for the late Fall Show, and the treasurer was instructed to pay the prize money to exhibitors. Mr. Curran was accorded a rising vote of thanks for the able manner in which he had managed the show finances.

R. Taylor showed some fine Fin du Siecle celery, a carnation sport from Beacon and double cyclamen flowers. John Reig showed forced asparagus, chicory and rhubarb of fine quality, and was awarded special mention. G. R. McDonald gave an instructive lecture on poultry management.

James Stewart, who laid out the estate for Mr. Edward A. Woods and who has had charge of same for the past seven years, is leaving Sewickley to take charge of and develop the estate of Mrs. J. R. Reynolds, Winston Salem, N. C. The best wishes of the society accompany Mr. Stewart, who leaves in a few days to take up his new duties.

LENOX HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY

The monthly meeting of the Lenox (Mass.) Horticultural Society was held on Wednesday evening, Feb. 14th. A. J. Loveless and Edwin Jenkins were appointed delegates to attend the Davey Convention at Kent, Ohio, March 5th to 10th. S. G. Barnes of Pittsfield gave some practical demonstrations of arranging cut flowers. He used roses, narcissi, violets, sweet peas, orchids and carnations, in vases for table and room decorations. The demonstrator used the glass blocks in the bottom of his vases, which are made for this purpose and which can be procured from any florist supply house at a very low price. This brought out a good many different opinions on the ways and means of using cut flowers to best advantage. Mr. Barnes impressed his audience with the great importance of avoiding any discord in colors, also over-crowding, which is so unnatural and fatal.

After Mr. Barnes had finished, Fred Heeremans arranged a vase of Alice carnations after his own idea of arrangement. He used quite a lot of foliage and buds, which produced a very pleasing effect.

GARDENERS' AND FLORISTS' CLUB OF BOSTON.

The February meeting held on Tuesday evening, 20th inst., was a well attended and earnest session. It was announced as Carnation night—a topic sure to stir things up at this season of the year in Boston. The display of carnations on the platform was simply grand, there being probably fifteen hundred blooms in vases of fifty and one hundred and every flower being of top exhibition quality. C. S. Strout brought vases of 100 each of the varieties which won for him big prizes at Indianapolis. David Ward from Cottage Gardens, New York, was there with some fine blooms and was good enough to say he loved Boston, which he considered the only city really interested in carnations, as the display before the Club testified.

C. S. Strout and S. J. Goddard were on the program to address the meeting, the former on his cultural methods and the latter on the novelties he had seen at Indianapolis. Mr. Goddard spoke entertainingly on the different varieties now in the lime light, but was drawn into a debate of considerable length and wide scope covering the ground from the taking of cuttings to the proper basis for awards and recognition of new varieties at flower shows, in which the stock gladiators of the club got well warmed up. Mr. Goddard said that the Dorners were now doing even better work than even their father had accomplished.

Mr. Strout explained the peculiar requirements of his business which is about three-fourths a shipping trade and in giving a list of his preferred varieties showed that the Selection was based largely on their adaptability to his special needs, the varieties being Matchless, White Winsor, Pink Delight, Nancy, Benora, Beacon, Pocahontas, Mrs. Ward and Alice. Mr. Strout stated that one fundamental basis in his culture is to maintain active growth without any check whatever, from the time the cutting is taken until the plants are thrown out of the bench. His experience was that the longer he grows the Cottage Garden varieties the better they become.

Among the other speakers were David Ward, W. E. Lenk of Halifax Gardens, J. A. Nelson, W. D. Howard.

The exhibits included the following: S. J. Goddard—Nancy, Rosalia, Laddie and Doris. C. S. Strout—Matchless, Nancy, Pink Delight, Snow White (seedling) and No. 9, maroon. Cottage Gardens—Cottage Maid and Crystal. W. E. Lenk—Alice Coombs, Mrs. C. W. Ward and Benora. John A. Nelson—seedlings. Littlefield & Wyman—Miss Theo, Eastern Beauty (salmon pink, white fringed) Benora and White Wonder. W. D. Howard—Bernice. P. S. Brigham—Benora and a cerise seedling. E. A. Richards—Greenfield, which took a prize at Indianapolis as No. 110.

Among the miscellaneous exhibits were the following: H. J. Borowski—twelve cyclamen plants of remarkable luxuriance and finish, showing exceptional cultural skill. Duncan Finlayson—Plant of Cymbidium Gottiana (eburneum Lowii x insigne) with 4 ft. spike. W. W. Edgar Co.—Tulip, Pride of Haarlem. A. K. Rogers—Freesias

The report of the dinner committee showed a balance left over, principally due to advertising in the menu, of $235.80, which it was voted to devote to the picnic fund for next July. The secretary announced the receipt of an appreciative reply from the President to the telegram sent from the recent banquet pledging loyal support in the impending international trouble. An invitation to visit the W. W. Edgar Co.'s greenhouses on Saturday, March 24, was enthusiastically accepted. The invitation to send two delegates to the Davey Institute convention at Kent, Ohio, after considerable discussion, was accepted and W. H. Judd and John Duguid were selected, with Messrs. Donald and A. G. Sawyer as alternates.

Twenty-two new members were added to the roll. The next meeting will take place one week earlier than the regular date. Leonard Barron of Garden City, N. Y., will lecture.

CLUB AND SOCIETY NOTES.

At a meeting held Feb. 6th, the Gardeners' and Florists' Club of Washington, Pa., was organized and the following officers elected: president, J. O. Minton; vice-president, Charles McGowan. secretary and treasurer, Wm. J. Warrick, Jr.

A splendid exhibit of carnations was shown at the meeting of the Paterson (N. J.) Floricultural Society on February 6. The competition was very close, first prize being won by E. Vandercliff, gardener for Mrs. Leonard, with eighty-one points; John Garafano, gardener for S. Van Riper, was second, with seventy-nine points, while Robert Petrie, gardener for Dr. Millspaugh, was third, with seventy-seven points. The judges were S. Hubschmidt, J. H. Bowman and Matthew Morgan.

The February meeting of the Rhode Island Horticultural Society will be held in the lecture room, Public Library, Providence, on Wednesday, February 21, 1917. Speaker, Arthur C. Miller, Inspector of Apiaries. Subject, "Bees and the Fruit Grower." Business meeting, 7.45 P. M. Lecture at 8 P. M. Opportunity will be given after the lecture for the formation of a beekeepers' association.

The American Society of Landscape Architects which met in Boston on Friday, February 16, is putting through with the assistance of the department of agriculture at Washington and various nurserymen, a standardization of the common names of plants throughout the United States. Another project is being carried on by the committee on relations with trades, seeking, as its name suggests, to bring about a better understanding between the profession and those who supply it—chiefly dealers in plant material. And still another is that of traveling exhibits by which plans, prospective sketches and photographs of work already done may be shown all over the country. The billboard nuisance, National parks, the preservation of Niagara Falls and other questions relating to public reservations, were considered. The chairman of a committee announced that data in great variety on city planning is being collected for Belgian officials who will ultimately have charge of the rebuilding of Belgian cities. After dinner Loring Underwood gave a talk on "Old New England Gardens," illustrated with lantern slides, which were photographed directly in colors.

DURING RECESS.

N. Y. and N. J. Plant Growers.

The Tenth Annual Dinner of the New York and New Jersey Association of Plant Growers was held in the Green Room at the Hotel McAlpin, New York City, on Saturday, February 17th. The attendance exceeded all expectations. The guests were seated at round tables which permitted dancing between the courses. This feature was greatly enjoyed by the majority present. After a hearty dinner, the president, J. H. Fiesser, who acted as toastmaster, called upon a number of speakers, including F. R. Pierson, Anton Schultheis, A. L. Miller, James McHutchison, George E. M. Stumpp, William H. Siebrecht, Sr. and Jr. Immediately after the speeches were over the dancing was again indulged in and continued much later than the plant growers usually dance.

CANNAS

Our Own Introductions

Dreer's New White Canna Eureka

Eureka. We consider this the best white flowering Canna for all purposes to which Cannas are devoted. It is of robust constitution, growing four feet high, forming sturdy, shapely plants very quickly. Its free flowering tendency can be readily understood when we chronicle the fact that a small plant set out May 15th, three months later carried 15 immense heads of flowers. These are of a creamy-white, changing in full sun to a pure white. $1.25 per doz.; $8.00 per 100; $75.00 per 1000.

Favorite. There have been many yellow Cannas spotted with carmine or crimson that were good; it is, therefore, particularly interesting to find a variety that in every way eclipses its many predecessors and for which we have singled out this sort. The color is a rich, deep golden-yellow, produced on tall stems high above the foliage. The red dots, which are not too pronounced, add to the piquancy of the flower, without detracting from the golden mass effect. 5 feet. 35 cts. each; $3.50 per doz.; $25.00 per 100.

Orange Bedder. A particularly attractive bedding variety of a bright orange with just sufficient scarlet suffusion to intensify the dazzling mass of color when the wide branching stems are covered with flowers. $1.25 per doz.; $8.00 per 100; $75.00 per 1000.

The Gem. An entirely distinct spotted variety. The immense trusses of flowers are borne on upright branching stems well above the foliage, and are of deep cream or straw-yellow, spotted with deep carmine. $1.25 per doz.; $8.00 per 100; $75.00 per 1000.

One each of the above 4 varieties for 75 cts.

TWO DISTINCT CANNAS—The Last Introductions Received from Germany in the Autumn of 1914

Lahneck. In this variety we have an entirely distinct departure and advance in the assortment of pink Cannas. First of all we have in Lahneck a free grower, producing an abundance of trusses on erect stalks, well above the foliage. The color is difficult to describe and convey an adequate impression of its worth. It is fundamentally rosy, but throughout the flowers there are lines and shadings of scarlet-carmine hues that add much to their brightness. Add to this a narrow pale-gold border and you may form a slight conception of the beauty of this novelty. 75 cts. each; $7.50 per dozen.

Scharfenstein. Another variety that is sure to take a place among the standard sorts as quickly as it becomes known. The beautifully formed, large round florets are produced in compact but graceful trusses well above the green foliage. The color is a unique light red salmon with orange and carmine suffusions that altogether forms a most attractive addition to the range of colors found in Cannas. You will like Scharfenstein. 75 cts. each; $7.50 per dozen.

PLANTING THE HOME GROUNDS.

Part of a paper written for the Peninsula Horticultural Society, Dover, Del., by R. Vincent, Jr., of Whitmarsh, Md. (The portion here given was followed by comprehensive lists of planting material for various purposes and locations with practical directions for soil preparation, spacing, exposures, etc.)

This article is not intended to cover large estates where the grounds are extensive—the correct way would be then to employ a thoroughly competent landscape gardener—therefore, my article today takes in the places and situations that practically can be made good by the owner or ordinary gardener. The list of trees, shrubs, plants, etc., that are here offered are those that in my judgment are best adapted to the majority of locations.

Too many places have their beauty spoiled by too much tree planting; that is, in a great many cases too many trees are planted on a limited space. This not only occurs around the humble cottage, but many places of large dimensions are in the same condition. This sometimes is solely the owner's fault, and again it is the man supplying the trees who wants to dispose of as many as possible, and induces the party for whom he is planting that to make a display at once so many must be planted. This is all very well if they are planted so as to be removed or cut out in a few years, and they should be so placed that this may be accomplished, but often it is not and the consequences are, that after a time one tree overgrows and disfigures another. Too many mistakes are also made in not studying the size to which the tree will grow, and in planting too close to buildings, road or pathway, thus becoming a nuisance by crowding roadway or path. Then limbs have to be lopped off to make room for passage, disfiguring the trees or bushes and making a bad appearance generally.

Another point where a number of mistakes are made is in planting too many of the same variety as is frequently done on small places. The varieties of trees and shrubs are innumerable and can be gotten in endless variety—and variety is what gives charm and beauty to any place whether large or small.

There are some situations where the planting of certain kinds of trees or shrubs en masse is correct and gives a goodly appearance. This is not what I have reference to, but to small places where you will see possibly four or five weeping trees, all of one variety, or the same in hardy hydrangeas or shrubbery of a like character, too much sameness to be beautiful. If those planting the home grounds would spend a little time inspecting other places that are well planted, and then consult some good gardener, the result would be more artistic even though expense was added, and they would be well paid in after years. Do not consult the man who calls himself a "landscape gardener" simply because he has a few trees and shrubs to sell, as he is more than likely to recommend what he has in stock than varieties you would have to procure elsewhere.

I have heard several lectures by parties advocating the procuring of trees, etc., from the woods or forest for their home-ground planting. This might do, and has been done in some cases, but in the majority has not been successful, as a tree or brush grown in some shade or partial shade more or less, then transplanted out into the bright sunshine is apt to harden the bark, and then it takes a long time to start growing, whereas the nursery-grown tree has been grown out in the elements, and if of any size has been transplanted several times, is better rooted and is in a condition to grow right along, and if properly planted it will soon outstrip the forest tree. I once heard a speaker, who claims to be an educated gardener, tell his audience that they should go out in the woods near by and dig up some of the large holly, cedar and pine trees and plant around some of their buildings that needed hiding. Of course, he was telling the people something he, himself, had never tried out. If he had, he would have known better than to recommend any such policy, as anyone who has tried to transplant large wild evergreens knows to his sorrow. Small ones can be and are transplanted, and occasionally a large one, but a great deal of care is required.

The various garden clubs are doing a greater work than they have any idea of, not only beautifying their own grounds, but educating their neighbors along the same lines. Also, what is being done in a great many cities and suburbs, is teaching the people to improve the opportunity of having flowers either in window or porch boxes or in making the back yard a little paradise. In many instances the fences for a whole block have been removed, giving the block a park-like appearance—a thing of beauty instead of ash barrels, bottles, tin cans and rubbish of all kinds. If such a change can be made in and under these conditions in a city, how much more can be done away from the city in the suburbs under much more favorable conditions than our city cousins have.

The man or woman these days who does not wish for a garden is hard to find, and there are some that are beautiful even if very small. It may only be a porch or window box, but for all that it is a joy to the owner if well kept; and that owner is as proud of that box when the plants therein look well as the owner of a large garden or park. But a protest ought to be registered against some of the boxes and vases around public buildings, hotels, etc. They are often filled by contract early in the season, and, with the exception of water occasionally, are left to take care of themselves. Plants will die sometimes or get straggly or bare and ought to be replaced, which is not often done, consequently, instead of being beautiful, are only an eyesore. A little attention in replacing the indifferent plants would have a pleasing effect the whole season. The great city of London has thousands upon thousands of window boxes, and the house dwellers seem to vie with one another as to who can have the prettiest. The consequence is many a beauty spot for the city dweller to cast his eyes upon.

Trees, deciduous evergreens, shrubs, perennials, etc., are as much a part of the well-balanced garden as the lawn or flower beds; many of them are as highly decorative as any ornamental foliage plants, and some varieties are as useful as cut flowers, and a planting can be arranged so as to have some bloom or attraction the entire growing season, and with the evergreen trees, shrubbery, etc., a cheerful appearance will be had when the NE of the interesting things about our business is, that every so often a man who for years has been buying certain seeds from us, will stop for a season and try some other seeds. In nine cases out of ten, however, back he comes the next year and buys a larger assortment than ever.

It's like a fellow's going away from home for a time—when he comes back, he appreciates the home as he never did before.

Whether you are one of our stick-tight customers, an entirely new one; or an old one returning to the fold; you will find the 1917 catalog has the usual number of goodly new things. Things that have been tried and tested as only Sutton's try and test. It's this continual painstaking trying and testing that makes Sutton's seeds dependable.

Our catalog is so elaborate and expensive to produce, that you will readily appreciate why we make a small charge of 35c. for a copy; but this is promptly refunded when your orders amount to $5 or more.

winter's snows are falling. Shrubs have many uses, such as a dividing line between places or the vegetable garden, or between the lawn and unsightly scenes beyond. They can be planted in a mixed shrubby border, the taller growing ones back, and the short, dense growing ones front.

Thorough preparation of the soil by spading, or where possible the tree holes should be dynamited, as this does the work much more thoroughly than is possible by spading, and a properly prepared hole in which to plant a tree or bush means a great deal in the quickness and healthiness of the growth. To get this result, well rotted manure or bone meal should also be incorporated with the soil. After the trees are planted, if a good mulch of manure or litter is spread over the ground only a limited amount of cultivation will be necessary—just sufficient to keep down the weeds. When planting, care should be taken not to over-crowd, allowing ample room for future development, unless immediate effect is wanted, in which case they may be planted close and afterward every other one removed, but it is far better to plant at a regular distance, using some annuals to fill up until the regular planting covers the ground.

WESTCHESTER AND FAIRFIELD HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY.

At the monthly meeting on Friday evening, Feb. 9, there was an exceptionally good attendance and a very fine display of exhibits for which the judges made the following awards: Cultural certificates to Jas. Stuart for cyclamen; to Thos. Aitchison for amaryllises; to John Forbes for Hoosier Beauty roses and to Wm. Whitton for mixed antirrhinums. High commendation to Wm. Graham for mignonette, sweet peas, violets and carnations; to Robt. Grunnert for cinerarias, carnations and display of primula; to John Forbes for vase of Ophelia roses; to James Linaine for Primula malacoides; to Wm. Whitton for primulas, and to P. W. Popp for narcissi. Wm. Whitton was also awarded honorable mention for Darwin tulips. The thanks of the society was awarded to P. W. Popp for freesia hybrids and to Robt. Williamson for new rose Los Angeles. The first prize for the most meritorious exhibit was awarded to Jas. Stuart for plant of cyclamen, second went to Thos. Aitchison for display of amaryllises, and third to Wm. Whitton for vase of mixed antirrhinums.

After the business was finished a smoker and social session was held. Mr. Henry Wild was elected toastmaster and he filled that office to perfection. Songs were rendered by Messrs. Mitchell, Maynard, Collins, Forbes, Paton and Clarkson. Mr. Scott of Elmsford, Mr. Neubrand of Tarrytown and Mr. Troy of New Rochelle each said a few words. Light refreshments and cigars were passed around and it was almost midnight when the company broke up after singing "Auld Lang Syne."

The new Executive Committee are to be congratulated on getting up the entertainment, as it was certainly one of the finest times that ever was held by the society. Amongst the visitors were: W. J. Collins of Carter's, Boston, Eber Holmes, rep. W. A. Manda, So. Orange, N. J.; Mr. Hunt, rep. Boddington's, New York; Mr. Watkins of Burnett Bros., New York; also representatives from Weeber & Don, New York, Bobbink & Atkins, Rutherford, N. J., and Lord & Burnham Co., New York.

MASSACHUSETTS AGRICULTURAL COLLEGE.

A bomb was exploded in the midst of the campus last week when Professor A. H. Nehrling suddenly passed in his resignation as Head of the Department of Floriculture. Professor Nehrling announces that he is to enter the field of business, having taken over the McDonald Floral Company at Crawfordsville, Indiana. He will carry on a retail and wholesale business, but at the same time intends to keep in touch with educational work and will devote some time to giving lectures throughout the Middle-West. In connection with his business he is to inaugurate a landscape service bureau. Professor Nehrling came to the college early in the year 1914. In the three short years that he has been at the college he has become very popular, both among faculty and students. Since he has been here he has inaugurated many new things in the department, and has improved the department many times. The department is now on a systematic business basis. From a department of four courses he has raised a department of ten courses. Under his direction a large perennial garden was started at the college. He has been especially active among the florists of the Connecticut Valley and has succeeded in bringing about a real co-operation among them. The annual flower show is another of his innovations and each year has seen a steady rise in their popularity.

It was with sincere regret that his students learned of his resignation, and the man that comes to Prof. Nehrling's position will have some big shoes to fill.

The annual Boston trip of the Floriculture classes took place February 15-18. On Thursday the Waban Rose Conservatories were visited. Here Mr. Montgomery took the students around and pointed out many interesting things pertaining to rose growing.

From Natick the classes visited J. T. Butterworth in Framingham, where a most excellent collection of orchids was seen. To the students Mr. Butterworth gave the impression of "knowing his line" completely.

At S. J. Goddard's in Framingham were viewed some of the best carnations met with on the trip. Stanley Hall, a graduate of the college, is now engaged in Goddard's.

Friday morning the wholesale flower markets were visited, where the students were very kindly shown around by Mr. Thurston. For the remainder of the morning a study of retail stores was made. Penn, Galvin and Carbone were all visited. In the afternoon, private estates in Brookline were visited. At Faulkner farms, Mr. Ness and Mr. McIntyre showed the students through the greenhouses, while Mr. Craig, superintendent, took the students on a tour of the estate. At Weld Gardens, the students went through the greenhouses and saw many plants grown to perfection.

BOLGIANO'S TOMATO SEEDS

Are grown by us as far north as Tomatoes will mature.

They are Free from Blight—
Most Carefully Grown—Most Carefully Selected—Most Carefully Saved

JUST FOR SEED

Bolgiano's Tomato Seeds are well known for their big yields of large, firm, solid, meaty uniform Tomatoes.

We grow Tomatoes—just for seed, even the pulp we destroy. Not an ounce of Canning House Tomato Seed is allowed to enter our Establishment.

TOMATO SEED FOR YOUR 1917 CROP

You will get an enormous crop of Tomatoes from Bolgiano's Tomato Seeds this year. Our Seed was saved from one of the largest crops we have ever had, due to being favored by weather conditions. The vines were loaded with Large, Solid, Red Fruit. We know positively by planting Seed from this "Big Crop" your yield will be much larger than if you had bought seed grown where the weather conditions were not favorable.

Saturday morning Thomas Roland's houses at Revere were visited. The establishment impressed the students as very neat and systematic. At Cliftondale the famous Sim's sweet peas were inspected. Mr. Sim took the students around and pointed out his experiments with primulas and auriculas.

Thomas Roland's establishment in Nahant gave the impression of being one of the best and most business-like of its kind. Mr. Ringdahl proved very interesting and showed the visitors many interesting things.

All the students voted the trip a tremendous success, and only wish there had been time to visit more of these large establishments about Boston.

Where Reform is Needed.

When the Irish Department of Agriculture has to make the statement that "some seed retailers are still found selling grossly inferior and even worthless seeds," it becomes unpleasantly apparent that even now, long after the strenuous efforts that were years ago made to put an end to the one-time common practice of adulterating seed and of foisting upon the unwary old and useless stuff, there are still some who stoop to such despicable frauds. A point which has important bearing is that in Ireland, and in some parts of England, dealers who have no more right to be called seedsmen than a small shopkeeper who sells Rhubarb pills has to be called a chemist, dabble in farm and garden seeds, and probably, as much through ignorance as evil intent, handle such seeds as a legitimate seedsman would not tolerate in his warehouse.

It would be a good thing for the Trade and for the farmer—and I submit it would be but just and reasonable—if the law made it an illegal offense for any firm or person who does not employ a qualified seedsman, or is not himself a qualified man, to sell seeds to farmers or gardeners. Even if it involved the licensing of the legitimate seedsmen, such a measure would be a boon and a safeguard so long as no incompetent dealer could obtain a license. It is a common practice in rural districts for a man to engage in a miscellaneous dealer's business, accepting orders for seeds as readily as for coal, lime, or paraffin oil, and to such a man the price of the seed is of more importance than quality, purity of stock, or even germinating power, but it is a serious matter if the misdeeds of such are to be allowed to reflect discredit upon the Seed Trade. —Onlooker, in Horticultural Trade Journal (Eng.).

Our Little Back Lot.

Let them tell us, who will, of their broad, rolling farms.

And their eloquent, annual gains:
Let them dwell, if they choose, on the many rare charms

Of their far-reaching acres of grains.
But unless they have tried it they never can guess

Of the jolly good fun to be got
From the radishes, lettuce, beets, onions and cress,

Peas, beans and tomatoes, full many a mess.

Which we grow in our little back lot.

Which "we" grow,—for my wife and the children and I.

We all join, each one doing his best
In our pleasant endeavor, and eager to try
To bring forth good things for the rest.
And I'm sure we are truly as happy as kings.

Though we dwell in a plain little cot,
We're so fond of the glad vernal season that brings

All the savory, toothsome, delectable things
That grow in our little back lot.

CHICAGO.

Mrs. H. D. Schiller is recovering from an operation for appendicitis at St. Joseph's hospital.

The firm of Erne & Klingel becomes Erne & Co. through the sale of the interest of Fred. L. Klingel, who retires on account of poor health.

George Asmus is suffering from a very severe attack of rheumatism and has been confined to his home at 2309 Warren Ave. for two weeks.

A new wholesale store made its appearance this week in the heart of the wholesale district. Wiltgen & Freres are to be found at 173 N. Wabash Avenue, in the basement of the new E. C. Amling store.

Among the St. Valentine's Day novelties were the surprise boxes offered by the A. L. Randall Co. They contained a heart-shaped receptacle for holding a corsage, making a very attractive appearance whether open or closed.

Since the florists' business is no longer the dead affair in summer that it used to be it is not unusual for heads of large houses to slip away for a winter vacation. A. L. Randall and Manager F. M. Johnson made some of theirs by a trip to Cuba from which they have just returned.

Since the organization of the American Bulb Co., a few months ago, the firm has done a great deal of business, but they are always reaching out for more. Members of the firm are on the road constantly. Sam Seligman's proposed trip to Japan has been called off for the present owing to international complications.

At Wm. J. Smythe's store at Michigan Ave. and 31st St., business has been highly satisfactory all the season. The improvements made last summer have proved the advertising value of a large, well kept window. Mr. Smythe has the largest in the city. Valentine business was heavy in corsages of violets and orchids, as well as in plants.

Miss Schiller has returned from Mexico and Arizona, where she was called on account of the critical illness of her sister's husband, Walter Hilliar. He was able to return home with them. The wedding of Reinhold Schiller, who is in charge of the downtown store, and Miss Alice White took place at the bride's home, 5310 W. Monroe St., Wednesday, Feb. 21st, and they started at once for a honeymoon in the south.

The Misses Edna Frauenfelder and Bonnié Cody gave a successful Valentine masquerade at the store at 3343 W. Madison St., last Saturday evening. The counters were pushed back and about fifty young people danced to the music of a Victrola, while overhead were decorations suitable to the memory of St. Valentine. Refreshments were served. Miss Frauenfelder is her father's right hand "man" in the store, and her exhibit at the La Salle Hotel at the recent flower show will be remembered as particularly artistic.

Mrs. J. Simpson had special window decorations for Valentine's Day at both stores, 3656 Ogden Ave. and 432 N. Parkside Ave. The chief feature was a chariot, driven by a cupid and drawn by butterflies which a current of air from an electric fan kept in constant motion. It added much to the attractiveness of the store, where Valentine trade was especially good in plants and plant baskets. In cut flowers, corsages of sweet peas and violets led. Telegraph orders for that day were much more frequent than ever before.

PITTSBURGH.

DeForrest W. Ludwig, who, with Mrs. Ludwig, is spending the winter in Los Angeles, California, is engaged in some commission work for the A. L. Randall Company of Chicago.

Edward J. Baumbach, salesman and designer for the E. C. Ludwig Company, who has been seriously ill for the past three weeks with pneumonia, is now thought to be out of danger.

Murray A. McGrew, head salesman for G. P. Weaklin & Company, has the sympathy of his friends in the dangerous illness of Mrs. McGrew, whose condition at time of writing is considered critical.

Many firms lost more or less through improperly packed shipments during the recent inclement weather. Considerable discomfort was experienced at various places owing to lack of gas for heating and many were obliged to turn to coal and wood for the time being.

Beginning about ten days before St. Valentine's Day, Randolph & McClements had a succession of window displays on alternating days, each seeming to surpass its predecessor in charm and cleverness of design. The final exhibition found the wide window ledge filled with Cupid figures and Colonial bouquets, in artistic confusion. On the floor were large handsome boxes tied with broad satin ribbons, several being open and filled with long-stemmed flowers.

WASHINGTON, D. C.

The police are looking for a man who last week passed a fraudulent check for $5 on Fred H. Kramer. The man gave a $2.50 order and received the balance in change. Later the check came back from the bank unhonored. It bears the signature of "P. S. Rainey," and is made payable to "L. O'Dea."

NEW YORK.

In our mention of the new city headquarters of the Beechwood Heights Nurseries of Bound Brook, N. J., at 57 West 28th street, we inadvertently mentioned it as the Bound Brook Nurseries, which is another and quite different concern.

PERSONAL.

Announcement is made of the wedding to take place next April, of Louis Wesch and Miss Alice Marret, daughter of Jos. E. Marret, florist, Louisville, Ky.

Announcement has just been made of the marriage on January 11, of John R. Coombs, of Coombs Brothers, West Hartford, Conn., to Miss Isabelle Checkers.

Charles Rodgers, formerly with the King Construction Company, is now with the Metropolitan Material Company as foreman of greenhouse construction.

William F. McGranahan, who has been caretaker and gardener of the Coles estate, in Bar Harbor, Me., for the past 19 years, has gone to Philadelphia where he has taken a position.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert E. Hall, parents of Harold R. Hall, Main street, Taunton, Mass., observed the fiftieth anniversary of their wedding day at their home in Fairhaven, on Monday, February 12.

Milford Irving is now manager of the Backer & Co. greenhouses in Billerica, Mass., having taken the place of Gustav Thommen, who resigned his position in Billerica to move to Reading, where he has purchased a farm.

Gentlemen:

The first insertion of my ad. in the Buyers' Directory in HORTICULTURE was sufficient to dispose of my entire stock of gladioli and the second would better have been omitted as I am unable to fill the many orders which have resulted. Don't insert it again. I am agreeably surprised at the results from so small an ad. Soon I shall have some other stock ready and I will sell it through HORTICULTURE.

LUKE DOOGUE'S NEW POSITION.

City dwellers who wish to combat the high cost of living by raising garden truck in their back yards are to be tutored in the fine points of farming at a bureau established by Mayor Curley.

Although he knows a thing or two about the methods to be followed in forcing a crop of near-Aroostook potatoes from a 10 by 12 plot of city soil, the Mayor believes that the city farmers should be advised by one deeply versed in the secrets of scientific agriculture.

So he has delegated Luke Doogue, son of the late William Doogue, who for years was city forester, to give expert advice at the farming bureau that is to be opened in the park and recreation department offices, 33 Beacon St.

Mr. Doogue was for years associated with his father in agricultural work, and therefore is well equipped to tell city folks how rich harvests are to be gained.

In the opinion of the Mayor, there is no reason why industrious citizens should not grow onions, cabbage, tomatoes and other vegetables just as successfully as their brethren in the rural districts.

The course of instruction will not include tips on how to graft watermelon sprouts on squash vines. But all persons anxious to get back to nature will be told just what to do in order to raise ordinary vegetables that can be seen without the aid of a microscope.

For two hours daily Mr. Doogue will dispense information on farming. During this period, the time of which is to be announced later, he will be at the service of all citizens who visit the offices of the park and recreation department.

Mr. Doogue is now connected with the department in a clerical capacity.

"No doubt there will be many citizens anxious to make use of their plots of land as a means of holding down the cost of living," said the Mayor.

A GOLDEN WEDDING GIFT.

The little floral design shown here is an example of a very popular style of flower arrangement in New York this season. Being a golden wedding token, the flowers used were yellow marguerites, yellow antirrhinums, marigolds and calendulas with golden ribbon. Made by Max Schling.

"The trouble is that not one in ten know how to go about it.

"They are as much in the dark as they are in regard to the principles of raising poultry. Many people blindly try their luck at chicken farming. They meet with flat failure. There is no more chance of success in agricultural work, unless they first get expert advice. That's what I intend shall be available for them."—Boston Post.

Provincetown, Mass.—J. and A. E. Biram have made sale of the Pilgrim Greenhouses and business to Newton The Florist, who will remove the buildings to his own land, placing them at the rear of his present greenhouse plant.

Flower Market Reports

BOSTON A steady business at gradually diminishing prices, as crops increase in volume, is the record of the past week in this market. Carnations have been coming in with more freedom than at any time this season, but they hold their price in a very encouraging manner. Roses are not over-plentiful and they, also, hold their prices fully up to the seasonable limit. Sweet peas are more abundant and the bulb flower supply is well in excess of requirements, but with a little more salubrious weather the street merchant may be depended upon to hold down the daffodil surplus. Callas are still at the top-notch figures. Quality of all stocks is excellent.

The supply in cut stock BUFFALO was about equal the demand the past week. The cut of carnations is becoming heavier each day, and also tulips, daffodils, Golden Spur, freesia, hyacinths, etc. Lilies are quite scarce and have had a good demand. Roses have not been too plentiful, especially the short and medium grades. There is good select stock in Killarney, Shawyer, Ophelia, Ward, Richmond, Sunburst, etc., and prices have been holding up well. Valentine's day business was better than a year previous, though the weather from Monday till Wednesday was at zero, causing many violets and other stock to come in frozen. Trains from 4 to 7 hours late inconvenienced both the wholesaler and retailer.

St. Valentine's Day was CHICAGO a surprise to the trade notwithstanding the fact that much had been done to increase the sales on this increasingly popular holiday. Wholesalers were prepared for the business which began early and lasted late, but when the day's sales were footed up, they exceeded all expectations. This left the market in good shape for the rest of the week and Saturday sales cleaned up most of the stock excepting carnations and these sold with a little more vim than the week before. The sale of cattleyas has been very good all the month and these were one of the most popular flowers for valentine corsages. American Beauties are still so scarce that they are almost out of the race. All kinds of spring flowers are in great favor and they form a large part of the stock that is handled each day. Probably more violets were sold last week than in any other week this winter. Valentine trade helped out the plant trade also, the demand being the heaviest ever experienced in Chicago at this time of the year. Lincoln's birthday, which is a legal holiday in Illinois, coming on Monday preceding Valentine's day, made a heavy call for everything in blooming plants and was well cared for by heavy stock of bulbs in pans, azaleas, etc., and Washington's birthday will continue the demand.

The supply of stock CINCINNATI is still somewhat limited and all that comes in cleans up very readily. Some shipments came in frozen during the recent cold snap. The rose supply is very short. Red ones were very scarce for Valentine day. The carnation supply, too, is somewhat short. Sweet peas are fairly plentiful and find a good market. Lilies sell well. All bulbous stock has been meeting with the favor of the buyers. Violets are in a fair supply, also orchids and lily of the valley.

Not much change in NEW YORK conditions of demand and prices is looked for until the coming in of Lent, at least. Supplies will unquestionably increase, but the warmer weather now due will open up avenues for distribution which have been closed for an unusually long period of time. All bulbous stock is coming in very heavily. Carnations are also increasing daily and there are large receipts of many other market staples. Stock in wholesale hands fluctuates with market conditions, but in general the market is "standing pat" just now and no serious or permanent break is yet in sight. Roses are making an excellent record.

Valentine week PHILADELPHIA proved fully up to expectations and a very good business was transacted all along the line. Prices held firm at previous high figures with the exception of bulbous stock and carnations. These were more plentiful and figures eased up a trifle. Roses are still scarce—especially American Beauty—but from now on the crop will gradually increase and they will soon be back to normal. The rose situation is nothing unusual, as it always happens about this time of year. Snapdragon is now one of the strong features of the market, both in quality and quantity. Sweet peas continue very fine and meet with ready sale. In cattleyas the leader now is the lovely Trianae, and this is supplemented by a limited supply of Schroederae which has just commenced to come in crop. The way the wholesalers were hustling out orders this Monday morning it looked more like a pre-Christmas than a pre-Lent date. The morning rush of late years seems to be the rule. After 3 P. M. there is not much doing. We will have 5 P. M. closing pretty soon, I think, in winter as well as summer.

Local florists are well pleased with the business done for Saint Valentine's Day which, it is reported, seems to have broken all records. The sale of sweet peas and single violets was very good but double violets seem to have hung fire. Carnations are more plentiful but still clean up at the close of each day. Roses are scarce. American Beauty brought up to $1 each, the highest price since Christmas. Lily of the valley is more plentiful, is cheaper, and in better demand. There are plenty of spring flowers of very good quality. There is a marked scarcity of greens brought about by the recent cold wave which killed a large part of the stock south of Washington.

Visitors' Register

Philadelphia—Leonard H. Vaughan, Chicago, Ill.; A. Lincoln Brown, Cleveland, O.

Washington, D. C.—W. B. Lake, Phila., Pa.; Edward Boylan, Vaughan's Seed Store, New York; Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Eisele, Riverton, N. J.

Pittsburgh—C. Colnson, representing Bergman Brothers, Sassenheim, Holland; C. B. Knickman, or McHutchison & Co., New York.

Chicago—Mrs. W. S. Evans, La Salle, Ill.; D. F. Harrison, Kankakee, Ill.; M. Alexander, N. Y.; A. H. Barber, Cleveland, O.; Ralph M. Ward, New York City; H. Smith, Danville, Ill.; A. N. Kinsman, Austin, Minn.; A. J. Smith, of H. Frank Darrow Co., N. Y.; E. Gullett, Lincoln, Ill.

The Rochester (N. Y.) Florists' Association at a meeting on February 11 planned preliminary arrangements for a peony show, in the near future. The following committee was selected by H. B. Stringer, president of the association, to make plans and select a date for the show, and report at the next meeting: John Dunbar, assistant superintendent of parks, chairman; Charles H. Vick, C. B. Ogston, N. R. Graves, George B. Hart, E. P. Wilson.

Plant Propagation, Greenhouse and Nursery Practice

By M. G. KAINS

We have had many inquiries from time to time for a reliable and up-to-date book on plant propagation, but were always at a loss to find any publication that we could recommend. The subject has been dealt with in fragmentary manner only in books that have come to our notice. So it is well that this new work has been issued, especially as it is both comprehensive and practical, and it should meet with a ready sale among plantmen, nurserymen and gardeners. There are nineteen chapters covering in detail topics of germination and longevity of seeds, propagating by buds, layering, cuttings, grafting, etc., fruit tree stocks, clones, etc., and there are eight pages of condensed cultural instructions in tabulated form, covering annuals and perennials from seed, woody plants, evergreens, vines, bulbs and tubers, greenhouse and house plants, ferns, palms, water plants, orchids and cacti. The illustrations are numerous, comprising 213 figures and half-tone plates. There are 322 pages well bound and on heavy paper, teeming with helpful information. It is a book which no cultivator can afford to do without. It is worth many times its price. Copies can be supplied from the office of HORTICULTURE at publisher's price, $1.50.

Cyrus R. Keene.

Cyrus R. Keene, for many years engaged in the nursery business in Cohasset, Mass., died at his home in that town on February 17, aged 88 years.

Alexander Miller.

Word has been received of the death on January 26, at Glasgow, Scotland, of Alexander Miller, father of Peter Miller of the Thos. J. Grey Company, seedsmen of Boston. Mr. Miller, whose age was seventy years, was ill but two days. He visited this country four years ago. He leaves, besides Peter, two sons, who are at the front in the war, and two daughters.

Rev. W. T. Hutchins.

All sweet pea lovers will be sorry to learn of the passing away, three weeks since, of this well known pioneer in the work of popularizing the sweet pea in America. Mr. Hutchins took up the Eckford sweet pea introductions over a quarter century ago and their advancement in this country was largely due to his enthusiasm. He was located in Indian Village, Mass., then, and was a frequent exhibitor at the shows of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society in Boston. A very genial and kindly gentleman he was and none knew him but to love him.

John Allan.

John Allan, for many years superintendent of "Oakland Farm" in Portsmouth, R. I., when it was the property of the late Cornelius Vanderbilt, died at his home on Wesley street, Newport, on February 15, after a long illness, in his eighty-fourth year. He was born April 17, 1833, in Edinburgh, Scotland, a son of William and Elizabeth (Richardson) Allan, his father being for several years gardener and steward on the estate of Sir William Johnson at Donegal, Ireland. Mr. Allan attended the public schools of Donegal and later worked with his father. In 1853 he came with his parents to the United States and was employed as a gardener in New York, Baltimore, Albany, and Highwood, N. J. In 1886 he accepted the superintendency of "Oakland Farm," and continued there for 19 years, retiring in 1905 from active work, and had since made his home in Newport. He leaves one son, John T. Allan, and several grandchildren.

PUBLICATIONS RECEIVED.

Proceedings of the Eighteenth Annual Convention of the American Association of Park Superintendents, held at New Orleans, La., October, 1916. This is a complete report, 92 pages, of a very earnest and instructive session of this progressive organization.

The twenty-ninth annual report of the Purdue University Agricultural Experiment Station, Lafayette, Ind., covers the doings for the year ending June 30, 1916, and make a pamphlet of 100 pages. We cannot refrain from noting that, as indicated by the report of the Chief of the Horticultural Department, orchard topics and truck crops are the limits of "horticultural" activity at Purdue.

AGRICULTURAL STATISTICS is a new quarterly publication, containing simplified tabulated statements, showing at a glance the farm productions of the United States, showing how much each state raises, the quantity per acre, etc., during a series of years. It also gives intelligent comparisons concerning each branch of agriculture, state by state, so that the possession of Agricultural Statistics in handy pocket form gives a valuable encyclopedia. The price per copy is 25 cents. Published by The Hale Publishing Company, 3550 Vista Ave., St. Louis, Mo.

We have just received from that untiring enthusiast, Rev. C. S. Harrison, a copy of the new edition of his interesting and instructive Peony Manual, giving complete directions for the propagation and cultivation of this grand old favorite flower. Mr. Harrison is an apostle of the gospel of floral beauty and sweetness and he is at his best when he talks of his beloved peonies and irises. The manual under review is thorough and reliable as well as inspiring and is materially enlarged and improved over the former issues. Price 25 cents a copy. The Manual on the Iris comes also in enlarged form and more beautiful dress, with twelve full page engravings and some very valuable lists of varieties. Price 25 cents. The Manual on the Phlox is the third of Mr. Harrison's useful publications. It tells the whole story of growing and raising new varieties. Price 25 cents. Any of the above may be ordered from HORTICULTURE.

SMOKE

Let's Smoke Out The Greenhouse Cost Coon

GETTING rid of wrong ideas, is sometimes like smoking out a coon. They seem to get up inside some hollow of our brain and persist in staying there until something or somebody smokes them out.

For example; take the question of the cost of our Iron Frame house; there are still some growers, who when it comes to building, seem to figure only on how much ground they can cover for so much money.

How it's covered, is unimportant. They entirely lose sight of the fact, that in a few years they will have to uncover it and cover it up again by building another house.

In the meantime, they have been covering their first house with money, to cover the repairs.

Sooner or later, repair costs and re-building costs, will smoke such ideas out of their brain hollow, and you'll see them building Iron Frame houses.

But isn't it strange that they first have to learn all over for themselves, what has already been learned so conclusively by so many others!

If you happen to know of any one who has just smoked himself out; we would greatly appreciate it, if you would mention to him that we go anywhere for business. Or to talk business.

Burpee's Seeds Grow

New Aster

American Beauty

American grown Aster seed is now acknowledged to be so vastly superior to European grown seed that there is no reason why European grown seed should be at all considered. Even in the Early Queen of the Market type American grown seed has been found superior to European. The Royal and Crego types closely follow Queen of the Market, and these are followed by the Late Branching types.

Burpee's New American Beauty Aster is in type of growth and form of flower similar to the Late Branching, but differs in that all the large blossoms are produced on much longer and heavier stems. In some instances stems measure more than two feet in length. It has the longest blooming period of any Aster that we know of. The large double flowers are of a bright carmine-rose almost identical with the World's Famous American Beauty Rose.

Mr. Fred Howard of Howard & Smith, Los Angeles, California, writes March 29, 1916, in reference to American Beauty Aster: "It is in my opinion one of the most remarkable Asters which has come into bloom during the month of July, and we were still cutting from them late in September. It is unlikely that they would come into bloom so early under Eastern conditions, but if they come in later I have no doubt the season during which they flower would be equivalent. The stems are absolutely non-lateral branching. The flowers attain an enormous size owing to the fact that the entire sap flow is diverted to the one terminal bud or flower. The color is a distinct shade of carmine-rose. The addition of new colors to this new type of Asters will in my opinion prove to be a strain of great merit."

Burpee's American Beauty Aster is illustrated in color on the front cover of Burpee's Annual for 1917, and now that we have harvested a little more seed than was estimated we have decided to offer it to the Florist Trade. This Superb Aster should have a place in every Aster field. It will certainly prove its superior merit.

Packet containing 40 seeds 10 cts., packet of 120 seeds 25 cts., trade packet 1000 seeds $1.25.

FLOWER SEEDS FOR FLORISTS

Florists and Market Gardeners, in addition to Burpee's Annual, should have Burpee's Blue List, the Market Growers' Handbook. This is a wholesale price list for commercial planters. Write for this to-day. A post card will bring it.

NOTES ON CULTURE OF FLORISTS' STOCK

CONDUCTED BY

John J. M. Farrell

Questions by our readers in line with any of the topics presented on this page will be cordially received and promptly answered by Mr. Farrell. Such communications should invariably be addressed to the office of HORTICULTURE.

"If vain our toil, we ought to blame the culture, not the soil."—Pope.

Compost

Good soil is the foundation on which in starting, we rest our hopes for success with plants, ever in doubt afterward when failure strikes home, as to whether or not the soil used was really good for the purpose. Much potting and repotting, some benching and bed planting and a deal of hot-bed and frame building and filling is now to be done, for all of which the question of soil is not the least important. There should be at all seasons and at this time of the year especially, adequate quantities properly prepared and ready for immediate use within handy reach. It should be first moist enough to yield to moderate firming in the pots, not so wet as to noticeably soil the fingers in potting. For the potting of small and tender plants—rooted cuttings in particular, it should be of recent bringing in from the open, but should be given time before use to reach a warmth very nearly that maintained in the house. It would be a good plan to mix up quite a pile of a light mixture now, one that can be used for young seedlings

Habrothamnus (Cestrum)

This makes an ideal Christmas plant with its numerous flower trusses of glowing deep red. Where you have old plants that have made a good young growth of three or four inches these cuttings can be taken off and inserted in a warm propagating bed with a moist atmosphere and will soon root. Pot in light soil in 2½ in. pots and later in 4-inch, and by the end of May they can be planted out in the open ground. They will require attention as to watering and pinching back in order to induce a bushy growth. By the first week of September they can be lifted and potted in large pots using a rich, light soil, with plenty of drainage and keep shaded until they are started. Give them a temperature from 45 to 50 degrees at night and they will flower nicely for the holidays. This is another of those half-forgotten old-time flowers which should by no means be discarded, for when well grown they will find a great many admirers and buyers. Habrothamnus elegans is one of the stateliest and showiest of autumn and early winter flowering plants.

Lilies for Easter

Give the plants room and turn them around frequently for the next few weeks. They will have a more uniform shape and better foliage for so doing. Fumigate for aphids once or twice a week so as to prevent them from getting a lodgement among the buds. Lilies that are intended for Easter should have their cluster of buds by this time well in view. Where this is the case a temperature of about 60 degrees at night will be right for the next couple of weeks. Where they are not showing buds and have plenty of roots 65 to 70 degrees will be necessary to have the buds showing color by the 25th of March so that they can have a few days to finish up in a cooler temperature. Those that are in bud can now have liquid manure once a week and later twice a week, but always apply it with caution. All firmly established lilies with lots of roots, when making extreme growth and pushing up their buds in a high temperature will consume great quantities of water.

Making Hot Beds

The heat will be less intense, but will last several weeks longer if the manure is quite strawy, or if tree leaves are interspread while building up the manure. A layer, nicely evened out and well trodden down, of about 18 inches height when finished, will be all sufficient from now on and less will do if the bed is made later. When you have the manure all in, spread from 4 to 5 inches of soil upon it. Place sashes on and leave air on every second sash until the violent heat has subsided when they will be ready for seed sowing or the setting of plants. Less of the heat generated by a large bulk of manure will be lost than with isolated beds and the temperature under the long line of sashes will be better equalized. Where several hotbeds are to be made it is best to have them, as far as possible in an unbroken line or in several long rows. See that all sash are repaired before they are placed on the frames.

Orchids

For a cool house a night temperature of from 50 to 55 degrees and a day heat of 65 to 70 degrees with sun will do. For the intermediate house a night temperature of from 58 to 64 degrees and for the warm house a night temperature of from 65 to 70 degrees and a day temperature of from 80 to 85 degrees with sun. On cloudy days it is wise to let it rise from 5 to 8 degrees above the night temperatures. Each plant should have daily inspection. Orchids thrive best where the atmosphere is kept pure by proper ventilation, but take care to avoid east winds and chills through the house. Most orchids will now be starting in growth and root action and will need attention in the way of watering and shading as the sun becomes stronger. Do not overdo it. When you have a little spare time sponge them off.

Reminders

During the next week bring in batches of bulbs intended for Easter.

Do not for a moment let up on cuttings. Take them off and use them as fast as they appear fit.

Keep shamrocks moist at the roots. Remember that they are only in demand for March the 17.

Many kinds of seeds ought to be sown now, among them lobelia, salvia, dianthus, marguerite carnations, alyssum and verbenas.

Next Week:—Cannas; Conogyne cristata; Dahlias; Early Sweet Peas for Outside; Hydrangeas for Memorial Day; Reminders.

Carnations

What shall we grow for carnation varieties this next season? That depends upon the market. If long shipments are to be made one would naturally eliminate all Enchantress varieties, White Wonder and other soft sorts. These will do locally and when the weather is hard and cool. But where shipments are to be made regularly the best keepers are none too good. In fact the first test of a variety is the number of perfect blooms to the one thousand the season through. Matchless, Pink Delight, Beacon, Benora, Mrs. C. W. Ward and Alice, of course. These are standard and an ordinary market will call for them all at some season and in some proportion. But how about Nancy, Rosette, a good crimson and some of the new sorts?

Nancy is in the Pink Delight class and may some day take the place of that grand standard variety. By watching Nancy closely at Dorner's, then last season at S. J. Goddard's, and this year at half a dozen carnation ranges, including one thousand plants studied daily at home, the story seems to me to read about this way:—

Nancy makes a large plant, roots very easily, is fragrant, even in color, has a good stem, keeps and ships with the best, never splits and is pleasing to most customers. Per contra, it is slow to bloom in the autumn, gives a rather large percentage of thin, flat blooms and sports (to a brickish red) more freely than any variety that the writer has ever seen. If you are buying plants, $100 invested in Nancy at $7.00 per 100 will bench more space than the same amount invested in Pink Delight, and there is where Nancy wins if she settles down to color scheme.

Are crimsons being neglected by the growers? The hybridizers are giving us some mighty fine things, nothing to touch Pocahontas on the show table, but splendid commercial sorts, and the stores in the East appreciate their value. Several new ones are good enough to try. Doris and a seed-pod sister, No. 9, for ours.

Rosette is better than ever, thanks to the good work of patient selectors like Aubry A. Pembroke. And just as we are seeing its usefulness along comes Dorner with an improved Rosette, its seed-child, Rosalia.

There are a half dozen scarlets that make a brave showing on the exhibition table. Belle Washburn has been tried out by many growers who can tell of its worth.

In attempting to plan next season's benching some good Yankee guessing will come into play on the new sorts; but in selecting standard varieties it helps to study carefully tabulated results of past seasons. For instance, we learn that the average price for May has been two-tenths of a cent higher than for December, while the cut has been 100 per cent greater in May. Again, by our arrangement of varieties the December's cut has been 40 per cent. white and the May cut has been 52 per cent. white. Up to an early winter date the cut to the square foot of some sorts was as follows:

Snow White (Seedling).....	11.6	Matchless	8.6
White Winsor.....	10.5	Pocahontas	7.1
No. 9 (Seedling).....	9.7	Nancy	6.9
White Wonder.....	9.7	Pink Delight.....	6.8
Alice	9.4	Mrs. C. W. Ward.....	6.

These figures would be very misleading if one neglected to take into account the condition of the plants and their subsequent performances.

Charles S. Strunk.

Chrysanthemum maximum

Chrysanthemum maximum is a close relative of the common ox-eye daisy of Central Europe and the British Islands, known botanically under the name Chrysanthemum Leucanthemum, syn. Leucanthemum vulgare. The latter, according to the story was brought over here by early settlers and since then figures as a naturalized beautifier of field and meadow or as one of the most obnoxious weeds, according to the viewpoint we take. The native home of the original Chrysanthemum maximum is the northern part of the Iberian Peninsula, while the garden types thereof are mainly the results of crossings between C. maximum and the considerably taller growing C. latifolium of Portugal. There are quite a number of more or less distinct varieties offered in the catalogues of leading growers abroad. Most of them are well adapted for our northern boundary states but less satisfactory in the Middle Atlantic states. The beautiful tall growing Mrs. J. Tersteeg, the robust and absolutely hardy King Edward and the very large-flowering maximum "Polarstern" did splendidly in Maine. In Glenside, Pa., they proved decidedly disappointing. I am convinced that south of New England, as a free bloomer reliable in producing perfect flowers nearly all summer, Burbank's Shasta Daisy "Alaska" so far is the best we have. For a fine floral mid-summer effect on the hardy border and for cutting it is one of the prominent items we cannot afford to be without.

In growing stock of Chrysanthemum maximum for commercial purposes it is best to sow every year. Early spring seedlings usually flower during the later part of the following summer. One-year-old they are strong salable plants sure to give satisfaction. Two-year-old stock should be divided and replanted in freshly manured ground particularly if we aim for a fine crop of cut flowers.

Having hardy chrysanthemums of the marguerite type under consideration, it remains to mention the Arctic daisy, Chrysanthemum arcticum, a native of Kamchatka and the north of our hemisphere, and Chrysanthemum Nipponicum, a Japanese species, both fall-flowering. The Arctic daisy, though in individual flower only half of the size of the maximum class, is of compact bushy habit of growth and during September and October literally covered by its wealth of pure white blossoms invaluable for autumn displays in our gardens. It is a perennial excellent for mass-effects meriting far more attention than it has been hitherto given.

ROSE GROWING UNDER GLASS

CONDUCTED BY

Arthur Ruzicka

Questions by our readers in line with any of the topics presented on this page will be cordially received and promptly answered by Mr. Ruzicka. Such communications should invariably be addressed to the office of HORTICULTURE.

The Easter Crop

All roses that will be in for Easter will now be showing buds. Some of the very double varieties such as Mock, Scott Key, etc., will have to be about the size of a pea. To help these along there is nothing better than liquid manure, providing the plants have had plenty of bone and tankage right along, and also that they are properly mulched. The liquid manure applied can be very strong if the plants are in any kind of shape. The only thing is to see that they are not too dry when the liquid is applied. It is much better to water with clear water first, and then follow with the liquid, applying enough to nicely saturate the soil in the benches without running much of it through. Of course if the plants are in good condition to receive the liquid manure direct, it is cheaper to apply same this way, in which case it should be used more freely, allowing it to drip through the benches. It will also be necessary to see that the plants are kept tied in order that there may not be any crooked stems which would decrease the value of the cut blooms; in fact some of the cut roses would be worthless on this account. If time will not permit tying them all thoroughly, go through and tie all that need it real badly, also branches hanging down and so on. Pay all the attention to the ventilators that is necessary in order that the growth on the crop will be kept clean from mildew, and the roses cut later will be hardy and hold up well. If the plants are not cutting, do not run the houses too cool. 62 to 64 will be perfectly safe in mild weather, and they will grow all the more freely. Keep a little air on all mild nights so that the atmosphere will be clear and sweet instead of that dead smoky air that sometimes creeps in or rather forms in the houses. Do not apply chemicals to the benches, as a large percentage of the buds will come deformed and almost unsalable.

Care for the Greens

Perhaps these have been a little neglected with the rush of potting and propagating; now, however, with Easter coming on, it will pay to look over all the cross houses and see what can be done to speed the greens up a little more. If they need mulching, apply horse manure. It is much better for them than the cow manure. Smilax and asparagus can be given a little nitrate once in a while too, and soot, which will give a very good color. The temperature can be kept up near seventy all the time until just before the crop is ready for the market when it can be dropped down to fifty or less in order to harden the greens. If the soil appears to be sour a little lime will not hurt. Apply this as carefully as the lime is applied to the rose benches, for as the saying goes "if the job is worth doing at all, it is worth doing well." Do not neglect to string all the smilax on time, and if your market calls for strings with asparagus, see that these are put on in time. Often a crop will be set behind two weeks or more just because the strings were not there when they were needed. It is now time too, to get some seed started for next season's young plants. If there are real old plants in the houses throw them out. They never produce the stuff that the young plants will, and what they do produce is bound to be long, which in most cases is not wanted. Young plants will produce a large number of short ferny fronds, and these as a rule sell well in the market. Figure on setting the plants quite close together—say eight by six. This will give them plenty of room, for the fronds will likely be cut as fast as they are ready and the amount taken in for a square foot this way will be far greater than if they are planted much further apart. For best results get northern greenhouse-grown seed, making sure to get the plumosus nanus, not merely the plumosa. The same with smilax; the first cost may be a little more than for cheaper seed but it will come back and more on the returns in the long run. Use liquid manure even more freely than it is used in the rose houses, being careful not to wet the foliage of either smilax or asparagus as this would smell badly when cut should it be directly after watering, and it is liable to discolor. When cutting greens for market give good count, and put in only good stuff. You may get away with poor stuff in the bunches once or twice but you will lose in the long run.

The Flower Shows

Be sure to attend these, even if you have to run right through without stopping for any length of time. Send as many of your growers as possible too. All hands will come back with a new interest in their work, and with something to talk about besides hard times. There will be many new roses, as well as other new flowers of all sorts shown and it is well to know about all these, the new houses being built, new boilers and all the different things in our line too numerous to mention. Exhibit if you can. You will then see how your product looks side by side with that of your fellow florists, and you may be surprised to find things about your stuff which you never noticed before. Go to the flower show.

Manure for the Late Mulches

Keep the manure coming in all the time, unless there is a certainty of getting it when you want it. To our knowledge this is not a simple matter here in the East. Western places perhaps have better supplies. Store it as best, which should be in a covered shed if possible with a concrete floor, drained into a tank. Turn the manure over as often as time will permit and see that it is kept wet enough so that it will not burn, for manure that is burned is nowhere near as valuable as properly cared-for manure. The plants will easily take a mulch early in June if they are to be run into July, and the roses that will be cut will more than pay for the extra manure and labor. If there is no other way to store the manure put it on top of some low sod heap so that if there is any leaching the sod underneath will take it all up and there will be no liquids wasted. It is the liquid that is most valuable as plant food, and if this is allowed to run away with surface water or soak into the ground where the manure is stored, it will be a big loss to the grower.

A treat for the carnationists

Our carnation friends will find the series of timely notes by C. S. Strout of Biddelford, Me., which appear in our columns from time to time, very timely, interesting and suggestive. Mr. Strout is widely known among the carnationists of the entire country as standing in the front rank of the successful New England carnation growers and in the market his product commands the top figures always. Add to all this the literary excellence, individuality and lucid style of his writings and we think our announcement at this time that Mr. Strout will continue these articles in HORTICULTURE all through the season will come as most welcome news to the carnation world.

Courting retribution

We were surprised, and also rather shocked, to read in one of the cultural columns of the latest issue of The Gardeners' Chronicle of London, "As the buds begin to swell keep a sharp look-out for birds and either trap or shoot them." We cannot imagine any crop of flowers or fruit, or even any economic conditions, that would justify giving or following such unconditional and drastic counsel for the disturbing of Nature's balance. Rough-hewn as we may be in this young country as compared with the older civilizations, yet there are now but few of our states in which such ruthless slaughter as suggested in the above quotation would not incur a heavy penalty. When such cold-blooded and ignorant advice finds currency and is admitted without qualification to the columns of a horticultural journal long recognized as a leader, is it surprising that insecticides are becoming more and more of a necessity and that the loss from insect devastation mounts higher each year?

"And thus the whirligig of time brings in his revenges."

An alluring field

A canvas of the flower growers in all sections of this country would show that quite a percentage of those so engaged had previously followed truck growing or vegetable forcing and had abandoned it for what appeared to be or was at the time—a more lucrative business—the growing of flowers. Present conditions in the food market will, no doubt, induce some of these converts—and maybe some of those who have been exclusively flower-growers hitherto—to turn envious eyes on "The life of the husbandman—a life fed by the bounty of earth and sweetened by the airs of heaven" (and a record price for the product), thinking as to whether vegetable growing, both outdoors and under glass, might not be the better branch of the business for a while at least. The H. C. L. problem is not agoing to be settled in a day and there appears nothing in the situation that indicates a likely return to former market values for food products for some time to come, if ever. Growers will reflect that the same situation which would make food products soar would be apt to have an adverse effect on the fortunes of the flower trade and we may expect to see some of them act accordingly, with the result that flower surpluses may yet be largely a memory.

Back to the soil

What cares he now for frost or fog
 Since in his glorious catalogue
 The glad suburbanite can see The garden that is going to be?

—Boston Traveler.

The paper from which the foregoing inspiring stanza was clipped is giving several columns daily to home garden topics and in doing so is but one of hundreds of papers all over the country that are devoting liberal space to this timely work. The public and the press are just coming to a realization of the gold-mine that lies under their feet and around them needing only to be worked. "Thrift Gardens" they call them in St. Louis. The utilization of backyards, vacant lots and waste grounds is urged as a remedy for the H. C. L., a wholesome and profitable exercise of mind and body and an education in preparedness and economy. Boston experts estimate that there are from 6000 to 8000 acres of tillable land in that city which could be developed into vegetable gardens, to offset in a measure the high cost of living, as well as to teach school children the principles of gardening. Too much cannot be said in favor of the movement. It carries with it the eager support of the daily newspapers and the magazines and many well-meant plans are laid out for the instruction of the masses in the knowledge of gardening. But they should more fully realize that a better manual for elementary or advance garden practice than the seedsmen's catalogues—the majority of them, at least—would be hard to find, and the newspaper horticulturists are sometimes a little "off" in their suggestions. The much derided suburbanite has now the opportunity of his life to chuckle and turn the tables on the scoffer. "He laughs best who laughs last."

CLUBS AND SOCIETIES

CHICAGO FLORISTS' CLUB.

Novelty Show and Jubilee.

The Good of the Club Committee, Geo. Asmus, chairman, has completed arrangements to hold a Novelty Show and Jubilee at the New Morrison Hotel, Thursday afternoon and evening, March 8th. Special arrangements have been made to entertain a large attendance of the trade, and every florist is invited.

Growers of novelties and members of the club are especially invited to send exhibits of cut flowers and plants, which will be displayed in the New Morrison Hotel parlors, B-5 and B-6. Send all exhibits express prepaid to A. Zech, Flower Show, Care of New Morrison Hotel, Chicago. Please arrange to have your exhibits reach destination Thursday morning, March 8th. Guy French has been appointed manager of this show, and will see that all exhibits sent will be displayed to the best advantage. The exhibition will be open for inspection from 3 P. M. to 10.30 P. M., and arrangements are now being made to invite the public.

The Jubilee will be in the form of a fine chicken dinner, which is announced to take place promptly at 6.30 P. M. on same floor as the floral exhibition. Every one in the trade should attend and bring a guest. Please notify F. Lautenschlager, 440 W. Erie St., Chicago, immediately how many reservations you wish. The dinner will be served at $1.50 per person (refreshments and cigars with compliments of the Chicago Florists' Club).

The Jubilee is in honor of the Illinois University students, who will attend our meeting and exhibition. Every one in the trade should meet these young men; they have promised to bring a very interesting exhibit from the university greenhouses.

COME—COME—let's make this the banner meeting of the year.

F. LAUTENSCHLAGER, Chairman.

HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY OF WESTERN PENNSYLVANIA.

The meeting on February 20th was well attended and very lively. A letter from the chairman of the Flower Show Committee was read accepting the gift of a prize for the show in June. Sabin Bolton was selected as the delegate to the Davey Convention at Kent, Ohio.

This was carnation night. Among the exhibits were some from Mr. C. D. Armstrong, gard. Thomas E. Tyler, which received a cultural certificate, Benora being by far the best grown in the city of Pittsburgh for a long time. Mr. Tyler was also given a cultural certi-

NEW YORK FLORISTS' CLUB.

The next meeting of the New York Florists' Club, Monday, March 12th, will be Rose Night. The exhibition committee will be pleased to receive exhibits of roses, new and standard varieties, from any rose grower in the United States for exhibition on this occasion. We expect to have a large display of roses this night and are now in touch with all the leading rose growers in the country.

All shipments by express must be received in New York not later than 6 P. M., Monday, March 12th, addressed to John Young, No. 53 West 28th street, New York City, marked "For Exhibition."

The Retail Florists' Association of St. Louis have elected officers as follows: President, F. H. Weber; vice-president, Theodore Miller; secretary, Marion Ahlschmidt; treasurer, F. C. Weber, Jr.

CONNECTICUT HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY.

At the fortnightly meeting of this society, February 23, Wallace R. Pierson opened a discussion as to the effect of the proposed bill prohibiting the importation of fruit trees, shrubs, bulbs, etc. Mr. Pierson is heartily in favor of the bill, but before its final passage he thinks it will not include seeds and bulbs, as diseases and insect life are not likely to be introduced into this country through that source. He also believes that we can grow better stock, especially for rose grafting, than has been supplied by Belgium, and the same applies to bulbs and azaleas. With the three-year leeway allowed by the bill, Mr. Pierson is of the opinion that no hardships will be placed upon the growers in this country through the curtailment of importations.

C. H. Sierman, one of Hartford's leading landscape gardeners, was inclined to the belief that such stock as landscape gardeners use can be grown in this country. He feels that it will be a hardship at first, but the nurserymen will take the bull by the horns and eventually it will work to their advantage.

John F. Huss stated that it would be a detriment to him, as private places demand novelties, and the greater part of that class of stock was imported.

Warren S. Mason strongly favored the bill. The society extended to Mr. Pierson a hearty vote of thanks.

H. R. Hurd, gardener of the Beach estate, West Hartford, exhibited some very fine cinerarias and received a cultural certificate.

The June Flower Show committee will get together on Tuesday evening and make plans. A. DIXON, Secy.

Hartford, Conn.

CONNECTICUT NURSERYMEN'S ASSOCIATION.

The eleventh annual meeting of the Connecticut Nurserymen's Association was held at Hotel Garde, Hartford, Conn., Wednesday, Feb. 21st. We had a very interesting session. The question of Foreign Importation, diseases of plants, etc., was discussed and much information relative to the latter was obtained through our being favored with addresses from such able speakers as Dr. W. E. Britton, State Entomologist; Dr. Geo. B. Clinton, State Botanist; Mr. W. O. Filley, State Forester; F. B. Kelley and others.

Under election of officers, F. S. Baker, of Cheshire, Conn., was elected president; C. F. Brainard, of Thompsonville, vice-president; F. L. Thomas, Meriden, Conn., re-elected secretary, and W. W. Hunt, of Hartford, re-elected treasurer. F. L. THOMAS, Secy.

The North Shore Horticultural Society, Manchester, Mass., has selected Wm. Till and A. E. Parsons, with Eric Wetterlow and Axel Magnusen alternates as delegates to the Davey Tree Expert Convention at Kent, Ohio.

"HAMBURG LATE WHITE" CHRYSANTHEMUM

CERTIFICATE OF MERIT AWARDED BY CHRYSANTHEMUM SOCIETY OF AMERICA.

Above picture was taken Nov. 26, 1916, and will give a good idea of what "Hamburg Late White" looks like when grown to single stems and planted six inches each way.

Rooted Cuttings, $12.00 per 100; $100.00 per 1000.

2 inch pots, $15.00 per 100; $125.00 per 1000

WILLIAM F. KASTING CO.,

568-570 Washington Street
BUFFALO, N. Y.

"Hamburg Late White" is pure white under all weather conditions and is a sport of Maud Dean white, but has no trace of pink, as the original.

The average grower of chrysanthemums must have varieties which are easy to handle and from which he can cut as near 100% of perfect blooms as possible. "Hamburg Late White" has been grown for the last four years and produces a very high proportion of good flowers. It is not an exhibition variety, but for late white, one of the best for commercial purposes. It can be had in bloom the latter part of November, by taking an early bud; but by selecting later buds, most of the flowers are cut during December and we would advise to select a late bud, as the later buds come somewhat fuller, and by selecting late buds, flowers can be had as late as the middle of January.

Keeping qualities are excellent and where a light, graceful white flower is wanted, "Hamburg Late White" cannot be surpassed.

"Hamburg Late White" will be disseminated in the Spring of 1917. Plants will be ready April 1st, 1917, and all orders will be filled in rotation.

NEW YORK GETTING READY.

The New York Florists' Club has its "hands full" for this season and does not intend to get behind-hand in preparedness. At a meeting of the executive committee on Wednesday of this week at the secretary's office, there were present Geo. E. M. Stumpp, chairman, P. B. Rigby, F. R. Pierson, Chas. H. Brown, P. F. Kessler, A. L. Miller, F. H. Traendly, T. B. deForest, J. G. Esler and E. C. Vick, representing about every branch of the business and the preparatory work for the big August Convention is well underway. A more capable bunch of workers it would be hard to get together. The flower show committee had their usual session on Monday. It was a very enthusiastic meeting and all sub-committees reported "Ready". Secretary Young reported $14,000 worth of trade space sold, $4,000 worth of advertising in the catalogue and 18,000 trade tickets sold. "That's going some."

GIANT SWEET PEAS

Editor of HORTICULTURE:

Referring to your two articles and pictures of "Giant Sweet Peas," as grown by C. W. Ward and William Sim, would say that sweet peas grow about as good in Connecticut as any other place in the U. S. A. I am sending you herewith a photo of a few Yarrowa in their third month of flowering. They were 15 feet high on the 10th of February when this picture was taken. A cultural certificate was awarded to a vase of them, with 20-inch stems of four flowers each, at the Feb. 2d meeting of the Stamford Hortical Society. The bench is but 20 feet long so of course the picture does not show off as well as those from Messrs. Ward and Sim but the height and vigor is shown plainly.

A SPECIALIST IN MINNESOTA

In C. S. Harrison's notes on irises last week that gentleman spoke in high terms of the work done by W. E. Fryer of Mantorville, Minn., on the iris, mentioning that he had 300 varieties under cultivation, but Mr. Fryer says he has tested 500 varieties besides his new seedlings. These latter are described by those who have seen them as including many that are of unexcelled beauty. Mr. Fryer has also accomplished much in hardy phlox hybridization. Clarence Wedge, a foremost horticulturist of Minnesota, has written a very enthusiastic account of Mr. Fryer's place and what is to be seen there, and same has been published in "The Farmer" of St. Paul. Gladioli, dahlias and peonies are specialties as well as the phlox and iris. The fame of the Fryer irises has even reached Boston and neighborhood, several shipments of plants having been made last season.

NEW RED ROSE — DONALD MacDONALD

We have tested this Rose for Winter forcing for two years, and with us it produces more red roses during the winter than any Rose we have ever grown. It is not a large Rose, but has perfectly formed medium sized flowers that sell at sight. Color bright orange carmine; will not turn blue; because the base of the petals is orange. It is not a summer rose, as it has the same substance as Killarney. We build the plants up until November, and from Thanksgiving until May it is a money maker for the Rose Grower, as no pinching is necessary.

or two instances outbuildings will have to be destroyed. The bank of the river along the section the city proposes to acquire slopes steeply to the river's edge and is practically useless for buildings or other purposes. The land will be planted with shrubbery and made artistic, thus being a big asset to the beauty of the park. All of the land on the opposite side of the river is now owned by the city.

DURING RECESS.

Detroit to Wallop Cleveland.

Our club meets regularly Thursday nights for bowling, the last meeting being February 22nd, when enthusiasm waxed high over the coming contest with the Cleveland bowlers. Many of the regulars have been benched and rebenched over their inability to make strikes, and one or two "dark horses" have appeared who find it hard to make less than a 200 score. All in all our worthy Captain Geo. Streit has prepared a team which will be a certain winner.

Messrs. Jerry Stock and Fred Pautke two old rivals at the game, have been specially delegated to bring back the trophy which Cleveland carried away at the last visit.

Florists' Club of Hartford, Conn.

A meeting and banquet of the Florists' Club of Hartford was held Tuesday evening, February 20, in Hotel Bond. Thirty-six florists were present and were entertained by the Mozart Society orchestra. Joseph McManus presided as toastmaster. Wallace R. Pierson, of Cromwell addressed the party on the value of advertising. Among other things he suggested that the Florists' Club and the Connecticut Horticultural Society should unite and give the public of Hartford a flower show of such magnitude that it would put Hartford on the map as an exhibition center. He said the finest rose garden in America was located in Hartford, and Hartford was one of the most beautiful cities in the country. He expressed the hope that the club would grow in size and influence so that it might be successful in prevailing upon the American Carnation Society or the American Rose Society to hold meetings here. Other speakers included the president of the club, also Andrew W. Welch, W. Wallace Thomson, George F. Lane, and Herman J. Miller.

COLDWELL HORSE MOWER with DEMOUNTABLE CUTTERS

IN this type of COLDWELL HORSE MOWER, if the DEMOUNTABLE CUTTER UNIT needs sharpening, just take it out. It is independent—easily removed.

Replace it with the second set of knives which COLDWELL furnishes with every DEMOUNTABLE CUTTER UNIT Mower.

Four locking screws adjust the cutter units. The whole operation is simple. You lose no time waiting for knives to be sharpened.

Your machine is always ready for work. You will appreciate the convenience of two cutter units and the easy adjustment.

Another feature of Coldwell construction protects the knives from twist and strain over rough ground.

Write for illustrated catalogue, giving full particulars of the Coldwell line—Combination Roller and Motor Mowers, both Ride and Walk Types, the new 1917 Threesome (87" swath) and Horse and Hand Mowers in 150 styles and sizes.

The output of the Coldwell factories includes lawn mowers of every description—for every purpose. The name "Coldwell" has been familiar in the markets of the world for more than forty years.

Bermuda Onions in Texas.

The Truck Crop Specialist of the Bureau of Crop Estimates, who is now making a tour of the onion fields of Texas, reports that the onions in Nueces County are at a standstill on account of the drouth, but that no damage was caused by the cold wave of February 1 to February 6, 1917. In the Lower Rio Grande Valley the onions were slightly damaged by the cold wave, but at Laredo they appear to have suffered considerably more, especially the earlier plantings. The later plantings are not very materially hurt. The Specialist also states that apparently the thrips have not caused any damage as most fields appear free from the pest. The pink root seems to be very general at Laredo, but the damage will depend on weather conditions at time onions begin to bulb. It is estimated that the crop is three weeks later than last year.

Correspondents in Frio County report that onions suffered severely in this district. Due to the fact that no rain accompanied the cold wave, the tops of the onions were cut to the ground and the efforts of the plant to make new tops will be retarded by the thrip, which has made its appearance.

In Dimmit County it is estimated by some reporters that about 10 per cent. of the late plantings were killed by the cold wave and the crop will be set back fifteen days or more. The ravages of the thrip seem to have been checked by the cold wave.

In Zavalla County it is estimated that the crop has been damaged about 25 per cent. by the cold wave, but it is stated that on account of weather conditions no reliable information can be had at this time concerning the damage done.

Chicago Notes.

The Leonard Seed Co. reports onion sets in extremely short supply and J. C. Leonard recalls a prediction that he made and which was published in the Chicago Produce Bulletin on Feb. 16th, in which he says that the price will go as high as in World's Fair year, when it reached $7.25 per bushel. Quotations today are $5.25 on red and yellow and $5.50 on white sets and prices are still climbing so his prediction seems likely to be fulfilled. There has been very little shrinkage this winter, the stock being firm and never was there a better quality of marketable sets on March 1st than at this time. The scarcity of stock makes it imperative that those who do not wish to be disappointed should secure theirs without delay.

Beans are in fairly good demand. Owing to the scarcity of white beans for seed it is proving a hard year for the seedsmen to secure the usual acreage and contracts are very slow in being closed.

The situation is easier with peas, but here time is shorter and it will be a relief to all seedsmen when contracts are let. The killing frosts of January in the south have done much to affect conditions for the seedsmen. Seed corn is now worth twice the usual price at this season of the year.

Notes.

Norwich, N. Y.—Frank E. Skinner has opened a seed store on N. Broad St.

The House of Representatives has now before it the bill passed by the Senate last week which provides, "That wheat, barley, oats, and flaxseed intended to be used for seed may be imported in bond duty free under such regulations as the Secretary of the Treasury may prescribe. It is further provided that nothing therein contained shall be construed to impair the provisions of the act prohibiting the admission of adulterated grain and seeds unfit for seeding purposes."

NEWS NOTES.

Hershey, Pa.—A flower show will be held in the newly opened exhibition hall here in first week of April.

Worcester, Mass.—Harry L. Randall, florist, will move in the early spring from 13 Pleasant street to 22 Pearl street.

Elizabeth, N. J.—The store at 80 Broad street, occupied by J. W. Blakeley, florist, is to be enlarged and remodeled.

Weymouth, Mass.—Fire last week damaged the greenhouse of Duffin & Humes to a considerable extent. No insurance.

Los Angeles, Cal.—Tassano Bros. have purchased the nursery of E. Devalck, consisting of about ten acres of land and 7,500 feet of glass.

St. Louis.—F. H. Weber opened his new store on March 1.

Oscar C. Kuehn, who has been wirework manager for W. C. Smith for over eight years, is about to open an up-to-date wirework shop at the new St. Louis Cut Flower Co.'s place.

Cincinnati—R. G. Kootz Floral Co. had a singularly appropriate and artistic window decoration for Washington's Birthday. It attracted considerable attention. J. T. Conger, the Hartwell florist who was on the sick list for a time, is back at his desk.

New Britain, Conn.—A. C. Strom's flower shop at No. 26 Main street was entirely destroyed by fire on the evening of February 21 during the series of incendiary blazes that resulted in placing armed national guardsmen all over the city. Mr. Strom estimated his loss to be between $3,000 and $4,000, partly covered by insurance.

O. N. Stein, formerly manager of the landscape department of the George Wittbold Company, has resigned and opened a landscape office for himself.

From the Boston Post there comes to us the interesting information that humus is a "newly invented fertilizer," and that "Mayor Curley is responsible for the introduction of this new means of making Mother Nature get busy in time of need." Do tell!

NEWS ITEMS FROM EVERYWHERE

CHICAGO

N. J. Wietor is recovering from a severe attack of the grippe.

A post card received at Schiller's Gift Shop stated that Reinhold Schiller and bride were at Norfolk, Va., last week.

Mrs. Samuel J. Pearse is visiting her brother in New Orleans, where he is foreman for the Metairie Ridge Nursery Co. At the Pearse greenhouses tulips and narcissi have been cut steadily since Dec. 15th and the supply will continue till Easter, when 16,000 lilies will be ready.

One by one the most faithful lovers of the American Beauty rose are losing heart and putting a section or so each year into some other stock. And they say "The worst of it is, there is no rose that will take its place and the people would buy good ones if we could grow them."

Kroeschell Bros. have just installed the second 250-horse-power boiler in the 1917 addition to the L. A. Budlong range in Evanston, Ill. These greenhouses are to be used exclusively for the newer varieties of roses. Mr. Lautenschlager says the indications are for a busy season in the boiler business.

J. Mangel, the Palmer House florist, has his conservatory now where it answers the double purpose of utility and beauty. A large fountain with constantly changing colored lights occupies the center of the room. Around the sides are tables for making up and above are overhanging shelves of rock, from which vines and ferns are seen in profusion.

One of the most artistic windows ever executed by a florist in Chicago is on the Wabash Ave. side of the Geo. Wienhoeber store. It presents a bit of Dutch landscape in compliment to the country that produces the bulbs. Mr. Wienhoeber has avoided the common mistake of using too much color. In the foreground is a fern bordered river with bridge, in the background a castle with steps to the river, and a windmill with arms in motion. Just enough flowers are used to relieve the brown and green tones.

Plans are being drawn for the new factory warehouse of the J. C. Moninger Co. to replace the one recently destroyed by fire. The insurance adjustment was very satisfactory. So many letters of inquiry are being received that Mr. Kurowski thinks a good season is just ahead. A contract has been made by this firm for a large addition to the Bohemian National Cemetery greenhouses. Another order just completed for two houses, 28 x 250 feet, for James L. Denmead, Marshalltown, Iowa. A new catalogue for private conservatories will be issued very soon.

With the coming of March the city gardens' project, which has been tried here with more or less success for several years, is again before the people. The tracts of idle land have been systematically apportioned to those who will cultivate them, and this year the requests for plots of ground will be more numerous. Out of the 200 square miles within the city limits there are about 60 square miles or 40,000 acres vacant. A department called a Garden Bureau, has been inaugurated, by a local paper, which will instruct those who are without gardens how they may secure one and give information on seeds, etc.

The Big Shows for 1917

ST. LOUIS—Spring Flower Show, March 15-18.

NEW YORK—International Flower Show, March 15-22.

PHILADELPHIA—National Rose Festival, March 20-23.

BOSTON—Spring Flower Show, March 21-25.

PHILADELPHIA.

Professor Sanders of the Department of Agriculture, Harrisburg, Pa., gave an address before the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society on February 19th.

J. Otto Thilow of Dreer's returned from his vacation trip to Honolulu last Monday, looking brown and hearty. He is modest about it, but we feel sure he is loaded to the limit with experiences and pictures—enough to keep the country sitting up nights to listen to him for the next five years. Fine; get after him.

PITTSBURGH.

John Arbuckle has assumed charge of the accounting department of G. P. Weaklin & Co.

The Zieger Company of the East End is making extensive repairs in the front of the palm house.

Accompanied by his family, O. J. Parker of Scobie & Parker, will leave shortly for Los Angeles, Cal.

Anthony Aloysius Leach, superintendent of the Henry J. Heinz grounds and greenhouse, is visiting New York and other eastern points.

Murray McGrew and his family have the sympathy of a large circle of friends and acquaintances in the death of Mrs. McGrew on Thursday, Feb. 15.

Miss Eliza McKinley, head saleswoman for Randolph & McClements, has been ill for several days with a severe attack of the prevailing la grippe.

Under the auspices of the McCallum Company, an exhibition of Oriental wares is being held this week at the Colonial-Anex Hotel by the Tajimi Company of New York.

S. E. Pearsall is in charge of a flourishing new flower shop in Brownsville, Pa., the only one in the town. McKees Rocks also has a similar new enterprise called the Victor Flower Shop.

G. P. Weaklin & Co. have just had the most distinctive early spring wedding of the season (See illustration). Quantities of wild southern smilax, specimen cibotiums, bamboos and crotons were used. At each end was a lattice designed gateway and a quaint wicker basket seven feet high filled with pink snapdragon, while silver-gray shafts of the same flowers surmounted the altar. At each end and along the main aisles were festooned old-fashioned square street lamps—ten in all. On the bridal table was a low mound of pink Killarney roses and Marie Legraye lilacs from the center of which extended a tall crystal shaft of the same flowers showered with Sweetheart roses and narrow ribbons. Sweetheart roses and lilies of the valley also showered the bridal bouquet of roses and orchids. Ophelia roses and white roses were carried by the bridesmaids.

WASHINGTON, D. C.

There is a vacancy in the position of landscape architect in the office of Public Buildings and Grounds which the Civil Service Commission has been asked to fill. The vacancy follows the resignation of Charles H. Diggs.

Gude Bros. Company has been awarded the contract for the decorating of the President's stand in front of the Capitol, the Court of Honor, and the Court of States, with greens. This will involve the use of about 8,000 yards of laurel roping and large quantities of cedars, evergreens, etc.

The Department of Agriculture is to conduct extensive co-operative experiments with bulb growers in Washington, Oregon, California, Arizona, New Mexico, Colorado, Texas, Arkansas and Missouri. For this purpose David Griffith, agriculturist in the seed distribution division of the Bureau of Plant Industry, is starting on a three months' trip through these states.

ROCHESTER, N. Y.

H. B. Stringer, with George B. Hart, wholesale florist, has been home ill with the grippe. John Vollmer of J. B. Keller Sons has been ill for a week.

J. B. Keller Sons had a fine window for Washington's Birthday. It contained a picture of Washington, green galax wreath with red and white carnations and violets.

There has been a new flower store opened up under the name of Rosery Flower Shop. Paul Campas is the proprietor. He conducted a flower stand for many years on Main street.

BOSTON.

N. F. McCarthy, who has been recuperating in Bermuda, is expected home about March 12.

The first forced blooms of the Regal Lily (myriophyllum) for the season are offered for sale by Patrick Welch.

Gustave Thommen, formerly of Tewksbury has taken possession of the nine acre farm and greenhouses of E. J. Mundy at Reading, Mass.

Reinhold Schiller and his bride passed through Boston this week on their way from Washington to Montreal and thence home to Chicago. Declared they were having the time of their lives.

The rose "Montrose" being sent in by the Budlong Company is highly prized by Welch's who say they find a good sale for it. David Welch is back in the store again after several weeks' severe illness with grippe.

J. J. Cassidy, Thos. F. Galvin, Henry Penn, P. J. Donahue and P. Welch have been appointed a special committee of florists by the Boston National Elks' Convention Association for the Elks' Convention which is to be held in Boston next July.

One thousand home vegetable gardens in Melrose is the object of a campaign begun by Mayor Charles H. Adams of that city, as a means to lessen the cost of living. Vacant land owned by the city and tracts offered by citizens for public use will provide gardens for 1,000 families, it is believed.

Under the auspices of Simmons College and the Women's Educational and Industrial Union a series of lectures on horticulture are to be given at Perkins Hall, 264 Boylston street, in March and April. Two lectures will be given on spring bulbs and their culture with the object of acquainting owners of small yards with the best methods of cultivating the early spring bulbs. Two lectures will be given on shrubs and flowering plants. These four will be given by Miss Patten. They will be followed by others to be given by Dr. Holt on insects and Prof. Osmun on fungus.

PERSONAL.

Jas. Johnstone, formerly of Mamaroneck, is now superintendent for Mrs. De Lancy Kane at New Rochelle, N. Y.

William C. Hay, of Bernardsville, N. J., has accepted the position of superintendent for Mrs. C. Masury, Center Moriches, L. I., N. Y.

G. Anderson succeeds P. Back as superintendent for the E. L. Ryerson estate at Lake Forest, Ill. Mr. Back has gone into the seed business at Racine, Wis., under the title, "Standard Seed Company."

Edward J. Norman, Jr., of Lenox, Mass., formerly foreman to Mrs. Alfred G. Vanderbilt and later with A. N. Pierson, Inc., Cromwell, Ct., has taken charge of the greenhouses and grounds of the C. G. Cheney estate, Essex, Conn.

Ethel Louise Adam, daughter of David Adam, the well-known and popular seed expert connected with Vaughan's Seeds, New York, was married to Horace Adams, Jr., at Plainfield, N. J., on Feb. 20th. It will be noticed that the nomenclature committee has practically nothing to do in their case.

Frank J. Prouty, florist, Spencer, Mass., and Miss Gladys M. Wilson were married Wednesday afternoon, February 21. The ceremony took place at the home of Rev. Mathew Francis, pastor of the Baptist church. It had been planned to have the ceremony at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Lucy Wilson, but Mrs. Wilson is confined to her bed with pneumonia.

Arthur C. Ruzicka, well-known grower and writer on ROSES for HORTICULTURE, has engaged with the Brant & Noe Floral Co. at Forest Glens, Ill., to take full charge of the whole place. He leaves Rowayton, Conn., for Chicago on March 3 and will assume charge at once. The place is devoted entirely to carnations now, but it is to be changed over to roses as rapidly as this can be done. HORTICULTURE's friends will be pleased to know that Mr. Ruzicka will continue his valuable weekly contributions exclusively in HORTICULTURE as in the past.

Flower Market Reports

BOSTON Slump; more slump; and then some. That is the state of this market at present and so far as one can see, likely to be for some time to come. If only the daffodils and other bulb stock would slack up there might be some little chance for other things. Even callas, erstwhile in the plebeian class, are on all sides in superabundance. Sweet peas and carnations crowd the tables in the market, heavy contributions to the vast expanse of color which greets the visitor, no matter what hour of the day he selects. There must have been an unusual quantity of Dutch hyacinth bulbs negotiated into this neighborhood last fall for these have never before figured very prominently in the cut flower trade here, but at present they are on all sides. American Beauty roses of the "special" grade are practically unobtainable but anything else that one might call for can be had ad libitum and the regular price quotations would figure merely as "a scrap of paper."

Conditions have changed BUFFALO since the beginning of the Lenten season. The supply on everything is overabundant except roses, which have been in normal supply. Daffodils, tulips and all bulbous stock are overplentiful and there are considerable peas, carnations, violets, lilacs, lily of the valley and other stock. Trade has completely fallen off and about the only thing doing is a little design work. Better conditions are looked for.

The first week of Lent CHICAGO has passed and what part it played in market conditions of the week is a question upon which there is some difference of opinion. Whatever the cause, there has come a change and most of the retail florists are finding it a rather quiet ending to February. The wholesale houses are receiving quantities of stock, more than can be used to advantage and buyers are carrying away the flowers for considerably less than quotations. Bulbous stock, for which a good price has been maintained for many weeks, is now being moved for much less or it remains unsold. Tulips are especially slow sale. There are more roses being cut now than at any other time since Christmas. Mrs. Russell is seen in all lengths of stem and with large heads of good color. American Beauties are scarce and by no means all perfect. Carnations are so abundant that no price can be maintained steadily, but concessions have to be constantly made. The situation is further aggravated by some growers who hold their blooms too long before cutting them. Violets are selling slowly since the rush on St. Valentine's Day and good homegrown singles are offered as low as 40c. per 100. The scarcity of callas is over and in its place is an overabundance, for on every counter may be seen great jars of them. Freesia is very plentiful. Snapdragons are equal to demand, while mignonette, calendulas, sweet peas, pansies and other flowers are keeping the market well filled.

This market is again CINCINNATI well supplied with stock. Prices in general are lower than they were. Shipping business, particularly in supplies and greens, is excellent. Roses are in a good supply. Carnations, while they are not in a very heavy supply are sufficient. Lilies are plentiful, while the supply of callas and rubrum lilies are ample. Daffodils, hyacinths and tulips are excellent and in a good supply. Sweet peas, if anything, are too plentiful. Single violets are very plentiful. Lily of the valley and orchids may be had in fair quantities. The supply of Asparagus plumosus and Sprengerii is very short.

The market has gone NEW YORK bad, very bad. Flowers of all kinds are heavily overstocked in the wholesale markets and the outlook is anything but cheerful. There seems no outlook for the accumulations of bulbous material or, indeed, most of the other stock, there being nothing in the entire list that is sold up to the limit. American Beauty roses may be termed an exception but if they were really obtainable the quotations we list would go to pieces.

The past week's PHILADELPHIA business has continued brisk with the exception of Wednesday which being the first day of Lent was rather dull. There was a good clean-up Friday and Saturday and even the draggy items went at fairly good prices. Roses were more plentiful with the exception of Beauties and Russells, these two being still very scarce. While roses seemed to be in less demand and these piled up a little but the pink varieties held their own all right. Carnations came in very freely and prices ruled rather easier. Orchids remain about as last reported—good stock and enough for all demands. Gardenia supply seems to have eased up a little. Sweet peas are coming in very strong, but notwithstanding the immense quantities they seem to all find a market, the quality being top-notch. Lily of the valley and violets are both rather sluggish. Snapdragon continue plentiful and fine and meets with ready sale. Callas and lilies have eased up in price on account of larger supplies. Daffodils are very plentiful and prices low. Very few paper whites or Roman hyacinths are to be seen. There are too many tulips. Greens are scarce.

Bulb flowers of all varieties are practically without value, so plentiful have they become. It seems the irony of fate that after weeks of scarcity, this condition should come to pass just as the Lenten season's dearth of decorating is ushered in. Ideal late winter weather of late with now and then a day of slow steady rainfall has produced superlatively fine stock of all kinds, but for which there is little demand. Freesia, violets and mignonette are especially slow in sales for several days past.

Owing to the warm weather stock has been more plentiful. Daffodils, tulips, paper whites and carnations have been moving very slowly. Roses have been coming in fine shape. There have been some very fine gardenias, cattleyas, bachelor buttons, daisies, freesia, sweet peas, snapdragons, calendulas and forget-me-not.

After a lively week previous to the incoming of Lent this market has taken quite a tumble and with the supply of roses, carnations and bulb stock increasing, prices have dropped considerably. Violets are now going at a very low figure.

Business has been very satisfactory. Roses are still scarce but the supply of carnations has increased and the market is flooded with bulbous stock which is to be had at moderate prices. Sweet peas for the first time this season went begging despite the fact that they are of fine quality. Their sale was affected by the influx of other flowers. Lilies are more plentiful. American Beauty roses and orchids are scarce and high prices prevail. Large quantities of single and double violets are offered. These are largely being sold by street vendors.

Editor HORTICULTURE:

Enclosed you will find my check for one dollar, to renew my subscription to your valuable paper, which I enjoy very much. I believe your paper, like wine, improves with age. Long may it continue to do so, and may you be spared for years to come to guide the destinies of HORTICULTURE. Yours very truly,
Long Island. J. D.

WORDS OF PRAISE FOR THE GLADIOLUS MRS. E. W. FRYER.

Epping, N. S. W., Australia.
Mr. W. E. Fryer, Mantorville, Minn., U. S. A.
Dear Sir: Just a note as I promised to report on the gladiolus Mrs. W. E. Fryer. This now has bloomed with me and it is without doubt one of the finest I have seen. As it was the first parcel to arrive from America this season, it got the pride of place in planting—right near the front gate, and people are attracted by the bright patch it makes in the garden.

Yours faithfully, A. WHITE.
Lower Hutt, New Zealand.

Mr. Willis E. Fryer, Mantorville, Minn., U. S. A.
Dear Sir: Referring to yours of March 16th last, we have this to state, that we have flowered your gladiolus novelty, Mrs. W. E. Fryer, and are very much pleased with its pure, bright color and would ask you to be so good as to send us fifty as early in the fall as possible. We are yours faithfully,
ORR BROTHERS,
Los Angeles, Cal.

Willis E. Fryer, Mantorville, Minn.
Dear Mr. Fryer: The bulbs of the gladiolus Mrs. W. E. Fryer, about which you ask me, were a surprise to me when in bloom. I think it one of the finest varieties yet produced in the gladiolus line. Yours very truly,
W. J. COLCLEUGH.

King Greenhouses

KEEP SUMMER WITH YOU THE WHOLE YEAR ROUND

On account of their sturdy special construction which permits of great strength without the need of heavy shadow casting supports, these houses are so warm and sunny that they are filled with a riot of bloom and fruit when Jack Frost has stripped the garden of its beauty.

The ventilating and heating systems are the result of years of experience in building for professional growers. Things just have to grow in a King.

Write today for Bulletin No. 43. See how beautiful and how productive a greenhouse can be erected for the price you want to pay.

Duplication Proves Satisfaction

Mr. P. H. Burton of Glenside, Pa., was so highly gratified by the result he achieved with his first Metropolitan Greenhouse, that he specifically instructed us to plan his new one identically the same as the other.

After a whole year of experience with Metropolitan construction, he decided that no change could possibly improve upon it.

His duplication proves his satisfaction. We can do as well for you.

This is our new Double Bolted Rod Bearer which is used on long runs of sash.

This shows how the new Bearer is bolted to the bottom of the sash. Once there, it's there to stay for life.

The Ventilating Gear That Works as Easy as an Even-Up Teeter Totter

You have noticed that the hand wheel standard on this one is much smaller than the other. That's because it is intended for short runs to 50 feet, which requires smaller weights to counterbalance.

This is the one we use on long runs where the rack and pinion are necessary and larger weights needed to counterbalance the weight of the sash.

WELL do I remember when a kid, playing teeter totter, how hard it was to bear down my end of the board when Fatty Jones was on the other end. But when he slid up nearer the log on which the board teetered, I could do it "easy as pie." His weight was then counterbalanced or evened up by mine.

Exactly the same principle is put into operation by our new counterbalanced gear.

The sash might well be "Fatty Jones." The gears! the teeterboard. The counterbalanced weights, "me."

When tightly installed and counterbalanced this gear runs the sash up, as easy as it goes down. No that's wrong. It goes up just a little harder than it goes down; so that when the lower lock is released, the sash will close down themselves. Close down—but not slam down.

It will come down itself to within a few inches of the header and then a half turn of the hand wheel pulls the sash down snug and tight.

It is made for short runs, with rod and arm. And for long runs where the rack and pinion is used. The counterbalanced gear is now part of the standard greenhouse equipment.

Neglect did this!

ARE you neglecting your trees?
Do you know positively that they are strong and healthy—are you sure they are free from decay and disease?

The owner of the tree shown above assumed that its condition was perfect, but he intended to find out some day for a certainty.

His neglect was fatal. The tree, sound in appearance to the untrained eye, inside was seriously decayed. One day a severe storm blew and the weakened tree gave way ruined beyond saving! It was a case of "the last straw which broke the camel's back."

Take no chances with your trees—have them examined now.
But be sure to select Tree Surgeons of proved ability—experts who can save your trees without guessing or experimenting.

Davey Tree Surgery Is Safe

Your trees, many of them the product of several generations, are priceless. Once lost, they can not be restored in your lifetime, or that of your children. To whom shall you entrust them? There can be only one answer, for there is only one safe place to go—to Davey Tree Surgeons.

Safe—because Davey Tree Surgery is time-proved; its record of successful performance for thousands of estate owners spans a generation.
Safe—because the Davey Company is a successful institution of financial stability and amply able to make good in every detail.

Safe—because no Davey Tree Surgeon is allowed any responsibility until he has conclusively demonstrated his fitness. He must have served his full course of thorough practical training and scientific study in the Davey Institute of Tree Surgery—a school, the only one of its kind in the world, which we conduct for the specific purpose of drilling our men in Davey methods and Davey ideals.

Safe—because Davey Tree Surgery has been endorsed as best by the United States Government, after exhaustive official investigation, and by thousands of prominent men and women.

Tree "patching" cannot save your trees. Only scientific, mechanically perfect treatment by men trained through years to the point of finished skill can be permanently successful. And for such treatment by such men there is only one safe place to go—to Davey Tree Surgeons.

Write today for Free Examination of your Trees —and booklet, "When Your Trees Need the Tree Surgeon." What is the real condition of your trees? Are insidious diseases and hidden decay slowly undermining their strength? Will the next severe storm claim one or more as its victims? Only the experienced Tree Surgeon can tell you fully and definitely. Without cost or obligation to you, a Davey Tree Surgeon will visit your place, and render an honest verdict regarding their condition and needs. Write today.

Five typical letters from hundreds by satisfied Davey clients

Mr. William Almy, William Almy & Co., Boston:

"The skill of your workmen is remarkable. I am sorry I did not have this work done sooner as I apparently lost a tree by not having an expert examine my trees before."

Mr. Joseph Pulitzer, Jr., owner of the New York World and the St. Louis Post-Dispatch:

"Your work on the trees on my place was done in a most thorough and painstaking manner."

D. S. Chamberlain, President, Chamberlain Medicine Co., Des Moines, Iowa:

"I congratulate you on the excellent work you are doing. I have seen much of this character of work done in some foreign countries, as well as in the United States, but none as perfect, scientific and satisfactory as yours."

Dr. G. L. Doenges, Superintendent, The Johns Hopkins Hospital, Baltimore, Md.:

"We have been very much impressed by the work done here by the Davey Tree Company."

Mr. Robert E. Friend, Second Ward Savings Bank, Milwaukee, Wis.:

"I cannot commend too highly the work you have done both this year and last on our place at Pine Lake. Your work on the University Club trees here in the city, under my supervision, was also very good indeed."

"Hamburg Late White" is pure white under all weather conditions and is a sport of Maud Dean white, but has no trace of pink, as the original.

The average grower of chrysanthemums must have varieties which are easy to handle and from which he can cut as near 100% of perfect blooms as possible. "Hamburg Late White" has been grown for the last four years and produces a very high proportion of good flowers. It is not an exhibition variety, but for late white, one of the best for commercial purposes. It can be had in bloom the latter part of November, by taking an early bud; but by selecting later buds, most of the flowers are cut during December and we would advise to select a late bud, as the later buds come somewhat fuller, and by selecting late buds, flowers can be had as late as the middle of January.

Keeping qualities are excellent and where a light, graceful white flower is wanted, "Hamburg Late White" cannot be surpassed.

"Hamburg Late White" will be disseminated in the Spring of 1917. Plants will be ready April 1st, 1917, and all orders will be filled in rotation.

NOTES ON CULTURE OF FLORISTS' STOCK

CONDUCTED BY

John J. M. Farrell

Questions by our readers in line with any of the topics presented on this page will be cordially received and promptly answered by Mr. Farrell. Such communications should invariably be addressed to the office of HORTICULTURE.

"If vain our toil, we ought to blame the culture, not the soil."—Pope.

Cannas

There are so many new aspirants every year that it is hard to enumerate which are the best, but there are some suitable for all kinds of decoration. There are some dwarf ones, very fine for pot culture. Roots that have been wintered over in a sound condition can now be placed on a bench where the temperature runs from 60 to 65 degrees. Spread a few inches of sand or dampened moss over the bottom, and in a short time every eye will be distinctly developed and can then be divided with a sharp knife into as many pieces as show a green growth. Water with care until they begin to make good roots. Pot these pieces into 3 and 4-inch pots and keep in a warm moist atmosphere until they are well started when they should be given full light. On all good days syringe them freely and when they become crowded give them a spacing so the light will reach all around them.

Coelogyne cristata

A common error is in trying to force coelogyne in too warm a temperature. Fifty to 55 at night will give flowers of finer quality than when grown warmer. This orchid is at its best during February and March and is one of the most useful as a florists' cut flower. Its culture is comparatively simple. Use plenty of drainage. The best compost is fibrous peat and fresh sphagnum in equal parts. After repotting keep them shaded and rather moist until new roots are made. Give weak manure about once a week during the season of growth. Don't shade too heavily. They should have a free cool atmosphere, with syringing over head once or twice a day, never allowing them to become dry at the roots in their growing season. From this out they will need some shade, but do not make it too heavy. On all good days see that they have plenty of ventilation.

Dahlias

In working up a stock of good dahlias from cuttings, the roots should be started into growth from the first week in March and cuttings taken after April 15. Nearly all the newer varieties that are worth raising grow amazingly fast after being once started in any ordinary greenhouse temperature. The roots are started in a bench, or, if there is only a limited number of them, in boxes, planting them somewhat closely together in rich soil. Give the fullest light and not lower than 55 degrees. When they have grown 3 or 4 inches the stoutest and brightest looking shoots should be taken for cuttings. Place in a few inches of well firmed sand with but little bottom heat. A dahlia cutting well calloused and beginning to emit roots will make better headway than when left longer in the sand. These cuttings will be ready for pots in from two to three weeks.

Early Sweet Peas for Outside

Good varieties to sow are: white—Dorothy Eckford, and White Spencer; pink—Beatrice, Countess Spencer, and Bridesmaid; lavender—Asta Ohn, Frank Dolby, and Lady Grisel Hamilton; orange pink—Miss Willmott and Helen Lewis. Place six or eight seeds to a 4-in pot. Do not keep these where they will have any artificial heat. The ideal place is a cold frame, where they will have a natural start and will make fine stock to plant out later. Sweet peas started this way at once will be in flower from fifteen to twenty days ahead of those sown in the open ground. Have the soil moist before placing the seeds in it, and then they will not need much water until they come up. As they make top growth and root growth they will need lots of water.

Hydrangeas for Memorial Day

Plants started soon after the middle of March in a cool house should be in fine shape for Memorial Day trade. To be right for Memorial Day the buds should now be well exposed and by the second week in May they should show their rosy pink tint. The hydrangeas sell better around the end of May than at any other time of the year. Give good syringings on bright days and continue until they show plenty of color. A week before they are needed they should be gradually hardened in the cooler quarters. Those that have fine foliage and large flower heads should have manure water twice a week until they show color. With the long sunny days they will want plenty of water at the roots. Give plenty of ventilation and give room between the plants every ten days.

Reminders

Seeds of Ardisia crenulata can be sown now and grown on.

Transplant thickly sown seedlings into other boxes before they become too lanky and drawn.

Seeds of mignonette, stocks and candytuft sown now will amount to good plants by Memorial Day.

Start bulbs and corms or tubers of fancy-leaved caladiums, tuberous begonias, gloxinias and achimenes.

Gardenias for planting in June should now be in 3-inch pots and by April they should be ready for another shift.

Next Week—Azaleas; Care of Carnations; Lily of the Valley in cold Storage; Flowers for Memorial Day; Sweet Peas for Outside; Reminders.

far ahead of anything the seed stores have ever been called upon to furnish. There is plenty of disappointment in prospect, no doubt, for thousands of amateur soil tillers, but whatever the total outcome of the present back-to-the-soil campaign may be, in the way of product, the movement is a healthy one, commendable from every view point and should have the hearty co-operation and encouragement of all. The hard experiences of the past few months will not have been profitless to us if it shall have served to introduce and establish here the thrifty home gardening methods of the wage earners of France, Germany and other European countries, for it means more food, better food and cheaper food.

The usual breakdown in the flower market arrived in all important centers on schedule time, apparently. As always at such times the stagnation in the wholesale marts is declared to be the worst on record. Perhaps it is not, but even if it is not there are certain unfortunate conditions connected with it this year that are unprecedented in their effect on the florist industry and the worst of these is the cost of fuel and the difficulty in procuring it at any price. It may be true that greenhouse products generally have enjoyed a somewhat steadier demand and higher prices during the past winter than at any period in recent years but be that as it may we do not believe there are many instances where the increased income has been sufficient to balance the advance in this one item of expense. At the present time it is not possible to purchase soft coal at the mines for less than $3.25 to $3.50 per ton. The situation at present gives no hope for improvement and, indeed, higher prices are looked for. The trouble is attributed primarily to the scarcity of labor and the inefficiency of the men still at the mines, the best men having gone to the steel and ammunition industries for higher wages. Then comes the over-crowding and congestion on the railroads, which shows no sign of abatement and which may be worse. It has been noticed in recent years that the depressing influence of Lent upon the flower business does not last much beyond the first week or ten days and we certainly hope that may be the case this year as the greenhouse man will need all the encouragement possible under existing conditions.

conundrum

Where, oh, where did all the bulbs come from to produce the vast quantities of tulips, daffodils and other spring bulb flowers with which all the flower markets are overwhelmed at this time? Our complacent Holland friends repeatedly assured us last fall that, notwithstanding the closing of some of the best European markets against their products, conditions were such that there could not possibly be any surplus of bulbs to be unloaded upon the American market, but that the indications were really for a scarcity. Somehow, however, the bulbs evidently did get here, otherwise whence comes this avalanche of flowers at the present time? The Dutchman's lot since this wicked war started has been an unenviable one but he appears to have handled the situation with accustomed sagacity and his reputation as a trader seems to be still 100 proof.

silver lining

Should all the home vegetable gardens now proposed be actually planted, the seedmen's bins will get a record cleaning out. On some things they are far from being full even now and the quantity called for is likely to run

Let's grow more and better carnations on the same bench space next season. It can be done and we all know where we can improve our growing. One big factor, the soil for the benches, is just as good as we care to make it. M. A. Patten told us at one of the carnation nights in Boston that if the initial soil was right, subsequent feeding or top dressing mattered little. Mr. Patten spoke from experience and close observation and spoke truly. The preparation of soil for the benches is a matter of utmost importance. This work requires time and care in the selection of materials, the time, with the action of frost, moisture and decomposition, saving labor and mechanical operations. The essential thing is to get the food elements required by the carnation in a soil that will take water and air satisfactorily and keep open and sweet throughout the season, avoiding meal and mud, supplying food and fibre.

There are several good ways to do this and the books

ROSE GROWING UNDER GLASS

Ventilation

Proper looking-after the ventilation does not mean merely keeping the temperatures where they should be, as often the temperatures are all that could be desired and yet the roses will not thrive, for some reason or another. Often this can be traced to insufficient air, especially at this time of the year. After a little experience a grower should be able to tell whether a house needs air as soon as he enters one, and if air should be needed it should be applied even if an additional steam pipe or two should have to be turned on to give the house the temperature which is required. From now on, air will have to be given more freely than ever, and except on very windy nights, a crack of air should be carried all night unless the temperature outside drops to 26 degrees F., when the houses can be closed to save coal. Private growers who do not have to be cutting down operating expenses can carry a little air often even though the temperature outside is below 26, especially where they have hot water heat, and only a pipe or two of steam, used only when needed. Sometimes with a heavy crop just finishing it would pay even the commercial grower to carry a little air, for the buds would color much better with air and cooler temperature. Give the plants all the air needed but do not overdo it—not that it would hurt the plants any, but it would certainly hurt the coal pile, and as the coal is going up and up, too much air would mean a dent in the pocketbook.

Temperature in Ice Box

See that the ice box is properly cooled now that warmer weather is here, and the natural cold cannot be depended on any longer. Buds open and develop surprisingly fast in fresh water and a warm box, and a warm box for a day or two may mean many dollars gone, lost on roses that have opened too far, and have to be sold at a sacrifice or thrown away altogether. Between 42 and 50 is plenty cold enough, with 45 as a good medium. The best way is to follow the stuff once in a while and see how it handles. This will decide the proper temperatures for the ice box. Shipments going any distance will have to be iced to keep the roses from opening too much. When this is done care should be taken not to and speakers have told them. Some sterilize the soil, some use a good grinder, some take sub-soil. Most growers prepare their bench soil in the field, plowing in rye and cow peas, dressing heavily and using plow and harrow often. All these ways are good. One safe way is to pile sod and dressing in layers in the autumn, and let the frost go away through it all winter and cut it over once or twice after frost, adding bone or lime if needed, thus securing a uniformly incorporated compost ready for the roots. These sod piles are placed near the carnation houses for convenience in filling benches and to be within reach of the hose in dry seasons. A special mixture can be made for varieties of carnations needing heavy or light soil and a section also let any of the ice or water come in contact with the buds, as these would be hurt, and disfigured so as to be unsalable after being exposed to the air. Have the ice crushed to about the size of walnuts so as not to bruise the foliage between the chunks of ice.

Get Busy in the Garden

There is no reason why a rose grower should not also be a gardener even if only on a very small scale. With the price of vegetables and fruit away up in the air, quite a saving can be made by having your own. Then, too, what a difference in the taste of the fresh picked vegetables, and the greens that have been lying around the store a while. There is always a little space in the rose houses where plants can be started and grown to a very good size, so that when spring opens out, it will not take a whole season to get some vegetables. It is always nice too to have a quantity of fruit on hand, and with a little planning this can easily be accomplished. Prune all grapevines now, if the work has not been done as yet. Go over the apples, too; also all small fruit such as gooseberries and currants, raspberries, etc. Watch for scale on all trees and shrubs and if any show, spray at once with lime and sulphur, Scaline or some of the good soluble oils advertised. We use only caustic soda and water and have had no scale on apple trees since the scale started. Be careful to use a weaker mixture on all peach trees, also plums, as the buds on these are not closed so tight as apples and pears, and should an equally strong mixture be used on these, many of the buds would be killed very likely. Go over all peaches and plums for black knot, and be sure to burn all affected branches. Do not prune the cherries very much for these as a rule do not grow very thick. Do not neglect to have a flower garden. A rose grower has one great help—old greenhouse soil. Add a little bone or manure, and the results obtained will be wonderful. Plant plenty of perennials. These come in long before other flowers and are worth many times their cost.

Plant Now for Summer Bloom

Where roses are wanted in the summer, it will be necessary to plant early—now. Of course it is necessary to have the plants in shape to go into the benches, also to have the soil in condition for the plants to take. With early planting but plenty of bonemeal into the soil, and if it is at all possible secure some real coarse bone such as is used by fruit growers, and mix this well into the soil. This will give the plants plenty to eat. As a rule early planted plants have a long season ahead of them. Use plenty of manure, and pile the benches half an inch more than would be done for regular work. This will settle down as the manure dissolves and by the time winter comes there will not be too much soil in the benches. Use good plants, good soil, clean the benches well, and take care of the plants after planting.

suitable for mulching. Expensive! Yes, it costs more, but look at some of the ranges where carnations have proved unsatisfactory and see whether poorly prepared soil was at the bottom of the trouble. A penny saved is not so good as two pennies earned.

In our effort to do better growing this next season, shall we try indoor growing? It's safe every time if done skilfully and the blooms up to December are better than from field plants.

ILLINOIS STATE FLORISTS' ASSOCIATION

The Twelfth Annual Convention of the Illinois State Florists' Association was held at the Floricultural Building, University of Illinois, Urbana, Ill., on Tuesday and Wednesday, March 6-7, with the following program:

Opening session, Tuesday, March 6, 2 o'clock.

Welcome—J. C. Blair, head of Department of Horticulture.

President's Address—C. W. Johnson, Morgan Park.

Report of Secretary—J. F. Ammann, Edwardsville.

Report of Treasurer—F. L. Washburn, Bloomington.

Report of Fertilizer Work—F. W. Muncie, Urbana.

Report of Pathological Work—E. M. R. Lamkey, Urbana.

Report of Instructional Work—H. B. Dorner, Urbana.

Nomination and Election of Officers. Evening Session Tuesday, March 6.

Discussion—"How Can We Increase Flower and Plant Sales."

(a) By Better Arrangements.

(b) By Better Salesmanship.

Morning Session, Wednesday, Mar. 7. Unfinished and New Business, and Inspection of the Greenhouses.

President's Address.

President Johnson's address was as follows:—

Fellow members of the Illinois State Florists' Association:

We are now assembled for our 12th annual meeting. A year ago we had a very successful meeting at Moline in the extreme western part of the state, and now we meet again here at Urbana under the auspices of the Department of Horticulture of the University of Illinois. I am sure every member joins me in expressing our appreciation of the privilege we have in meeting at this institution. Here we come in touch with the work that is being undertaken by the University of Illinois to solve some of the problems which we as individuals have to contend with in our work connected with the cultivation of plants and flowers. Not only this but the work being carried out along the lines of landscape gardening affords much of interest to the landscape gardener as well as to the retail florists whose business is partly of this order.

Every florist of this state whether he is a grower or a retailer should feel it his duty to take a great deal of interest at what is being done here for floriculture, and the Illinois State Florists' Association as a body should never be neglected in giving its aid and support to those in charge of the work. The young men who are devoting four years of their life to be especially trained in the work we represent are going to be a power not only in the business but also in the societies allied thereto.

As your president it gives me pleasure to congratulate you on your efforts of the past year. It has been a fruitful one. At Bloomington last November our first fall flower show was held in many ways. First and foremost, it was well supported by the members not only by their presence but by contributing largely of exhibits. Every part of the state was well represented; not only the members with large establishments to make their selection from but those not so well equipped did their part by either sending or bringing along an exhibit. The exhibits were of the highest order, receiving much commendation by the visiting public, and we are proud to say that every exhibit was contributed for the good of the cause without any chance of remuneration, it being a free will show in every respect.

—a flower show that was remarkable

I feel it my duty to call the attention of the members of the association to the good work done by our fellow members, the Washburn Bros. of Bloomington, in their efforts to make the show the success it was and to them we owe a vote of thanks. The Commercial Club of Bloomington was also untiring in its efforts to make our visit both pleasant and profitable, and to them we owe our thanks.

The purpose of the meeting at this time is the nomination and election of officers, to hear reports of the work of the different departments by the professors in charge and to transact such other business as may come before the association. I ask your active participation in all the details of the meeting which will not only help the association but be of mutual benefit to every member.

I would suggest for your consideration and discussion the various diseases and insects which attack plants. The Carnation Yellows is still an unsolved problem though good work is being done to get at the bottom of the trouble. Every year some fresh disease or insect seems to come to the front. At the last meeting of the Chrysanthemum Society of America held in Philadelphia last November a member spoke of the trouble growers of his vicinity were having with a form of cladosporium or fungoid growth which, commencing at the bottom of the chrysanthemum plant, quickly rises upward, covering the under surface of the leaves with a varnish-like coating that closes up the pores and stops all growth. Another member spoke of the gall fly which attacked his plants very seriously. Experiences of the members with these or any other difficulties should be brought before the meeting and freely discussed for the benefit of all.

To the officers and members I extend my thanks and appreciation for their support during my two terms as your president, and trust the same will be extended to my successor. Our association has done a lot of good for the florists of Illinois, but each year brings its new responsibilities needing the support and co-operation of every one interested in our business.

In these troublesome times it is indeed a pleasure to again meet and shake hands with our fellow craftsmen—friends who have worked together the best part of our lives for the good of our common cause.

Secretary's Report.

Secretary Ammann's report was as follows:

The one great event in the history of the association was the Fall Flower Show held at Bloomington, Ill., in November. This was indeed one great success. There were forty exhibitors and all donated the flowers as the show was non-competitive, and all but one or two prepaid the express on flowers sent to the show. This truly shows a spirit of good fellowship, and yet I doubt if any better advertising medium for flowers could be had than such a show. Six certificates of merit were awarded. The attendance was unusually large, over 100 members attending the banquet.

We hope now that the fall show and good fellowship meetings will come to be an annual affair. The association is now the proud owner of 200 vases for exhibition purposes, the executive committee having purchased them from the A. L. Randall Co., at a very liberal reduction from the regular price. Five life memberships have been added to the list, making our present life membership 58, which together with an annual membership of 239 and an honorary membership of four makes the total membership 301. The receipts for the year were $127.00; disbursements $157.38.

METHODS FOR INCREASING PRODUCTION OF ROSES AND CARNATIONS.

Report of F. W. Muncie, Associate in Floricultural Chemistry, Illinois Agricultural Experiment Station, to the Illinois State Florists' Association.

A bulletin from the Illinois Agricultural Experiment Station which has just come from the press on "The Use of Commercial Fertilizers for Roses," embodies the information contained in my report of March 7, 1917, with practical suggestions to florists. This report contains further experiments along the same line and uncovers a new line of promise in the study of variability of production by roses and carnations.

Is acid phosphate superior to bone meal?

In the bulletin above and in a number of papers which I have read before this association and one before the American Carnation Society, I have advocated the use of acid phosphate as a thoroughly safe and effective form of fertilizer for supplying phosphorus to rose and carnation plants. In no previous paper have I been able to recommend acid phosphate as superior to bone meal, although I have been rather widely quoted to that effect and a number of growers are trying out acid phosphate in comparison with bone meal. In order to test out this point, two sets, 144 rose plants of each of the varieties Richmond and Killarney, are being grown during the present season, one set being fertilized with acid phosphate at the rate of 80 pounds per 100 cubic feet of soil, the other with an equal money value of bone meal, calculated to be 42.8 pounds per 100 cubic feet on the basis of acid phosphate and bone meal costing $15 and $28 per ton, respectively. Each of the fertilizers costs more today but the ratio of cost of one to the other is about the same. The plants are two year old stock. I will let the results speak for themselves.

Effect of fertilizing with bone meal and acid phosphate:

	Killarney
	Bone Meal	Acid Phosphate
Total number per
144 plants.....	1918	2391
Average per plant.	13.3	16.1

	Richmond
	Bone Meal	Acid Phosphate
Total number per
144 plants.....	1792	2069
Average per plant.	12.4	14.3

The advantage in favor of acid phosphate is about 2½ flowers per plant, which I consider a rather remarkable endorsement of acid phosphate, since the figures represent the production only from September 15 to December 18, 1916.

The Illinois Agricultural Experiment Station, if these figures are verified by the results of the remainder of the year, will be able to make a second recommendation of practical importance to the rose grower, viz., that with an equal investment for fertilizer, acid phosphate will yield much the larger returns.

Will Phosphate Fertilizer Increase the Carnation Crop?

In a discussion about a year ago before the American Carnation Society, I stated that no extensive experiments had ever been published showing that phosphatic fertilizer would increase the crop of carnations, but I believed on general principles that it might well do so. I am able to give you the results of experiments with White Enchantress and Champion, the figures being for flowers picked from September 15 to December 18, 1916, (acid phosphate used at rate of 80 pounds per 100 cubic feet of soil).

Effect of Acid Phosphate on Carnation Production

	No. Plants	Total Production	Ave. Production per plant
White Enchantress with Acid Phos.....	352	1656	4.7
White Enchantress without Acid Phos.....	338	1394	4.1
Champion with Acid Phos.....	350	2266	6.5
Champion without Acid Phos.....	356	2219	6.2

The increase with acid phosphate fertilization is around one flower per two plants, which appears more significant when stated as an increase of 500 flowers per each 1000 plants in the bench. If these results are borne out by the rest of the experiment, I will consider the point raised as settled in favor of fertilization with acid phosphate, although apparently carnations are not the heavy feeders roses are, nor receive such marked benefit by fertilization.

Variability in Production of Roses and Carnations

In studying the production of some 1700 rose and 1400 carnation plants during the present year, some data of great interest and fundamental im-

After discarding that portion of the column in each case which contains less than ten plants, there remains a portion near the center where the production varies as much as one hundred per cent. Thus with Ophelia, 13 plants produced 16 flowers while 11 plants produced only eight flowers. If it were possible to raise the average production from the level of eight to that of sixteen, an increase in production of one hundred per cent would result, and that without further investment for greenhouses or labor. Since an increase of 20 per cent by the use of a fertilizer is considered large, the importance of the question relative to those relating to the use of fertilizers is apparent.

Possible causes of this variability are (1) relative location on the bench with respect to illumination, drying out, or temperature, (2) imperfections or poor quality of manetti stock, although some results obtained previously on own-root stock showed me that this cannot be the sole cause, (3) variable vigor and productiveness of plants due to conditions of growth previous to their being set in the bench, and (4) variability of vigor and productiveness in the plants from which the scions of these plants were taken. This seems to me to be the fundamental question; whether plants obtained by the growth of scions from high-producing plants will themselves be high-producers in comparison to these plants whose "parents" (if I may thus loosely term them) were low producers; and so fundamental and practical a question is it that you may expect results to be reported at some future meeting on this subject. Carnations show a similar variability and what I have said above for roses applies to them, also, with the exception, of course, of the possible influence of manetti roots.

COVER ILLUSTRATION.

We have the pleasure of showing for the first time a picture of the new Lælio-Cattleya Gen. Pershing, which will be one of the sensations of the New York Show next week. The pollen parent of this hybrid was Lælia tenebrosa var. Uncas—a tenebrosa with Indian red sepals and petals, the other parent being an extra fine Cattleya Trianae. The hybrid itself is a rich dark flower showing some of the Lælia characteristics, with Indian red sepals and petals. The picture is much reduced from the original size.

FLORISTS' CLUB OF PHILADELPHIA.

A well attended meeting of the Florists' Club was held on March 6th. An animated discussion on the present unsatisfactory conditions in the express service took place and loud calls for improvement were voiced by the members. The traffic manager from the Chamber of Commerce was the principal speaker. Among others were Samuel S. Pennock, Leo Niessen and Edward Reid.

CLUB AND SOCIETY NOTES.

The March meeting of the Cincinnati Florists' Society will be held Monday, March 12th at Hotel Gilson.

The Worcester County (Mass.) Horticultural Society had a reunion, dinner and dance on the evening of March 1st. About four hundred guests participated including many who are prominent in civic affairs, who patted the society on the back in due and ancient fashion for its creditable career since the year 1842.

The association of Kew Gardeners in America will hold its second annual banquet and reunion at Shanley's 117 West 42nd street, New York, on March 16, the business meeting will be held at 7 P. M., followed by banquet at 8 P. M. The price per plate is $2, and all Kew men are urged to attend and bring their wives or lady friends. Those who are expecting to attend will please oblige and write S. R. Candler, Secretary, P. O. Box, 278, Southampton, N. Y.

The principal event at the regular meeting of the Southampton, (N. Y.) Horticultural Society on March 1st was the competition for a centre piece of cut flowers, which was won by Joseph Cassidy of Wainscott with a beautiful arrangement of Matchless carnations and lily of the valley. Mr. Cassidy also read a splendid essay on Winter Flowering Carnations. Wm. McLeod was awarded a certificate of merit for a fine exhibit of Richardia africana. Mr. McLeod will give an essay on Winter Flowering Sweet Peas, on April 5. Jules W. King was appointed a delegate to the Davey convention, and H. H. Wells a substitute. The competition for the April meeting will be on forced hardy flowering shrubs.

ILL-JUDGED PRESS PUBLICITY.

We have received from J. J. Lane, manager of the Garden Magazine a letter vigorously criticising as a very reprehensible publicity effort the following, which appeared in the New York Evening Post, and which Mr. Lane declares to be one of the most wonderful examples of the circus type of press agent "dope" he had ever seen:

ONION THIEVES BEWARE!
Flower Show Has a Detective to Guard Its Bulb Display.

Because of the similarity between gladiolus bulbs and onions, a special detective patrol has been engaged to watch the gladiolus exhibit at the International Flower Show, in Grand Central Palace, which opens Thursday, March 15. Lately a number of prospective exhibitors have reported thefts of shipments of bulbs, these being mistaken for crates of onions.

Harry Safir, detective, announcer, and baseball fan, has been engaged by the management for this job. He is known to thousands of metropolitan fans, for he is the personage who so often appears at the home plate at the Polo Grounds and announces in ringing tones, "Batteries f'r f'day is —." Not long ago Harry ran down the crooks who stole the big peanut consignment intended for Polo Grounds consumption. He says if he can protect peanuts, he can do likewise for gladioli, or "amateur onions," as he calls them.

As a side line, Safir will be called upon to watch the rare but scarcely more valuable orchid exhibit, appraised at several hundred thousand dollars, which will include some of the newest and rarest specimens ever brought to or cultivated in America.

Mr. Lane writes: "Far be it from me to figure out how the staid and sedate New York Evening Post saw fit to publish this literary masterpiece. It seems to me that the Publicity Committee have gone far astray in their efforts to interpret to the people what the Flower Show is. All I have learned about advertising convinces me that people form their impressions of a thing from the advertising they see of it. If you never saw a Packard automobile the dignified impressive advertising done by the Packard Company would make you realize that the Packard automobile was ultra supreme, something not in the category of a flivver or a tin Lizzie. The publicity of the Flower Show will likewise give the people an impression of what they are to expect there. If it is the work of the publicity man to try and get the people from the East Side who are not interested in Wallace Pierson roses, F. R. Pierson's roses, or the bulb garden of Scheepers, it certainly seems to me that we are cluttering up the exhibit with people who are not our kind of people. Not that I think it is objectionable to have those people there but in that case why not run a circus instead of a Flower Show?"

An award of merit has been given to a new double flowered variety of the white Primula malacoides by the Royal Horticultural Society of London.

SEED TRADE

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION

Officers—President, Kirby B. White, Detroit, Mich.; First Vice-President, F. W. Bolgiano, Washington, D. C.; Second Vice-President, L. L. Olds, Madison, Wis.; Secretary-Treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.—Convention at Detroit, June 19, 1917.

American Seed Trade Association.

The annual convention of the American Seed Trade Association goes to Detroit this year. The dates are June 26 to 28. We present herewith a cut of the Hotel Pontchartrain, which will be convention headquarters. President White urges those who expect to attend the convention to make reservation at once as Detroit hotels are usually well filled up in June. Rooms reserved now will be held by number, thus minimizing the possibility of error and disappointment.

One Week's Imports.

Imports at the port of New York, of horticultural material, for the week ending Feb. 23d, were recorded as follows:

Bulbs—Netherlands, $2,507; Japan, $382.

Plants—France, $7,987; England, $459; Ireland, $170; Japan, $189.

Red clover seed—France, $6,965.

Other clover seed—Canada, $300.

Grass seed—Scotland, $1,179; Ireland, $1,301.

Other seeds—Denmark, $178; France, $4,114; Italy, $1,866; Netherlands, $509; England, $10,698; British India, $2,067; Japan, $36.

Nitrate of soda—Chile, $187,475.

Other fertilizers—England, $310.

Wisconsin Truck Growers to Treat Cabbage Seed.

Many Wisconsin gardeners and truck growers intend to treat their cabbage seed with formalin solution this season, as a means of checking serious damage to their crops from black rot and black leg diseases.

The disinfection of cabbage seed is equally as important as seed treatment for grain smut and potato scab, a common practice on many Wisconsin farms, and known to give big returns on the time and money so invested.

Directions for the use of formalin or formaldehyde in the treatment of cabbage seed have been prepared by R. E. Vaughan, plant disease specialist, College of Agriculture, University of Wisconsin:

"Take 1 ounce of the strong (40 per cent.) solution and mix 2 gallons of water in any ordinary tub or pail. Then take the seed to be treated and put it loosely in a cloth sack which should be tied up and placed in the diluted solution of formalin for 20 minutes. The seed should be stirred around in the solution so as to make sure that all the seeds are entirely wet.

"When the 20 minutes are over, rinse the seed in clear water to remove the formaldehyde and dry at once by spreading on clean papers, canvass, or floor. After drying, the seed is ready to be put in the seeder or when thoroughly dry can be stored for future use."

Mr. Vaughan gives these few cautions:

"Don't freeze the wet seed.

"Don't return the treated seed to the original packages, because of danger of re-infection.

"Don't leave the seed in the solution more than 20 minutes.

"Don't make the solution too strong, as over treatment injures the vitality of the seed.

"Don't forget that seed treatment cannot eliminate the diseases which may come from infected soil, neighboring fields, or from farm machinery, tramping feet, or insects."

Notes.

Rush City, Minn.—R. E. Killmer, proprietor of the North Star State Nurseries, will open a seed store for spring trade in a few weeks.

We regret to learn of the illness of W. C. Langbridge, representative of the Jerome B. Rice Co., Cambridge, N. Y., and hope he will be able to get out again soon.

We have received from Alois Frey some flowers of his hybrid freesias, which are exceedingly pretty, the colors running all the way from deep bright yellow to deep pink and in a mixed bunch producing a bright sparkling effect. The flowers are borne on tall, vigorous stems.

Of Interest to Retail Florists

AN IMPORTANT MEETING.

Editor HORTICULTURE:

For almost two years I worked a lone hand on bettering shipping conditions connected with the different express companies. It was slow work for my impatience, but I managed.

About six months ago I brought this up at a meeting of our Retail Florists' Association and had from our association also from the Greek American Florists a letter giving me authority to close any agreement which might further our interest, the interest of retail florists.

We shall have a meeting in New York on Friday or Saturday, the 16th or 17th of March. The presidents of the different express companies are willing to do anything possible to protect our shippings, to further our business, and I shall have to give them a few days' notice for what day they should arrange so that they can give us their time.

Any Florists' Club or Retail Florists' Association desiring to send a delegate to this meeting should write me immediately. I will very gladly submit to the different delegates what I have done in this matter heretofore. We can form a committee, elect a chairman in advance of this committee, and instead of representing the few hundred florists of New York only, we can derive benefits for all the florists in the states.

J. J. Karins, of Dreer's, is showing Boston growers a new fern which is looked upon with much favor—Nephrolepis exaltata Norwood. In habit it is quite distinct from all the other forms of Nephrolepis. It is strong and sturdy without being ungraceful and has a poise which is lacking in others of similar type. Its finished character in the small sizes is a characteristic which will be especially appreciated. It originated with Robert Craig Co.

The Horticultural Club of Boston discussed the plant importation problem and the effects on American horticultural industries of the proposed prohibitory legislation, at its meeting on Wednesday evening, March 6. Guests present were: D. M. Rogers of the insect inspection force in Massachusetts, J. J. Karins of H. A. Dreer, Philadelphia, and Ernest Saunders, Lewiston, Me. The table was beautifully decorated with sprays of Clematis indivisa from Wm. Anderson, cinerarias from R. & J. Farquhar & Co., and carnations from C. S. Strout.

PHILADELPHIA.

Mrs. Lonsdale, widow of Edwin Lonsdale, arrived from Lompoc, Cal., on March 3rd on a visit to her brother, John Burton, and other relatives in Chestnut Hill and vicinity. This is her first since leaving our midst some nine years ago.

Dr. P. H. Lane, of Chestnut Hill, well-known among the horticultural fraternity, went under an appendicitis operation at the Medico-Chi Hospital on the 5th inst. On the 6th the nurse reported over the telephone that his condition was very serious. He is a native of Nahant, Mass., and a graduate of Dartmouth.

The Bellevue-Stratford Hotel has been selected as headquarters by the American Rose Society for its meetings during the four-day Rose Show. This is the largest and one of the finest houses in the city, and it has arranged to give special low rates to rosarian visitors from out of town provided they mention that they are members of the Rose Society.

Mr. Brown, local manager for Hitchings & Co., with offices in the Pennsylvania Building at 15th and Chestnut street, reports an unusual number of inquiries for new work and that the outlook is very encouraging. Mr. Brown has only been here since last October but he has already made himself very popular with the trade and is a welcome figure at the Florists' Club and other centers of horticultural interest.

A. B. Cartledge, Jr., will open his new store at 220 W. 9th street, Wilmington, Del., on Monday, March 5th. Mr. Cartledge is the son of the senior member of Pennock Bros., Philadelphia, and has been brought up in the business. It is a compliment to the growing city of Wilmington that men like Mr. Cartledge with experience, capital and artistic ability should be encouraged to settle in their midst. The location is in the center of the fashionable business district and the new store is fitted up with all the latest allurements and facilities in every department.

Many prize-winning orchids and other plants were destroyed when fire swept the greenhouses on the estate of George H. McFadden at Villanova. The loss has been estimated at between $25,000 and $40,000. Mr. McFadden and family are at Palm Beach. The fire was discovered by George Aitken, head gardener. He and his assistants succeeded in saving more than forty valuable plants before the arrival of the Bryn Mawr fire department. The flames were confined to the greenhouses, but threatened to spread to the stables, where Mr. McFadden has several valuable polo ponies and horses. The cause of the fire is unknown.

A meeting of the various committees of the Rose Festival was held on March 7th. Much important work was done and the final schedule and program gone over and approved. Some of its salient points not previously mentioned are noted here as we go to press:

The show will open at 2 P. M., Tuesday, March 20th.

Staging must be finished by 12 o'clock noon each day.

Exhibits of Commercial Cut Roses and Plants to be staged on the 20th.

Exhibits of Non-commercial Cut Roses to be staged on the 21st.

Class 220 is for Display of Cut Roses by commercial growers, to be staged Thursday, 22nd, covering 200 square feet of space, and to contain not less than 500 nor more than 1,000 blooms.

First prize, $250; second, $150; third, $100.

In addition to the above cash prizes, a gold medal, value $50.00, is offered by Kroeschell Bros. Co., Chicago, as an extra on the first; and by the Toronto Horticultural Society, a silver and a bronze medal on the second and third.

The annual meeting of the society will be held in the Bellevue-Stratford Hotel on Wednesday, March 21st, at 9.30 A. M.

PITTSBURGH.

Dr. Otto C. Jennings and Dr. Coggeshall lectured at the banquet of the Florists' and Gardeners' Club on "The Cliff Dwellers of the Colorado and Rio Grande," "Bulbs and Bulb Flowers" was the subject of the meeting proper.

Beginning next Monday the A. W. Smith Co. will have a display of landscape rendering through the medium of water colors and sketches at the Keenan building. Ralph H. Pinner is director of the landscape department.

One of the most attractive flower shops on the North Side is that of Albert Brigg at 904 Federal street in which he is assisted by Mrs. Brigg and Miss Grace Dryden. Prior to starting independently in business last September Mr. Brigg was an employee of the A. W. Smith Co.

In urging the promotion of the cultivation of flowers the Post has the following: "When it comes to flower raising some of the mill men of the south side and other manufacturing sections can give some valuable advice. They have made attractive spots where it was thought impossible to produce grass and flowers."

AZALEA GROWING IN CALIFORNIA

The accompanying picture shows one of the great slat houses, covering three acres of ground and used for wintering azaleas at Cottage Gardens Co.'s farms at Eureka, Cal. These slat houses are heated by steam pipes and a huge oil-burning boiler.

WASHINGTON, D. C.

William A. Barber, who was in charge of the Ninth St. store of Fred H. Kramer on Inauguration Day, was the victim of two unidentified men who, after hitting him on the head with a piece of lead pipe, robbed the store of $36.

An examination for the position of division park foreman has been announced by the U. S. Civil Service Commission, to be held on March 24. Applicants must have had at least five years practical experience as trained gardeners and have been in charge of men engaged in the improvement, care and maintenance of parks.

March 20 is the date set by Miss Louise Daugherty and George Gouldman for the opening of the new florist store at Connecticut Ave. and N street, N. W. Both Miss Daugherty and Mr.

Gouldman have been connected with the store of George C. Shaffer. William J. Galt, who has been employed at the store of George C. Shaffer for some months, has returned to Philadelphia on account of the illness of his wife.

DETROIT.

We regret to report the misfortune which befell one of Detroit's prominent florists, Frank Holznagel, whose entire plant was gutted by fire, the early part of last week. The fire, starting in the garage, burned three cars and left the place in ruins. The loss is only in small part covered by insurance.

Cincinnati.—Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Gillett have returned from Florida. Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Peterson spent the past several weeks on a sight-seeing trip.

Flower Market Reports

BOSTON The local conditions have not improved any since last report, but accumulations are much heavier and sales exceedingly slow. Prices have taken a big drop and published quotations do not give any very clear insight into the prices at which large lots are unloaded when a well-posted customer draws his wallet. Double daffodils of splendid quality are now coming in heavily. English primroses are selling at $2.00 per dozen bunches.

There is no waiting for BUFFALO trains and express companies to deliver promptly at this time for the stock is on hand at all times in the wholesaler's coolers these Lenten days. No orders go short on any one line as there is more than sufficient of everything to fill any order no matter how large. Daffodils, tulips and other bulbous stock is overflowing. Roses are plentiful, as also are lilies, carnations, sweet peas, violets, lily of the valley, freesia and other stock. It is hoped that the coming week may bring about change for the betterment of the market.

The first week in March CHICAGO brought such an increase in quantity of stock and consequent lowering of price that more business naturally was looked for. As so often occurs in the florists' business, the reverse took place instead and customers were fewer and not so anxious to buy even when their money would go so much farther. A near glut exists in spring flowers, and daffodils have been sold as low as ten dollars per thousand in order to move them the past week. Fortunately but little stock has arrived from the south. Tulips are dragging also and freesias are accumulating. Carnations have not changed materially, at least not for the better, for evidences are unmistakable that the supply still far exceeds the demand. Roses are coming more freely. Quality is very good and the regular daily sales use up nearly everything. Some very fine tall snapdragons are offered, the pink ones bringing the highest price (two dollars per dozen.) There are quantities of mignonette, candy-tuft, poeticus, callas, ten-weeks' stock, violets, etc. Calendulas, which have sold well ever since the holidays are now going slowly. Sweet peas are in all qualities and many move daily though they also are in excess of demand.

Business is better CINCINNATI than it was at the beginning of Lent. The supply is larger while the demand for stock is more active. Shipping business is fair. Roses and carnations are in an excellent supply. Lilies are not very plentiful. The supply of sweet peas is generally in excess of the demand. Bulbous stock has a fair sale.

The market for the past DETROIT week shows a marked improvement over the preceding one both in quality and in quantity of all stock. A few sunny days have brought along a nice lot of local roses: seasonable stock of course is abundant. The demand is very brisk, all retailers reporting good business.

The lenten listless-
NEW YORK ness which overwhelmed this market

last week is still with us but the receipts of roses and carnations are somewhat reduced and if the flood of bulbous flowers would only subside, the situation would probably improve soon. There is no end of daffodils and tulips—many of them of high quality, and freesias, lilies and callas are also heavily overstocked. Sweet peas are almost as badly stagnated as are the bulbous flowers and many of them are of very inferior quality, which makes them practically unsaleable. There are many carnations in sight, of miserable quality. Really good carnations bring a respectable price still. The quality of roses generally is excellent, Hadley still holding her position as mistress of the flower market. The special blooms of this rose are simply marvelous and are eagerly snatched up at nine dollars a dozen, wholesale. Asparagus plumosus and smilax are in short supply.

Slowest week for PHILADELPHIA some time — is the general verdict here. Bad weather for one thing. Maybe Lent to some extent. And many more flowers. Prices have receded very considerably all along the line. Quantity ahead of demand, and all in buyers' favor. Quality fine, in nearly all staples. The scarce items seem to be greens and American Beauty roses.

Owing to inclement
PITTSBURGH weather products have been retarded
a little, but this is only temporary. Lilies and lily of the valley are scarce, but other bulb products of all varieties have been over plentiful. Notwithstanding the Lenten season, business has kept up remarkably well. There was an extraordinary number of street fakirs abroad last Saturday, the majority being young Hebrews utilizing the holiday from high schools and University of Pittsburgh.

The market conditions ST. LOUIS here for the past week have been quite satisfactory. White carnations are scarce and roses are plentiful but bringing good prices. Narcissi of all kinds are on the increase, shipments of outdoor blooms from the south adding to the difficulty of disposing of them.

Stock of all varieties is abundant, with the exception of American Beauty roses. Other roses are more plentiful and are selling well. Violets and sweet peas have filled the market and have caused the price to drop materially. Double violets sold as low as $3 per thousand, single violets at $5 and sweet peas at $5. Orchids are more plentiful and gardenias scarce. The oversupply of lilies has forced the prices down considerably.

Plant Propagation, Greenhouse and Nursery Practice

By M. G. KAINS

We have had many inquiries from time to time for a reliable and up-to-date book on plant propagation, but were always at a loss to find any publication that we could recommend. The subject has been dealt with in fragmentary manner only in books that have come to our notice. So it is well that this new work has been issued, especially as it is both comprehensive and practical, and it should meet with a ready sale among plantmen, nurserymen and gardeners. There are nineteen chapters covering in detail topics of germination and longevity of seeds, propagating by buds, layering, cuttings, grafting, etc., fruit tree stocks, clones, etc., and there are eight pages of condensed cultural instructions in tabulated form, covering annuals and perennials from seed, woody plants, evergreens, vines, bulbs and tubers, greenhouse and house plants, ferns, palms, water plants, orchids and cacti. The illustrations are numerous, comprising 213 figures and half-tone plates. There are 322 pages well bound and on heavy paper, teeming with helpful information. It is a book which no cultivator can afford to do without. It is worth many times its price. Copies can be supplied from the office of HORTICULTURE at publisher's price, $1.50.

On Thursday, March 1st, a picked team including Messrs. Streit, Rohaley, Stock, Ernest and Norman Sullivan, Brown, Doemling, Pautke, Klang, Plumb, Ingold and Walters, journeyed to Cleveland to bowl the three remaining games in a series of seven between Cleveland and Detroit for the trophy donated by the Mich. Cut Flower Exchange. After three exciting games the trophy was awarded to Cleveland, Detroit taking only two out of the necessary three games, making a total four to three in favor of Cleveland.

Robt. Rohaley, manager of Mich. Cut Flower Co. and donor of the trophy, was easily the feature bowler of the evening, making many timely and spectacular strikes.

My Dear Mr. Stewart:

Your editorial in HORTICULTURE entitled, "Well Done," gives the best short history of the F. H. A. that could be written. Many thanks for your kindly mention, with hopes that when I serve another 30 years you will be in Boston to write another bit of history.

Yours truly,

NEWS NOTES.

Uxbridge, Mass.—A deed has been filed in the registry at Worcester in which Rosa F. Taft, widow of Arthur R. Taft, conveys to three trustees, 35 acres of land to be held in trust as a public park for the use of all the inhabitants of Uxbridge. The gift is in memory of Mrs. Taft's deceased husband, who was always a pioneer in movements for the betterment of Uxbridge. A fund for maintenance accompanies the gift.

Danvers, Mass.—The new classroom and demonstration building, just completed at a cost of $60,000 for the Essex County Independent Agricultural College here, will be dedicated in April. The structure is one of the finest of its kind in the country. It contains 26 classrooms, a large basement demonstrating room and two office rooms. It is 175 feet long and 70 feet wide.

The building is constructed along the most modern lines and contains automatic fan ventilators, shower baths, etc. The material is red brick and reinforced cement with sandstone trimmings.

The college was founded in 1913 and at present accommodates nearly 300 students. Owing to the great demand for entrance it is believed another large building will be needed before long. A large greenhouse will be erected in the spring.

OBITUARY.Gust. Knoch.

On Tuesday, Feb. 27th the well-known florist, Gust. Knoch of Detroit, in a fit of despondency due to ill health, ended his life. The entire Detroit trade extends deepest sympathies to the bereaved widow and children.

Duplication Proves Satisfaction

Mr. P. H. Burton of Glenside, Pa., was so highly gratified by the result he achieved with his first Metropolitan Greenhouse, that he specifically instructed us to plan his new one identically the same as the other.

After a whole year of experience with Metropolitan construction, he decided that no change could possibly improve upon it.

His duplication proves his satisfaction. We can do as well for you.

That centre post prevents eave-sag, when the weight of hinged sash drag down on it. No other builder uses it.

This shows Z-bar eave plate in use. It combines plate and drip gutter in one. Strengthens the eave, takes care of the drip without increasing the shade line or adding cumbersome fittings.

Strength

Some Half Iron Frame Points

TO prevent the between-posts-sag that always happens with the angle iron plate, when side sash are used in place of stationary sides; we put a small steel channel post between the plate and sill. It is not large enough to be at all noticeable; but amply strong to do its work.

Keeping the eave straight, it prevents much of that vexatious sticking of the sash on the sill.

When the Z-bar plate with its drip gutter attached is used; it is stiffened sufficiently so no centre support is necessary.

So much for our non-sagging plate; now about the purlins and the way they are secured to columns and roof bars.

A special two bolt V-shaped fitting holds the purlin

This shows you the special no-slip-way we fasten the angle purlin to the column. Note the two legs for screwing post to the roof bars.

to the column cap. This cap is bolted through-and-through the columns. It cannot slip off. The purlins are held squarely in place against the bar by two legs. Three screws are used.

Each roof bar is also screwed snug to each purlin, upon which it rests.

There is absolutely no movement of bars away from the purlins which is so often the cause of glass breakage when pipe purlins are used.

Always we have built our Half Iron Frame houses with angle iron purlins.

If they are best for the all iron frame; we figure they are best for the half iron. All the points in both constructions are pointed out in our Supply Book. Send for one.

NOTES ON CULTURE OF FLORISTS' STOCK

CONDUCTED BY

John J. M. Farrell

Questions by our readers in line with any of the topics presented on this page will be cordially received and promptly answered by Mr. Farrell. Such communications should invariably be addressed to the office of HORTICULTURE.

"If vain our toil, we ought to blame the culture, not the soil."—Pope.

Azaleas

To hold the most forward ones back, place in darkened and very cool quarters, but the roots of azaleas must have water in sufficiency, which may mean somewhat less for those in a cool place than those under regular forcing temperature but always enough to prevent any drying out at the roots. A very cool and shaded place must be found for those too far advanced. There will be little need of hastening azaleas for the great spring holiday, but should there be some plants showing merely swelling buds, then an increase in fire heat and an exposure to the brightest sunshine will likely bring them out in time. An azalea just beginning to show color, or one with buds now quite fluffy and ready to open, will be in full bloom in from ten to fifteen days.

Care of Carnations

Carnations develop the healthiest growth in a night temperature of about 50 and 54 degrees, according to the variety. Much below 50 degrees causes a standstill in growth, which is not at all desirable and in most cases is harmful. With the longer days they will now need more water. It is absolutely necessary now to give air freely in order to keep the foliage from becoming soft and to encourage hard growth. Our old enemy, red spider, will begin to get busy if not looked after sharply, but as we can now use water more freely we can keep them in check. Thrips and green fly will also multiply rapidly if left undisturbed for even a short period. Carnations will stand lots of feeding now, so you can give them a mulch and liquid manure water, too. It is best to cut the flowers early in the morning as they keep better and the pink shades retain their color better.

Flowers for Memorial Day

Spiraea japonica and its various forms should be brought along now. Fifty-five to 60 degrees at night will suit them better than a higher one. For hydrangeas 55 degrees night temperature is to be preferred, but in case they are late give them 10 degrees more for a time. Spraying overhead on clear days will refresh them. They will take water in great abundance and manure water can be applied two or three times a day until the flowers are well out. It is a hard proposition to hold lilies back where they have been allowed to advance too much. Place them in a house where they can have plenty of ventilation with a good syringing on bright days. Fumigate weekly for aphids. Benches containing ten weeks' stocks, gladioli, snapdragons, candy-tuft and other Memorial Day crops, should be scratched over at least once a week and have all weeds removed.

Sweet Peas for Outside

The best place for sweet peas is one fully exposed to sun and air which would be for the rows to run north and south. A good deep loam well enriched with plenty of well-rotted cow manure and plowed deep, with a surface dressing of bone meal and hardwood ashes makes an ideal place. Make a furrow or trench from 6 to 8 inches deep. Sow the seed thickly in the bottom and cover with two inches of soil pressing down firmly. When they come up thin out to about two inches apart. The balance of the soil should be filled into the trench as they grow. Where you have them in pots, do not give any artificial heat. The ideal place is a cold frame. Under these conditions they will have a natural start and will make fine stock to plant out later.

Reminders

Winter flowering geraniums must be cut over and the tops inserted as cuttings for next year's stock.

Soot water is excellent as a change from the ordinary manure water for roses, carnations and the majority of plants.

Pinch out all the side shoots on tuberose bulbs before potting or planting. This will add to the strength of the main stem.

When repotting the young cyclamens avoid covering the corms deeply as this checks growth and frequently cripples the young leaves.

Next Week:—Adiantums; Bulb Stock; Camellias; Cattlys and Laelias; Easter Lilies; Reminders.

Ohio Licensed Firemen Law.....	354

Oppressive legislation

We sympathize with the florists of Ohio and elsewhere who are facing so much expense and trouble on account of the provisions of the licensed fireman laws. The florists of Massachusetts were threatened with a similar imposition a few years ago, but by vigorous action and by protests at legislative committee hearings they succeeded in securing exemption for greenhouse establishments from the provisions of the proposed law. It might be well for florists in other states where the subject of steam boiler laws is being agitated to procure copies of the Massachusetts reports and enactments. The present laws here are reasonable and appear to have worked to general satisfaction thus far. A copy of the letter signed by the florists of Ohio and sent to members of their state legislature, which will be found on another page of this paper, sets forth the hardship imposed upon greenhouse establishments by the present Ohio law very distinctly and is well worthy of general perusal and thoughtful attention.

Gardeners all

The Philadelphia North American devoted nearly half a page of editorial space in its issue of March 6 to a consideration of the gardening movement, under the title of "No idle acres this year." It is an eloquent and convincing plea for the utilization of every available acre or part acre in Pennsylvania for the growing of grain and vegetables and making productive the millions of acres of unimproved soil throughout the nation—a plea for "a garden in every back yard in city or town, even though the space thus cultivated may not be larger than an ordinary room;" for the conquering of waste and "for making every vacant city lot and every crooked corner in the country a producer of food." This is but one of hundreds of newspapers in every part of our country that under stress of the present emergency are doing splendid service in the most beneficial popular movement of our times. In the words of Leonard Barron in his address at Boston last Tuesday, the back-to-the-soil campaign now in progress is "the greatest boost and liverer that has ever come to gardening in America."

The March exhibitions

By the time these lines are in type two of the big flower shows for which elaborate preparations have been in progress for months will have opened their doors. That the New York "International" will be a stupendous success, unless some direful national crisis should suddenly intervene, is a foregone conclusion. The several years of experience up to the present time are a great asset to the New York management. There is a boundless amount of material with which to make the show and the income from the trade department and the souvenir program is the biggest yet. As to St. Louis, the financial outcome is perhaps not so certain but the prospect is said to be very encouraging and superlative quality is assured. All friends of progressive horticulture will most earnestly wish and hope for St. Louis' success in this ambitious enterprise on which $10,000 is said to have been spent, for a winner now will indicate a splendid triumph for the National Flower Show one year hence. Before our next issue goes to press the National Rose Festival at Philadelphia and the Boston Spring Show advertised as "a corner of paradise" will be in full swing. Ornamental horticulture certainly has its innings this month.

The next issues of HORTICULTURE will be chock full of flower show news; also the advertising pages will be chock full of interesting spring trade offerings. Intelligent readers, such as HORTICULTURE boasts, will be deeply interested in both and advertising firms wishing to build up trade with this class should take quick advantage of the rare opportunity now presented. If you have anything to offer, come out of your obscurity and tell these people about it.

ROSE GROWING UNDER GLASS

CONDUCTED BY

Arthur Ruzicka

Questions by our readers in line with any of the topics presented on this page will be cordially received and promptly answered by Mr. Ruzicka. Such communications should invariably be addressed to the office of HORTICULTURE.

Plants for Summer Roses

There may be several benches not doing extra well now, and may happen to be planted to varieties that would do well in the summer. With this to work on it would be advisable to dry the benches off now, and cut them down as soon as this is done, then start them up again when they are pruned or transplanted. Before beginning to dry the plants off a real good watering should be given, and the houses run a little warmer than usual at night to open as many of the buds as possible, after which the temperature can be gradually reduced to 45 at night, with 70 in the daytime until the plants dry out fairly well, after which the temperature can be allowed to drop down even lower, both in the daytime and at night. As soon as they are real dry and begin to lose their leaves, begin the cutting down. This should not be done with hedge shears, but with a pair of pruning shears, making the cuts so that the eyes will be left where they are most needed. If the soil is very old and worn out it will pay to take the plants out and set them into the walks. This work will have to be done carefully so that the roots will not be torn all to pieces when they are being dug out. The old soil can then be wheeled out, the benches thoroughly cleaned and whitewashed and new soil brought in, which should contain plenty of manure, as the plants will take it up before winter comes. However, be very careful to have the plants well dried off before they are disturbed in any way. If they are not dry enough, there will be trouble when it comes to starting them again, as they will come up weak and sickly as a rule. After they are planted, being careful to firm the soil around the roots well, they should receive a real good watering to settle the soil around them, after which they will be watered only around the plant until they have more growth and roots. After the watering it will be necessary to see that they are sprayed five or six times a day—sprayed, not syringed or watered. This will mean that the water is broken up as fine as is possible, and thrown over the plants so as to moisten all the wood without wetting the soil to any extent. To do this right it will be necessary to move right along with the hose, walking fast, and using good pressure, in order to get as fine a spray as possible. As soon as the young shoots begin to push out be careful to see that the plants are wet enough when they are sprayed or syringed, or the leaves are likely to burn. Then when the buds begin to appear, disbud them at once, so that they will go right on growing without the least check. As more and more growth comes on give more and more water, being careful to watch the roots, which will show how much of the soil around each plant should be wet. Water about half an inch more than the tips of the roots. This will not keep the roots back and at the same time the soil will not be too wet, and getting sour.

Care of the Walks

Walks are an important part of the greenhouse and should not be neglected, and as soon as they get wet and slippery, a little sand should be applied, filling in all the low places with ashes first. A wet slippery walk is dangerous, and if a man has to watch his feet when he is watering or syringing, he cannot pay proper attention to his work and chances are there will be some dry spots here and there or that spider will be appearing where it is not expected. It will be healthier not only for the rose plants but also for the men to have the walks dry, and keeping the plants and the men contented is a great part of the rose growing game.

Disbudding Potted Beauties

Go over all the potted stock at least once a week and make sure that all the buds are pinched out as they should be. This applies especially to American Beauties, which will suffer more than any other variety if they are neglected in this respect. Be sure to take the buds with one leaf or at least down to a good leaf. A poor leaf has only three leaflets and is found right near the bud. If this were left on with the eye at its stem the growth that would come from it would amount to very little as another bud would form almost at once. If the bud is taken where it should be the growth that will come will shoot up a little way before another bud forms, thus making the plant a little taller. Do not allow the buds to remain until they are well formed, as the joints that would form after the buds are taken would be very hard, making it a difficult matter for the sap to get through to the upper part of the plant.

Philadelphus coronarius

Philadelphus coronarius, commonly known as Syringa or Mock Orange, is a very old favorite in gardens, having been introduced from southern Europe in 1596. It is still one of the most beautiful of all summer flowering shrubs and, as will be seen from the cover illustration of this issue, is capable of making a very handsome specimen when planted where sufficient space can be given to permit of unrestricted growth. The Philadelphus family has received considerable attention from the hybridists during recent years and there are now many hybrids and varieties of great value which, taken collectively, form one of the most beautiful and useful groups of all hardy flowering shrubs.

Rose Golden Gem, seedling (Harry Kirk & Lady Hillingdon), grown by Edward Towill and exhibited by S. S. Pennock-Meehan Co., Philadelphia, Pa., arrived too late for the show.

The Novelty Day scored a great success and called forth some very gratifying notices in the local papers. Such gatherings are not only of value to those who are able to be present and examine the novelties, but through the trade papers, florists all over the country learn whether the new plants and cut flowers are making good or otherwise. This exhibit, staged in a couple of hours, was viewed by hundreds of people.

A bloom of the Imperator grown by Wm. Amling is as perfect as a flower can be at this writing, which is four days after the exhibit, and proves that that carnation has keeping qualities not adversely affected by its immense size. The collection of bulb stock both cut and in pans was exceptional. It was not a flower show in the usual sense but an informal grouping of the novelties in a hotel with a splendid opportunity to talk them over and compare notes.

Ninety-two guests—more than twice the number than had been anticipated—were present at the banquet and it proved a very happy occasion. Fred Lautenschlager, as toastmaster, did the honors in his usual happy manner and made all feel at ease by his cordial welcome. Philip J. Foley, who built the greenhouses at the University of Ill. was naturally selected to welcome the fourteen young men from the department of Floriculture, who had come with Prof. Dorner to the banquet and exhibit. Prof. Dorner responded by telling of the good work being done at the "U" and invited florists to bring their problems to them. President Amling, who was able to be with the club for the first time since his election, then greeted the members and guests and named the committee on awards, after which all adjourned to inspect the exhibits. A business session followed and lasted till a late hour.

On Friday and Saturday Prof. Dorner and the University students visited the wholesale cut flower market, then Vaughan's greenhouses at Western Springs, Basset & Washburn's at Gregg's Station, Ill., Poehlmann Bros., at Morton Grove, Ill., Peter Reinberg's, H. N. Burns and Frank Oechslein's in which establishments they studied the various phases of cut flower and plant culture. Mr. Dorner expressed himself as much pleased with what they had seen.

AN OUTLAW BIRD.

To the Editor, HORTICULTURE:

Dear Sir:—Regarding your note in HORTICULTURE of March 3, "Courting Retribution," in which you express shocked surprise at the quotation in the Gardeners' Chronicle of London, which reads, "As the buds begin to swell keep a sharp lookout for birds and either trap or shoot them"—which you consider cold blooded and ignorant advice. To the gardening fraternity of the U. S., your remarks are well founded. The plural (birds), as used by the writer whom you criticize, I think is very unfortunate, as it is very misleading. "Birds" I am sure means the bullfinch, which during the early spring months feeds entirely on the buds of fruit trees. Thousands of dollars of damage could be done by a pair of these birds in a few hours if left alone, denuding whole plantations of gooseberry bushes, varying their diet on the buds of plums and later on with the apples. This bird during the summer feeds entirely on seeds of all kinds and I venture to say would not tend to reduce the bill for insecticides in any way. I can assure you the English gardener well understands the value of bird life and is very keen on all matters for their protection, although he must cover all small fruit with nets if he would gather any. For many years also the government has enacted drastic laws for bird preservation, and severe penalties are inflicted on law breakers in this respect, but the bullfinch is one exception to the rule.

CLUBS AND SOCIETIES

AMERICAN ROSE SOCIETY.

The Executive Committee met in Philadelphia on March 7th at 2 P. M. The minutes of the last meeting were read, and the roses presented for registration which had been referred to a committee, were ordered registered and published.

Edward Towill, Roslyn, Pa., registered a new seedling rose:

"Golden Gem," a cross of Lady Hillingdon and H. Kirk; color golden yellow; strong stem and free bloomer.

A. N. Pierson, Inc., Cromwell, Conn., registered three rose novelties to be disseminated in 1918, as follows:

Mrs. Belmont Tiffany. (Hybrid Tea) A sport from Sunburst. Color, golden yellow shading to apricot orange at the base of the petals, the whole suffused in delicate pink—a distinct and glorified Sunburst.

Mrs. Charles Bell. (Hybrid Tea) A sport from Radiance. Color, light or shell-pink on a salmon shaded background. Superior in growth to Radiance, being equally vigorous but more robust in habit.

Elizabeth Zeigler. (Wichuriana Hybrid) A sport from Dorothy Perkins, but quite distinct. Color, deep rose-pink. Equally vigorous and free in flowering.

E. G. Hill Co., Richmond, Ind., registered:

Columbia. A large habited upright grower with large size foliage, producing long stiff stems and bearing a big flower of pink which deepens as the flower matures.

Double Ophelia. Very similar to the parent in everything save the fullness of the flower; this variety having twice as many petals as the parent; very clear and brilliant in color.

Rose Premier. May be described as a Mrs. Russell, of very easy culture and magnificent in size, form and foliage, and with a perfectly erect stem; deep rose pink.

Mary Hill. Of Sunburst type, improved in habit, foliage and growth, with immense bud and flower of cream color with deep orange center.

A communication was received from Portland, Ore., in regard to the Rose Test Garden, and the resolution as adopted at the February meeting is:

Resolved, That the application made by the Portland Association, National Rose Test Garden, be hereby accepted, and that the Executive Committee of the American Rose Society does hereby officially designate Portland, Ore., as the site for the official rose test garden of the Pacific Northwest, and as a committee representing the American Rose Society, the following named gentlemen are appointed to fill the position: J. A. Currey, 1943 N. 13th St., Portland, Ore.; A. J. Clark, 287 Morrison St., Portland, Ore.; Alfred Tucker, 376 N. 32nd St., Portland, Ore.

A committee was appointed to revise the rules for registration of new roses and to prepare a uniform form for registration purposes. The committee appointed was J. Horace McFarland, Geo. C. Thomas, Jr., and Wallace R. Pierson.

The list of gentlemen accepting the position of judges was read, and the following designations were made:—

Judges to report at noon on March 20th.
Group of one hundred cut roses—J. H. Dunlop, Toronto, Ont., Can.; Philip Breitmeyer, Detroit, Mich.; Patrick Welch, Boston, Mass.

For the Fifty class—Frank H. Traendly, New York City; George Asmus, Chicago, Ill.; Eugene Dailledouze, Brooklyn, N. Y.

For the Twenty-five class—Fred. Burkl, Pittsburgh, Pa.; F. C. W. Brown, Cleveland, O.; S. A. Anderson, Buffalo, N. Y.

For Plants—A. B. Cartledge, Philadelphia,

Staging of Roses.

The American Rose Society at the National Rose Festival to be held in Philadelphia, Pa., on March 20, 21, 22 and 23, in their final schedule show that all exhibits of commercial cut flowers and plants will be staged at 12 o'clock noon on Tuesday, March 20; exhibits by private growers of cut roses to be staged Wednesday, March 21, and the displays of cut roses covering 200 square feet of space and to contain not less than 500 nor more than 1,000 blooms, will be staged Thursday, March 22. The 1st prize will be $250.00, 2nd prize $150.00 and the 3rd prize $100.00.

BENJAMIN HAMMOND, Sec'y.

An American rose garden, 1,200 square feet, will be the feature exhibit. A lake, eighteen feet long and eight feet wide will be in the middle of the garden. A kneeling Venus will appear in the centre of the lake in the act of plucking water lilies. Other plants and flowers that grow in water will be seen. Around the lake will be a path of grass so laid that the floor will be entirely hidden. The outside measurements of the rose garden will be forty by thirty feet.

NEW YORK FLORISTS' CLUB.

The monthly meeting on Monday evening, March 13, was well attended, there being upwards of 175 members present. Seventeen new members were proposed. C. B. Weathered as chairman of the flower show committee reported that all final arrangements of the exhibition were completed, and that the prospects now were that this coming show would surpass all others previously held in New York. Secretary Young reported that all trade space had been sold and that he was now compelled to refuse late applicants for space. The souvenir catalogue was now in the printer's hands and the advertising in this catalogue amounts to nearly $4,000. He stated further that entries for all competitive classes were also now refused, space being now taken up for these classes, being more than enough to pack the building to the limit.

Manager Herrington reported that at the present time he was at his wits end as to how he could possibly care for the heavy entry list that had been made by the growers and that he felt that it would take until Saturday for the show to be in proper "apple pie" order, and that no doubt several exhibits would have to be re-arranged after the opening day, as possibilities might present themselves for the general improvement of the show. The dinner committee reported that over 300 tickets had already been sold and applications for tickets were still coming. This was Rose Night, but on account of the approaching exhibition and the Rose Festival at Philadelphia entries were few, although very meritorious. A vase of twelve blooms of Hadley from P. J. Smith, grown by A. S. Burns, Jr., of Spring Valley, was considered the finest ever seen in New York and had all the members present astounded. It received a cultural certificate.

Robert Simpson showed his No. 40, a sport from Jonkeer J. L. Mock, which scored 86 points and is entitled to a certificate. In shape of flower this rose strongly resembles the old favorite, La France. Foliage is quite distinct from J. J. L. Mock. The color seems almost the same as Kil-larney Queen and much lighter than J. J. L. Mock. Sunburst Sport, exhibited by Pennock-Meehan Co., was awarded thanks of the club; this sport seemed to lack substance in flower. foliage and stem was good. A large vase of Mrs. Wm. Randolph Hearst, shown by A. N. Pierson, Cromwell, Conn., received vote of thanks, also yellow seedling rose Golden Gem, from Edw. Towill, Roslyn, Pa.

A sport from Enchantress Carnation was exhibited by A. Demeusy, Flatbush. The committee asked to see this variety again. A vase of Matchless mignonette, by Weeber & Don, received a cultural certificate. P. Buerlein, of Elmhurst, exhibited tulips and narcissus Glory of Sassenheim and was awarded a vote of thanks.

GARDENERS' AND FLORISTS' CLUB OF BOSTON.

The meeting of this club on Tuesday evening, March 13, was made memorable for all who were present by a scholarly address on "Looking Backward and Looking Forward," by Leonard Barron, editor of the Garden Magazine, Garden City, N. Y. Mr. Barron was at his best and his lecture as well as his remarks in the discussion which followed, furnished a rare treat for his audience.

Looking backward, Mr. Barron referred to Boston as having dominated the development of gardening in America as we know it today, and said it was fair to assume that development will still continue along parallel lines. Speaking of the literature of gardening in the period from 1799 to 1914, he showed by chart how gardening had flourished in times of peace and prosperity and had invariably lagged in periods of turmoil and distress, and further that of the established horticultural literature of today fully one-half had come into existence since 1890. During this time the nurseryman, florist and gardener had successively dominated the gardening writings, and now there is evidence that we are on the verge of a new era when people in other walks than the horticultural industries will take precedence. He laid much stress on the rapidly growing interest of the amateur consumer, who is bound to become a bigger factor than ever before.

He predicted that foreign plants would soon exercise a greatly enlarged influence on our park and garden plantings, also that the present market interest in alpine material may be expected to show an immediate and unprecedented advance. Professional florists and gardeners should keep their eye on the great activity and enormous influence being exerted by the amateur garden clubs which are being rapidly multiplied all over the country, and not be content to drift along and have but a minor part in the coming development of a typical American style of gardening of which we get only a glimmering as yet.

Flower shows and present methods of exploiting them also came in for comment and suggestion. Mr. Barron thought that the tendency had been to make them merely competitive, to the disadvantage of their educational features, and called attention to the great Temple Shows in London which are conducted without a prize list. He believed that young students now being trained at the agricultural colleges would soon wield a strong influence in commercial horticulture, especially in the realm of foresight and insight and experimentation with scientific exactness.

Discussion following Mr. Barron's address was lively and aggressive, and at times exceedingly witty and entertaining. The war-horses of debate and repartee, of which this club has a notable contingent, found Mr. Barron a well-qualified and quick-witted match and there was a half-hour of rare fun for the audience. The consensus of opinion, however, was that the gardeners and florists have plenty to do in the future if they are to hold their own in progressive horticulture in comparison with the people of the garden clubs, also that the condition of the farming lands all over the country is far from creditable to the American people.

The reports of James Donald and Robert Cameron on the visit to the Davey Institute at Kent, Ohio, from which they had just returned, were full of interest and entertainment, and much discussion, both serious and humorous, ensued so that it was well on to eleven P. M. before the listeners began to thin out. Both gentlemen were most enthusiastic as to what they had seen and the lavish hospitality they had enjoyed. They could hardly find words to fully express their admiration of the wonderful system and organization in force at this unique institution. The thoroughness of the training given the young men impressed them strongly. They were fully convinced that the Davey organization is doing a work that measures up to the highest efficiency and is accomplishing much to restore tree surgery to its proper place. The remarkable ability for organization and system shown by M. L. Davey, son of the founder, and present chief executive, impressed the speakers very forcibly, and if, perchance, they were at all skeptical when they started regarding the work of the Davey Institute, they both certainly came home most effectively reformed and cured.

The only exhibit was a group of Lachenalia tricolor in pans, unusually well bloomed, by Charles Cooper of Brookline.

FLORISTS' CLUB OF WASHINGTON

All of the 1916 officers of The Florists' Club of Washington, D. C., were re-elected at the meeting of the club held Tuesday evening, March 13. This meeting had been postponed from the previous week because of the inaugural activities. The hold-over officers are R. Lloyd Jenkins, president; Adolph Gude, vice-president; Clarence L. Linz, secretary, and William F. Gude, treasurer. The directors were also all re-elected.

There was a display of Marie Le-graye lilacs by I. Wessel Staalmann, grown by Mr. Staalmann at Oakton, Va. It was declared by those present to be as fine as has ever been produced in the United States and equal to the foreign-grown stock. They are well branched, spikes twelve inches long and are very floriferous.

NEW YORK FEDERATION

There will be a meeting of the New York Federation of Horticultural Societies and Floral Clubs in the Secretary's office at the New York Flower Show, in Grand Central Palace, at 4 P. M., Monday, March 19th. The various affiliated societies are requested to appoint delegates to attend this meeting, for important matters concerning legislation regarding a Horticultural Building at the State Fair Grounds in Syracuse, are to be considered.

MOUNT KISCO HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY.

The first regular meeting of this newly organized society was held in St. Francis Hall on the night of Jan. 16th. The officers are John J. Connolly, president; David Gordon, vice-president; A. G. Ross, corresponding secretary; W. S. MacDonald, financial secretary, and Thomas Morris, treasurer. The business was chiefly the making of committees. Mr. Connolly read a paper on Mushrooms. He is one of the most successful mushroom growers in this section. W. C. Rickards, of Thorburn's, was present and gave us a few words and wished us all kinds of success. Every one present paid up and became charter members. At a special meeting on the 26th the several committees were heard from, and there was some lively discussions. Four women were enrolled as active members. Mr. Connolly offered a prize of $10.00 for the member receiving the most points for exhibits for 1917. Mr. Gordon offered the sum of $8.00 for a second and third. The next meeting, on Feb. 27th, was well attended. Mr. Connolly staged a nice exhibit of flowers and mushrooms. Meetings will be held regularly on the second Tuesday of every month at 7.30 P. M. At our next meeting on March 13th there will be a lecture on Poultry, by Mr. Sewell, manager of Hammond's immense poultry plant at Dellwood Farm.

MAINE STATE FLORISTS' SOCIETY

The Maine State Florists' Society held its third annual meeting and flower show at Orono, during Farmers' Week (Mar. 5-10). The show lasted two days (Mar. 8-9) and was attended by many out of town visitors. Prof. A. H. Nehrling, of the Department of Floriculture, Massachusetts Agricultural College, gave an illustrated lecture on the "Development of Floriculture," and also conducted a Round Table in the afternoon. The rest of the special florists' program held March 8 was as follows:

"Sweet Peas"—J. H. Stalford, Bar Harbor, Maine.

"New and Desirable Herbaceous Perennials"—A. E. Thatcher, Mt. Desert Nurseries, Bar Harbor, Maine.

Among the exhibitors the following deserve special mention:

J. H. Stalford, Bar Harbor—Tulips, freesias and narcissus.

E. Saunders, Lewiston—Carnations, narcissus and hyacinths.

M. A. Clark, Ellsworth—Freesias, narcissus, tulips and hyacinths.

Willis E. Hamilton, Belfast—Chrysanthemums, narcissus, tulips and hyacinths.

Wm. Butler, Brunswick—Violets.

At the annual banquet of the Hartford (Conn.) Market Gardeners' Association on March 7. President Beach, of the Conn. Agricultural College, told the marketmen that while Connecticut had a productive power of feeding 1,500,000 people, it produced only one-quarter of the food its people eat. He cited Belgium as a comparison. With one-half the area and unfavorable for agriculture, Belgium produces all its people need.

CLUB AND SOCIETY NOTES.

At the meeting of the New London (Conn.) Horticultural Society on March 8 P. J. vanBaarda, of Joseph Breck & Sons, Boston, delivered an address on Spring Flowering Bulbs.

The spring exhibit of the Worcester County (Mass.) Horticultural Society was opened on March 8 in Horticultural hall with one of the most effective displays of spring flowers and shrubs seen in the hall for some time. Among the important exhibits were those of E. W. Breed, H. F. A. Lange, Dr. Homer Gage and Harry I. Randall.

At the meeting of the Connecticut Horticultural Society on March 10 a rare exhibition of hybrid cinerarias was made by John F. Huss and Samuel Gordon, South Manchester.

The first named exhibit was awarded a cultural certificate, and a first-class certificate for the collection. Mrs. Wilhelmina Seliger forwarded a paper on the Culture of Cineraria. The society presented Mrs. Seliger with a specimen plant through Mr. Hollister.

At the close of the meeting the June Flower Show committee convened and discussed ways and means for promoting the show. The proceeds will be donated to the Union for Home Work. A. Dixon, Secy.

There was a fine display on the exhibition tables and an exceptionally good attendance at the monthly meeting of the Westchester and Fairfield Horticultural Society, in Greenwich, Conn., Friday evening, March 9th. The judges made the following awards: Special prizes offered by Mr. Scheepers. Display of bulbous flowers, 1st, Wm. Whitton; 2nd, Robt. Grunnert. Very high commendation to Wm. Graham for Cineraria stellata. High commendation to W. J. Seeley for Primula obconica; Thos. Aitchison for cinerarias; F. Lagerstorm for stocks; Wm. Dhitton for sweet peas; Robt. Grunnert for carnations; John Forbes for roses and P. W. Popp for stocks. The thanks of the society was awarded to Wm. Graham for sweet peas; James Linane for primula, and Thos. Aitchison for cinerarias. The monthly prizes were won by Wm. Whitton, 1st; Robt. Grunnert, 2nd, and P. W. Popp, 3rd. ALEX CLARKSON, Cor. Secy.

The monthly meeting of the Stamford (Conn.) Horticultural Society was held Friday evening, March 9, in their new quarters, Moose Hall, with about 75 members present. A very interesting paper on the culture of Herbaceous Perennials was given by H. Wild, president of the society. Prizes were awarded for exhibits as follows:

A. Alins, 1st, for two vases of carnations; A. Wynn, 2d. Mr. Goldes, cultural certificate for Enchantress Supreme and Harlowarden Sport. P. H. Donovans, carnations, mushrooms and freesias, highly commended. A. Wynn, Gerbera Jamesoni, Leptosyne maritima carnations and stocks highly commended. J. Foster, Cattleya Trianae, highly commended. A. Pederson, tulips and sweet peas, highly commended. A. Alins, group of miscellaneous plants, highly commended. A vote of thanks was given to A. Wynn for Primula malacoides and Antirrhinum Queen Victoria. J. Foster for Shawyer roses, C. F. Wagner, mushrooms, A. Pederson, seedling begonia, Olaf Johnson, seedling antirrhinums, G. Cannon, lawn seed, A. Alins Marechal Niel roses, and A. S. Hunwick for Carnation Red Wing.

SOME USEFUL GARDEN CHRYSANTHEMUMS

Editor of HORTICULTURE:

Dear Sir:—In Mr. Rothe's Chrysanthemum maximum article of March 3rd issue of HORTICULTURE he mentions the Arctic Daisy as "meriting far more attention," also, "more or less distinct varieties are offered by leading growers abroad."

What interests the flower growers mostly is something new and distinct that has been tried, and proven at home to be, as represented. Of these, in the Chrysanthemum maximum family are: Chrysanthemum Rosy Gem, a light pink, and Chrysanthemum Autumn Glory, a white one, both from Korea. These are perfectly hardy, and for mass effects in the garden or for cutting when flowers are scarce, are unexcelled. Once better known, the Arctic Daisy will find itself displaced by the freedom and late blooming qualities of these former. So far, Farquhar's are the only ones to handle it, not being grown from seed.

A non-seeder that several American growers list is Chrysanthemum leucanthemum flore pleno, a double white-flowering one of English origin, blooming in midsummer. Being only 18-20 inches high with flowers 2-3 inches in diameter, it is invaluable for massing as well as for cutting and design work.

Several large firms in this country try out most of the new things offered by foreign growers only to turn most of them down, as either not doing well in our climate or not worth the candle. If the florists and gardeners would stick more to stock offered by our leading growers, who do the expensive experimenting, satisfaction would be the rule more generally than the exception. CHARLES A. MATHES.

St. Paul, Minn.

The regular meeting of the Holyoke and Northampton Florists' and Gardeners' Club was held March 6th, with John Lamont, superintendent of the J. A. Skinner estate, S. Hadley, Mass. The chief business transacted was the adoption of a revised constitution and by-laws. James Whiting gave a practical talk on Chrysanthemums. H. E. Downer exhibited Narcissus Lucifer and White Lady, large spikes of Hyacinths in variety and Lilium grandiflorum.

Obituary

Mrs. W. H. Foddy.

Mrs. Cora Foddy, wife of William H. Foddy, a florist, died from pneumonia on Wednesday, March 14, at her home, 8 Seventh Avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y., in her sixty-second year.

Voorhees Tappen.

New Brunswick, N. J.—Voorhees Tappen, son of Erastus H. Tappen, of Bonhamtown, was burned to death in his father's greenhouse Tuesday night, when he accidentally fell into the furnace pit. His clothing was set afire by a lantern he carried.

William Lackey.

William Lackey, caretaker of Firenze, the country estate of Daniel Guggenheim, was shot and instantly killed in Sycamore avenue, Long Beach, N. J., Saturday, March 10. He and Joseph Winstock, a greenhouse worker, had seen two men lurking about the place, and found them behind a hedge. "There they are," Lackey said to Winstock. "Shoot," one of the men cried, and two shots were fired. The slayers escaped in the darkness. Lackey belonged to Temple Lodge 65, F. and A. M., of Westport, Conn.

Isaac D. Sailer.

Isaac D. Sailer, a Philadelphian, well-known to the older generation of horticulturists, died at Orlando, Fla., March 6th. He first came into prominence some thirty years ago from having sold to the American Florist Co. the nucleus of the present elaborate publication, known as the Florists' Directory. For many years he was a familiar figure at club meetings, flower shows and conventions. Twenty-five years ago he was in the cigar business and among other favorite brands introduced the Bon Silene, a fragrant whiff which men like Ned Lonsdale, Bill Harris, Robert Craig, Jim Griffin and John Burton used to swear by. He has been retired from business for a good many years and spent most of his winters in the south.

John E. Kelly.

John E. Kelly, whose death occurred last week at Newport, R. I., was a native of County Galway, Ireland, and came to this country during the Civil war, working on Long Island before removing to Newport. He was employed by the late Seth Bateman and at Middleboro, when the railroad between Newport and Boston was first laid out. In 1865 he was engaged as gardener by the owners of the property at the end of Coggeshall avenue, near Bailey's beach, and was continued by later owners, Peleg Hall and Benjamin Thaw, on the same estate, a period of 52 years, having been employed by Mr. Thaw for the past 18 years. He is survived by four children—former Alderman Michael F. Kelly, John H. A. Kelly and Miss Katherine A. Kelly, of Newport, and Andrew J. Kelly, of Boston.

A GREAT CALAMITY.

A tornado swept over a portion of Indiana on Sunday afternoon and left in its wake over a score of dead and many times that number of severely wounded, while the loss of property aggregates into the millions. New-castle is noted for its large ranges of greenhouses, lying directly in its path, and where a few days ago acres of glass were covering roses just in the height of their season, and growers were anticipating the Easter harvest time, now a large portion lies in complete ruin.

F. J. Benthey is the heaviest loser and his entire plant of 110,000 sq. ft. of glass is probably a total loss. Reports are incomplete on account of broken wires, but when great factories are blown down like leaves there can be little chance for greenhouses to escape. Another range in its path was the Heller plant, known as the South Park Floral Co., which specialized in American Beauties. The houses of Wm. Dittman lay a little to one side and the loss is not so heavy, which the Olinger range three miles to the east and the Peter Wieland place two miles west, escaped almost entirely. The stock from F. J. Benthey's range is sold by his father in Kennicott Bros., Chicago, and they have the sympathy of the trade in their loss.

PUBLICATION RECEIVED.

CASPAR'S VETERINARY GUIDE, by S. Blake Willsden. Treating all diseases of the Cow, Horse, Sheep, Swine and Poultry. Contains many original illustrations and colored anatomical pictures, useful tables, etc. This new book is quite a novelty, giving anatomical pictures of the various farm animals in colors with the names of all parts, together with description of all Diseases, Treatment and Prescription. The author's name is a guarantee that this is done in an excellent manner. The printing is the best and we consider this Guide a great help to farmers and others. Price 50c., C. N. Re-selected Bulbs and Tubers for spring planting are here listed in variety, as well as many other specialties that every grower should have.

H. & J. Farquhar & Co., Boston—Garden Annual for 1917.—A 176-page catalogue which in our judgment is the best ever issued by this advancing house. Hardy trees and shrubs of recent introduction are specially prominent and the department of decorative greenhouse plants has been enlarged. Many new illustrations are shown. Cover picture shows Rambler Rose arches blooming in the Hartford Rose Gardens.

Important for Rose Exhibitors.

We have discovered that on the Entry Form for the National Rose Festival in Philadelphia it is stated that March 21st is the date for staging the commercial classes of cut roses. This is an error, as will be seen by perusal of the printed program. These will be staged at 12 o'clock noon on the 20th inst.

We wish to state that we have been very well pleased with the results that we have obtained from our advertisement with you.

Very truly yours,

G. P. READ, INC.

SEED TRADE

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION

Officers—President, Kirby B. White, Detroit, Mich.; First Vice-President, F. W. Bolgiano, Washington, D. C.; Second Vice-President, L. L. Olds, Madison, Wis.; Secretary-Treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.—Convention at Detroit, June 19, 1917.

To Practice on Government Seeds.

The following ingenious advice appears in a recent issue of the Stamford (Conn.) Advocate:

This is the season of the year when your Congressman gives away free seed. Those of you who are thinking of trying your hands—also your backs and your patience—at amateur gardening would do well to bear that fact in mind. Just drop a line to Congressman Hill or one of the Senators from Connecticut, with a request for garden seed, and, if the request is not responded to quickly, take the matter up with C. Milton Fessenden or another local Republican leader, and they will be able to "fix you up."

The amateur-garden business stuff is one thing on paper and yet again another thing when you transfer your efforts as an agriculturist to the soil. You have a lot to learn, and you may be in for a lot of disappointment before you achieve satisfactory results. Hence it may be a good idea to practice with seed that you do not pay for directly.

Once you have acquired mastery of the soil, you may desire to branch out in lines of agriculture the government has not provided free seed for. That will take some time. Take it from amateurs who have been through the mill, it's not going to be any "mere recreation," if you do the thing right. Do not wait too long before applying for seed and, when you have the seed, do not wait too long before planting it. Most vegetables can go into the ground in April, even earlier. The results obtained from planting as late as June are apt to be poor.

Local seed dealers should get acquainted with the Advocate man. He evidently means well but needs enlightenment.

One Week's Imports.

Imports at the port of New York, of horticultural material, for the week ending March 2d, were recorded as follows:

Bulbs—France, $165; Netherlands, $67; England, $34.

Plants—France, $8,850; England, $782; Scotland, $35; Japan, $103.

Red clover seed—France, $25,951.

Other clover seed—England, $1,066.

Grass seed—France, $35; Ireland, $10,953.

Other seeds—France, $419; Italy, $996; Netherlands, $109; Spain, $5,530; Scotland, $2,482; British India, $4,707; Bermuda, $75; Hongkong, $124; Japan, $981.

To Expedite Seed Deliveries.

Carriers have been directed, through the Car Service Committee, to make a general exemption from all embargoes of seeds, and urgent efforts are being made to secure adequate supply of empty cars to provide for their transportation.

Wherever cars are seriously delayed by reason of accumulations or on account of other causes notify Francis Fisher Kane, United States Attorney, Eastern District of Pennsylvania, Philadelphia, Pa., giving name of consignor, consignee, point of origin, and car numbers and initials and the matter will be promptly taken up with the carriers to secure expedited movement.

C. E. KENDEL,

Secy. Am. Seed Trade Asso.

RAILROAD RESPONSIBILITY.

The responsibility of railroads for damage to perishable goods from exposure to heat or cold, and from delays in notifying consignees of arrival of such shipments, is involved in the appeal of the New Orleans, Mobile, and Chicago Railroad Company to the United States Supreme Court for a review of the decision of the lower courts awarding judgment in the sum of $313 to members of the McCallum, Miss., Truck Growers' Association. The award was to cover damage to a carload of sweet potatoes shipped in 1912 to New Orleans. The shippers entered a claim of $1,000 punitive damages. This was denied by the lower courts. The railroad company claimed that the bill of lading exempted it from damage by heat or cold and that such damage was inherent in the nature of the shipment. They also contested the claim because it had not been filed within thirty days as provided for in the bill of lading. The award was based on the finding of the court that the railroad was negligent in failing to notify consignees of the arrival of the shipment.

Attalla, Ala.—Keller Bros., range of houses.

Medford, Mass.—Peter Federzini, house 30x100.

We inadvertently gave the date of the next convention of the American Seed Trade Association incorrectly last week. The date as fixed is June 19th to 21st inclusive.

Omaha, Neb.—C. L. Baldwin, 501 South 16th street, succeeding A. Hooge as proprietor of The Fernery.

NEWS NOTES.

Clinton, Mass.—Hollis A. Pease, who has for several months had a flower shop in the Associates' block, has gone out of business.

Newport, R. I.—J. B. Urquhart and Wm. McKay returned from the Davey Tree Surgery Convention well pleased with their experience.

Providence, R. I.—M. Cassidy & Company has moved from the Strand Building on Washington street to the Case Meade building on Dorrance street.

St. Louis—F. H. Weber's new store on Taylor avenue and Olive is quite an attraction, the show windows being prominently visible from the street cars and making a beautiful display.

Washington, D. C.—M. J. McCabe and Henry Witt have been very badly handicapped in getting their stock to market on account of the terrible condition of the road between Suitland, Md., and Silver Hill. Each of them has had to carry their cuttings long distances before reaching a point where they have been forced to keep their automobile delivery wagons.

NEW CORPORATION.

Providence, R. I.—The Eastern Wreath Manufacturing Company of this city has been granted a charter. The incorporators are Louis Shatkin, Charles Smith and James J. McGovern. The concern will deal in florists' supplies and is capitalized at $25,000.

NEWS ITEMS FROM EVERYWHERE

CHICAGO.

Mr. and Mrs. Emil Buettner are spending some time in southern California. Mr. Buettner is president of the A. L. Randall Co.

Chas. Wiffin and son, Sidney, left Mar. 10th for South Dakota to try farming and stock raising instead of growing flowers.

H. N. Bruns and family returned from California, March 6th, where they have spent several weeks. Mr. Bruns says he saw much to admire in southern California, but nothing that would tempt him to leave Chicago for several years at least.

Flower beds must go this year and vegetable gardens take their places if Chicago people are to be in line with the popular idea. The "Grow a Garden" movement began with the utilization of the vacant tracts by the city's poor, but has steadily climbed upward till it has now reached the dignity of meetings at the Art Institute.

Preparations for St. Patrick's Day are confined almost exclusively to the sale of colored carnations, tulips and roses and the sickly green (?) flowers will be looked upon with mirth by some and disgust by others as in former years. Many thousands of sham-rocks have been grown for Saturday's trade and the tiny plants with their dainty foliage are in great demand. Ten years ago these acceptable offerings first were placed before the trade in Chicago.

The city gardens' movement is being helped along by the principal's school garden committee, which has recommended that the one thousand acres of vacant land belonging to the school system be turned over to garden purposes. It was further recommended that for each reservation of 50 x 100 ft. a deposit of one dollar be made to insure good faith, and that parts of large tracts should be reserved for nurseries to supply the public schools with trees, shrubs, etc. Provision for the purchase of seeds at cost price by the school board is included and gives the retail seedsman one more grievance.

PITTSBURGH

G. Wessenauer, of The Flower Shop, Sewickley, is laid up with a severe attack of influenza.

Arthur H. Kramer is in charge of the new flowershop opened by David Hill at 6117 Penn avenue, East End.

Edward J. Baumbach has again returned to business after six weeks' absence on account of having had pneumonia.

George H. Thompson is in charge of the exhibit of the A. W. Smith Company being held at the Fort Pitt Hotel in connection with the annual products show of the Rotary Club.

The city of Pittsburgh has just received a fine collection of orchids for the Phipps Conservatory. They are the gift of Dr. John Fremont Shafer, who has abandoned his private conservatory in the East End. Merton L. Harris of Plymouth, England, has been in charge of Dr. Shafer's greenhouse for some years past.

The Humane Society of Western Pennsylvania has issued a warning to boys that unnecessary killing of birds will be prosecuted to the full extent of the law. The warning was the result of a communication stating that boys were selling postcards with the idea of using the proceeds to buy airguns to kill birds.

A permanent organization to be known as the Pittsburgh Backyard Gardening Association has come out of the mass meeting held in the Chamber of Commerce rooms Tuesday evening. The next session will be held on Monday, March 26, and the organization will co-operate with the Pittsburgh Vacant Lot Gardening Association.

J. H. Weisman, superintendent of the Pittsburgh Vacant Lot Garden Association and Instructor in Nature Study and Garden Craft for the Pittsburgh Playground Association, has begun a course of Thursday evening lectures on gardening at the Central Young Men's Christian Association. Supplementing these lectures, demonstration work will be given on gardens of the Vacant Lot Gardening Association.

CINCINNATI.

Miss Mae Carroll, of Norwood, is on a trip to Florida.

Florists in the Sixth Street Flower Market had an excellent day last Saturday. Many potted blooming plants were the best sellers.

Neither Peter Weiland's nor P. J. Olinger's greenhouses at New Castle, Ind., were touched by the tornado which passed through that town on Sunday.

ROCHESTER, N. Y.

H. B. Stringer has returned to business after ten days illness.

Robert Havill, of Geo. B. Hart's, was married on Wednesday, March 12th.

The regular monthly meeting of the Florist Club took place March 12th.

Herman Muller, East Rochester, is erecting a new greenhouse, 20 x 60 feet, which he expects to have completed in a few days.

PHILADELPHIA.

A Stag Smoker will be given by the Florists' Club in honor of the visiting members of the National Rose Association on Wednesday evening, (9 o'clock) March 21st, in the Adelphia Roof Garden. A buffet luncheon, prominent speakers and a vaudeville show from the leading shows in town will combine to make a very pleasant evening, lasting until midnight.

Attleboro, Mass.—The Mossberg Manufacturing Company has notified its employees, several hundred in number, that land for garden purposes would be given them. Each employee who desires to have a garden will be furnished with a lot, and at the end of the season the firm will award prizes for the best gardens.

BOSTON.

The Bowling League will close its present season with a royal banquet at Young's Hotel on Thursday night, March 22. A dazzling array of cups contributed by local firms and individuals, sixteen in number, to be awarded to the high-liners, is shown in the window of Penn the Florist, where it has attracted much attention.

The first visit of the Boston Market Gardeners' Association to Woburn occurred on March 3, when a number of the association members made a tour of the greenhouse plants in that city. They met at the home of Alex Porter, to have dinner, and in the afternoon visited greenhouse establishments where vegetable forcing is carried on.

The park and recreation commission has arranged for practical lessons in gardening to be given every day from 10 A. M. to 12 noon and from 2 to 5 P. M. at the yard of the city greenhouses at East Cottage street and Massachusetts avenue. Martin Finaghty of the department, will have charge of the work. He will instruct all applicants.

The big Spring Show at Horticultural Hall is scheduled to open on Wednesday, March 21, and it is to have a number of unique features in arrangement and exhibits. A Flemish garden is promised by R. & J. Farquhar & Co.

President R. M. Saltonstall is endeavoring to stimulate a wider interest in floriculture among the public, and has arranged for a number of expert floriculturists to be in attendance during the show. They will explain to the visitors the different exhibits and gladly give any information about the growing and culture of plants and flowers.

UNIVERSITY OF ILLINOIS INSPECTION TRIP.

Seventeen members of the Floricultural Club of the University of Illinois visited Chicago on an inspection trip from March 8 to 11. On Thursday evening, March 8, they were the guests of the Chicago Florists' Club at a chicken dinner and later at their monthly meeting. The spirit of good fellowship so evident at this gathering made a lasting impression upon the visitors. An interesting Novelty Exhibition was held in conjunction with this meeting.

On Friday morning several of the leading wholesale and retail stores were visited. A thorough inspection was made of the immense A. L. Randall Company supply house where they were shown the manufacture of many florist novelties. After taking luncheon with P. J. Foley, a visit was paid to the J. C. Vaughan greenhouses where the students were given an opportunity of seeing the large and varied stock required for a catalogue trade. Later in the afternoon, the Gregg Station greenhouses of Bassett & Washburn were visited and the boys were shown about by the genial Mr. Benson. In addition to the well grown stock, the well designed packing houses and boiler plant were points of especial interest.

On Saturday morning the first stop was made at the Robey street establishment of Peter Reinberg. The party was shown about the place by Mr. Reisling, who called to the attention of the members the methods of propagating and growing used at this place. The next stop was made at the notable establishment of the Poehlmann Bros. at Morton Grove. Here the party had the pleasure of going through the plant, cutflower and orchid departments with the hospitable August Poehlmann. After luncheon, the party proceeded to Plant B, where they were shown about by Adolph Poehlmann. Of especial interest here were the large vats where the fertilizer was prepared for this immense rose establishment. Late in the afternoon the party arrived at Frank Oechslein's, where was seen a large assortment of excellently grown decorative plants. Mr. Oechslein explained many interesting points concerning the culture of these plants.

The opportunity of visiting this large number of places was made possible through the courtesy of Messrs. Adolph Poehlmann, August Poehlmann, Herman Bruns and the Foley Greenhouse Manufacturing Company, who placed their automobiles at the disposal of the visitors.

PUBLICATION RECEIVED.

The Page Company, Boston, has already started with the season's crop of vacation books for young people. "Blue Bonnet Debutante is just off the press. Lela Horn Richards is the author and the story is a worthy addition to the popular Blue Bonnet Series. It is a wholesome romance and will find eager readers among the girls of high school and college age. 300 pages and 7 full page plates by Elizabeth Withington. Price, $1.50.

DURING RECESS.

Gardeners' and Florists' Club of Baltimore.

The Gardeners' and Florists' Club of Baltimore held its 30th anniversary banquet Monday night, March 12, at the Rennert Hotel. Urging the florists to develop the bulb industry, which has been somewhat demoralized by the European war, Prof. T. B. Symons, of the faculty of the Maryland State College of Agriculture and secretary of the Maryland Horticultural Society, was the principal speaker.

The tables were adorned with carnations, smilax and ferns. J. H. Moss was toastmaster and he introduced as speakers, besides Professor Symons, R. L. Graham, Richard Vincent, Jr., the "grand old man" of the florist business in this state, and others.

Before the banquet there was a business meeting at which the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, F. C. Bauer; vice-president, John A. Nuth; secretary, N. F. Flitton; financial secretary, George Talbott; treasurer, Fred G. Burger, and librarian, C. M. Wagner. The four last named were re-elected to the offices.

The following were present: N. F. Flitton, William Lehr Erdman, C. M. Wagner, John Simon, Jr., Charles B. Penn, J. F. Meyer, Fred G. Burger, Christopher Gernhardt, R. L. Graham, G. P. Hambruck, J. A. Nuth, J. A. Ritter, A. A. Niessen, A. Spath, T. B. Symons, Claymore Seick, Andrew Anderson, G. W. Stisser, F. C. Bauer, A. G. Fiedler, Charles Patterson, William Ekas, Richard Vincent, R. A. Flower Market Reports

BOSTON General trade has waked up somewhat and there seems to be a little more life about the wholesale marts, notwithstanding that the weather has not been conducive to any branch of the industry, but it must be confessed that even in "cultured" Boston the most aggressive evidence of activity in buying is the call for white carnations and green carnation dye for uses which are obvious. We hope they will all be left on the hands of the offenders. The quantities of daffodils, carnations, violets, tulips and callas that crowd the sales tables and stalls seem no less than a week ago. In fact, there appears to be a superfluity of everything in the flower line that one might ask for. Prices hang on about as heretofore except on job lots in quantity when the buyer if shrewd can usually carry his point.

CHICAGO The lethargy that overtook the trade last week has largely passed away and sales are very satisfactory again, largely due to a good demand for shipping stock. Prices are not so high on bulb stock as earlier in the season, but there is not the sharp decline that is often met with, fancy double tulips bringing four cents and good average tulips seldom bring less than three. Freesia has been too plentiful all the season to make a really good average for the growers, and there are still quantities of the white ones offered at all the houses. Rainbow freesia is now at its best and meets ready sale. Roses are in fair demand and a good supply is coming daily, the most of which are selling at satisfactory prices. Carnations are meeting with moderate sale except in white, which this week is very much in demand for coloring for St. Patrick's Day, advance orders being booked at not less than five cents. Daffodils are much in evidence, and a steady supply comes every day, with the outdoor ones now coming from southern Illinois to add to the quantity of stock. There is so much difference in size, however, that one does not conflict with the other. Sweet peas are in large supply and there is a great difference in stock with the chance of sale largely in favor of the best grades. Some very good single violets of large size and long stems are to be had as well as less desirable stock. Green is scarce and much in demand.

CINCINNATI Stock is fairly plentiful. The demand from out of town is good. The rose cut is large and good except the American Beauty, which is short. Carnations have been selling well. Sweet peas are plentiful and sell at low prices. Receipts in jonquils, daffodils, tulips and Dutch hyacinths are excellent. Orchids have become very scarce.

NEW YORK So heavy are the supplies received daily in the wholesale establishments that even a spurt of active demand which occasionally comes to cheer up the sellers seems to go but a little way towards reducing the stock in sight, not to mention that which is packed away in cellars and coolers. Everything that is customary at this season, as well as quite a few things not commonly obtainable in the wholesale houses can be had in desired quantity. There is absolutely no pinch either now or on the horizon on any line. Steady spring weather and warm sunshine, if it ever comes, will help materially to hold down the surplus.

PHILADELPHIA Towards the end of last week things brightened up a little and the good clean-up helped out on the general average, but as stocks are very plentiful prices have remained on an easy basis. American Beauty roses are coming in more freely, even the medium grade being now in evidence. All other roses are in ample supply. Carnations move a little better but the supply is so large that quotations remain on the low level previously reported. Orchids are in moderate supply and move off in fair shape. Sweet peas continue of fine quality and in ample supply and good demand. The lily market has improved a little and slightly better prices were realized. Lily of the valley comes in only in moderate quantity and cleans up well. Violets are very sluggish. Snapdragons continue fine but too much for the demand. The greens market seems to be the only one in the sellers' favor. Plumosis is particularly scarce.

Quantities of goods are selling at prices which are discouraging to growers—street prices, as a matter of fact; but, in the words of an optimistic wholesale man, "it beats losing them." Fortunately, the various spring openings of department stores have called for quantities of potted plants and cut blooms, as this phase of decoration becomes more general and more elaborate each successive season.

Stock has been very plentiful for the past week with not much of a demand. Any stranger who happened to be on the street Saturday would have thought it was Flower Day. Every florist and street vender, even to the peddler, had flowers at a bargain price. Carnations, tulips, violets, daffodils and roses were the ones that were sold cheapest. There is quite a supply of azaleas, primulas, lilacs, genistas, heather, acacias and bulb plants, which find a ready market. About the only thing that is scarce is Asparagus plumosus here. It is hard to substitute but in some cases we can use smilax which is very plentiful.

The market during the past week has been lively with stock of all kinds plentiful. White carnations are somewhat scarce, owing probably to the expected demand at end of week for dyeing purposes. Bulbous stock is more plentiful. Greens are in demand and selling well.

Cloudy weather has had a marked ill effect upon stock of all kinds, sweet peas and gardenias being the worst sufferers. The former are only bringing about one-third their former prices. Orchids continue scarce but there is only a limited demand. American Beauty roses are moving fairly well. The heavy supply of bulbous stock is hurting the sale of all other flowers. Some very excellent plants are being offered.

Plant Propagation, Greenhouse and Nursery Practice

By M. G. KAINS

We have had many inquiries from time to time for a reliable and up-to-date book on plant propagation, but were always at a loss to find any publication that we could recommend. The subject has been dealt with in fragmentary manner only in books that have come to our notice. So it is well that this new work has been issued, especially as it is both comprehensive and practical, and it should meet with a ready sale among plantmen, nurserymen and gardeners. There are nineteen chapters covering in detail topics of germination and longevity of seeds, propagating by buds, layering, cuttings, grafting, etc., fruit tree stocks, clones, etc., and there are eight pages of condensed cultural instructions in tabulated form, covering annuals and perennials from seed, woody plants, evergreens, vines, bulbs and tubers, greenhouse and house plants, ferns, palms, water plants, orchids and cacti. The illustrations are numerous, comprising 213 figures and halftone plates. There are 322 pages well bound and on heavy paper, teeming with helpful information. It is a book which no cultivator can afford to do without. It is worth many times its price. Copies can be supplied from the office of HORTICULTURE at publisher's price, $1.50.

HENRY A. DREER, Seeds, Plants, Bulbs, and Supplies, 714 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia, Pa.OHIO LICENSED FIREMEN LAW.

The following letter setting forth the hardships imposed upon greenhouse establishments by the present Ohio law governing steam boilers has been sent to all members of the legislature of that state:

To the Senators and Representatives:

We wish to bring to your attention the great hardships inflicted upon the greenhouse owners by Section 1058-1, a law which makes it necessary to maintain a licensed boiler operator for steam boilers of thirty horse power, or over.

We, therefore, take the liberty of bringing to your notice some of the difficulties encountered in complying with the law.

1st. We feel it absolutely necessary that a fireman should be an experienced grower. We could recount many cases in which great losses have been incurred by employing expert boiler operators, but men ignorant of the importance of ventilation, plant, humidity, the correct temperatures and the other difficulties encountered in growing the great range of plants of the modern commercial greenhouse.

2nd. A great many of the establishments are not large enough to afford the expense of hiring additional licensed boiler operators. The enforcement of the present law may necessitate the closing of some of these smaller plants.

3rd. Many growers operate their own boilers during the day. The present law makes it impossible for a man to do this now even in cases of extreme emergency.

4th. Many of the florists are also vegetable growers; additional boiler service would necessitate increased prices which would be added to the cost of food. Prices are sure to be raised if high priced operators are necessary.

5th. Greenhouses need a fireman only six months during the year, consequently we cannot get good men because we cannot offer continuous employment.

6th. Greenhouses are located away from dense population. There is little danger to human life by explosions.

The florists and vegetable growers feel that it was not the intention of the present law to include greenhouse owners. May we urge that the following paragraph be added to Section 1058-1:

1058-1. Providing, however, that nothing herein shall apply to bona fide owners of greenhouses and hot houses.

"HAMBURG LATE WHITE" CHRYSANTHEMUM

CERTIFICATE OF MERIT AWARDED BY CHRYSANTHEMUM SOCIETY OF AMERICA.

Above picture was taken Nov. 26, 1916, and will give a good idea of what "Hamburg Late White" looks like when grown to single stems and planted six inches each way.

Rooted Cuttings, $12.00 per 100; $100.00 per 1000.

2 inch pots, $15.00 per 100; $125.00 per 1000

WILLIAM F. KASTING CO.,

"Hamburg Late White" is pure white under all weather conditions and is a sport of Maud Dean white, but has no trace of pink, as the original.

The average grower of chrysanthemums must have varieties which are easy to handle and from which he can cut as near 100% of perfect blooms as possible. "Hamburg Late White" has been grown for the last four years and produces a very high proportion of good flowers. It is not an exhibition variety, but for late white, one of the best for commercial purposes. It can be had in bloom the latter part of November, by taking an early bud; but by selecting later buds, most of the flowers are cut during December and we would advise to select a late bud, as the later buds come somewhat fuller, and by selecting late buds, flowers can be had as late as the middle of January.

Keeping qualities are excellent and where a light, graceful white flower is wanted, "Hamburg Late White" cannot be surpassed.

"Hamburg Late White" will be disseminated in the Spring of 1917. Plants will be ready for April delivery, and all orders will be filled in rotation.

"Get them at Dreer's"

Hardy Perennials

For many years one of our most important specialties, our stock this season is again in prime condition, more extensive than ever, with a complete assortment of both standard varieties and novelties.

Roses, Two Year Old Plants for Outdoor Planting

Our Roses are all field grown plants which were dug in the fall, and which during the winter months were potted into 5 and 6 inch pots. They are stored in cold houses and frames, being retarded as much as possible, and are just the sort of stock that will please your retail customers. We are particularly strong on Hybrid Teas but carry also nearly all other types.

Aquatic Plants

Eight acres of Ponds are devoted to Hardy Nymphaeas and Nelumbiums alone, a large assortment of Tropical Nymphaeas, Victoria Regia, etc., as well as sub-aquatic plants for marginal planting. If interested in these, send for our book "Dreer's Water Lilies." It is not only descriptive, but gives full cultural directions.

NEW HYBRID-TEA ROSE, LOS ANGELES

Hardy Shrubs and Vines

A choice assortment of standard varieties—Altheas (including our own splendid novelty William R. Smith) Azaleas, Callicarpa Purpurea, Hydrangea Aborescens Grandiflora, and Paniculata Grandiflora, Cotoneasters, Buddleias, Deutzias, Forsythias, Prunus, Philadelphus, Spiraeas, Viburnum, Weigelas, Ampelopsis, Akebia, Aristolochia, Clematis, Honeysuckles, Wisterias, etc.

Decorative Plants

Palms and Ferns, Aspidistra, Crotons, Dracaenas, Ficus, Pandanus, etc. Amaryllis, Tuberous-Rooted Begonias, Caladium Esculentum and a splendid assortment of Fancy-Leaved Caladiums, Golden Yellow and Spotted-Leaved Callas, Hyacinthus Candicans, Gladiolus, Lilies, Montbretias, Tigridias, Tuberose, etc.

All of the above and many others are fully described in our current Wholesale List, January to June, which will be mailed upon request only to persons engaged commercially in Horticulture.

BERBERIS GROWN FROM CUTTINGS

Greater uniformity. Greater shapeliness. Not spindly, but sturdy. These are the three big advantages of our Berberis grown from cuttings over stock grown from seedlings. Advantages that make better, bigger business for you.

Prices to you:

Berberis. Thunbergii, 4 yr. from cuttings.....	3'	100	1000
3 yr. extra bushy, from cuttings.....	18"-24"	$15.	$140.

HYDRANGEA PANICULATA GRANDIFLORA

Blooms in August, September and October. Flowers rich creamy white, changing to pink. Immense clusters. Absolutely hardy. No trouble to grow.

Because this hydrangea is unusually good for planting along driveways, in groups among shrubbery, center for beds, we are calling it to your particular attention. Do the same thing for your customers. Prices below:

VIBURNUM PLICATUM

Commonly known as the Japanese Snow-ball. You know the resemblance of its pure white flowers, growing in dense globular clusters 4 to 5 inches in diameter, to snow-balls.

The plant grows 6 feet and over, and the blooms fairly cover the bush.

Your customers will thank you for recommending the Viburnum Plicatum to them. Not only thank you, but come back for more. Prices below:

NOTES ON CULTURE OF FLORISTS' STOCK

CONDUCTED BY

John J. M. Farrell

Questions by our readers in line with any of the topics presented on this page will be cordially received and promptly answered by Mr. Farrell. Such communications should invariably be addressed to the office of HORTICULTURE.

"If vain our toil, we ought to blame the culture, not the soil."—Pope.

Adiantums

Pot adiantums that have been resting for a few weeks can now be overhauled and where necessary, repotted. Large sized plants will carry for several years in the pots if occasionally fed with liquid manure, but smaller sizes are liable to become starved if not shifted, and furthermore there is more or less danger of their drying out and losing much of their foliage. One severe drying off is generally sufficient to ruin the appearance of any adiantums and this is most liable to occur with the smaller plants. Be careful in watering for a few weeks and keep them in a rather close and humid atmosphere and they will soon start off new. Large plants can be divided, but these divided portions do not give as satisfactory returns as younger plants potted on. While the adiantums take kindly to soil containing considerable leaf-mold and this is particularly good for young stock, larger plants want something heavier, good pasture loam with some thoroughly decomposed manure added, and a good dash of sand will grow excellent plants for any kind of use.

Bulb Stock

With Easter only two weeks off we must be on the watch in order to have all your bulb stock in first class shape. There will be a lot of moving around from a hot temperature to a colder one, or the reverse. This is the time that the grower is put to his wits' ends, so as to have this kind of stock just right. Look them over two or three times a day for water. The slower bulb stock is allowed to come along for Easter the better the flowers will be. For all those that are well advanced, a place that is away from the sun and runs at about 40 degrees will keep them practically at a standstill. Don't overlook staking any bulbs that tend to flop around. About the first of April will be time enough to do any make-up given in pans, etc. See that all the pots and pans are given a good washing before the last week.

Camellias

These make a very fine plant for the holiday trade. Camellias that are wanted in bloom by Christmas should by this time be started into new growth. They can be given about 50 degrees at night. Those that need repotting can be given a shift now. A good compost is fibrous soil 4 parts, leaf mold two parts, well decayed manure one part, and some sand. They should have abundance of water, especially in their growing season, but soil must not be kept in a soaked condition. The plants require a shaded house during the summer. They are much more easily managed under glass than when put in the open. When they have just fully taken a hold of the new compost they will need more and more water with lots of syringing overhead. Do not keep too close together, but give enough of room so the light and air will reach all around them.

Cattleyas and Laelias

At this time and as the season advances such Cattleyas as Schroederac, Mendelii, Mossiae and gigas as well as Laelia purpurata, majalis and crispa, will require attention in the way of ventilation which should be very carefully regulated. Shading from the middle of March onward until fall should not be neglected. Use slat roller blind for shading, which gives the plants a certain amount of direct sunlight without damaging the foliage. This is better than a complete shade on the glass as when there is a long spell of dull weather the plants can then be exposed to full light. Although they are fond of plenty of air, all cold draughts or sudden changes should be avoided. Remove all thrips and scale by frequent sponging. All these that have been potted or top dressed should be frequently syringed, but it must be borne in mind that over-watering at this season when the roots are inactive is very injurious, but later on when they take hold of the new compost they will want plenty of it. Syringe on all good days.

Easter Lilies

Plants intended for Easter should have a sunny bench and plenty of room between them. The sun becoming stronger will necessitate more attention as regards waterings. Each plant should have a daily inspection. Ventilation serves the double purpose of keeping the right temperature and at the same time supplying a circulation of pure air. Although Easter is now near at hand much of the advice extended in previous paragraphs may yet be followed to good purpose. Any lilies more backward, but showing rapidly swelling buds and lengthening stem will need a high temperature and much regular sprinkling to bring them in line with the rest of the Easter stock. A short week of continued forcing in from 65 to 70 degrees of heat will bring these to a point when a gradual cooling off will be in order. Lilies already showing opening flowers and white buds are ready to go to a cool shady place, where they will carry through in perfect condition until the Easter trade begins.

Reminders

Lilies may be held back by placing in a cool shed where there is no dust.

Pot up the earlier started caladiums and cannas and give them a slight bottom heat to start with.

Sow aster seed for a late batch of plants about the end of the month and keep them cool right along.

Transplant seedling zinnias before they get crowded in the seed boxes or they will run early to flower and be useless.

Cyclamens potted as recently advised need all the light possible now, and as the roots get well through the soil plenty of water to prevent check to growth.

thus afforded for giving a very practical and by no means insignificant turn to their friendly sentiments towards HORTICULTURE at this time by placing every possible dollar's worth of their spring trade with those firms whose offers appear in these pages. In no other way can our readers so effectively encourage HORTICULTURE and promote its prosperity as by patronizing HORTICULTURE's advertisers whenever possible and being thoughtful always to tell them why. "Do it now."

Winter lingers most exasperatingly "in the lap of spring" and it becomes more and more apparent that we are to have a very late and very brief planting season.

According to the almanac the proper time for garden work has arrived but, from the latitude of New York northward, at least, the soil is still frozen deep, stretches of snow whiten the landscape, blustering arctic breezes are blowing and he would be foolish indeed who would yet cast off his winter overcoat. Yet, under these unpropitious conditions the dealers in seeds and roots are already experiencing a demand such as never before known for garden seeds and implements and it seems utterly impossible that when the real spring rush opens up they can come anywhere near to satisfying the demand that is inevitable. Many stocks are already absolutely unobtainable at wholesale, regardless of price. Never before has the seed trade been confronted with such a situation as exists at present and each day the problem grows more and more of a puzzle.

Success and its respon- sibilities

Of exhibition news there is almost no end in sight this week. With the material now on our desk we could fill a paper several times bigger than this issue of HORTICULTURE but we see no good reason to try to crowd into this one number every available line concerning these big flower shows. It is quite probable that we have provided our readers with as much as they will care to consume at one meal and no doubt they will feel perfectly satisfied to have something held in reserve for next week's digestion or even later, for the exhibition question is fast assuming proportions that are pretty weighty and far reaching. These spring shows have taken their place permanently, we think, as recognized seasonable attractions and with their popularity thus assured the old bugbear of possible financial loss is well removed. As everybody knows, we have yet much to learn in exhibition promotion and management but we have made unexpectedly big strides of late and further advancement is to be expected. Should any of the readers of HORTICULTURE have ideas on this subject which they would like to express or present for consideration and discussion, HORTICULTURE's columns are freely open for such. It will be our own fault if the active control of these great business promoting enterprises should pass into the hands of other than the horticultural interests. But if we are to enjoy the great harvest now ripening after so many years of labor we must keep moving on and up. What can you suggest?

now

A perusal of our advertising columns this week will disclose a gratifying activity in all departments of commercial horticulture. Enterprising dealers are alert and ready to open the spring trade with commendable vigor and we would here take opportunity to urge upon our readers the privilege

The Fifth "International" has come and gone, leaving a record of which all who were entrusted with its positions of responsibility may feel proud. It is an easy matter to alight from a car, hand out a ticket, join the throng surging along the aisles and—criticise. "This ought to be thus," "it doesn't size up with last year," etc., etc. HORTICULTURE has so sincere a sympathy for secretary, committees, manager, judges and all others who are a part of the indispensable machinery of such an undertaking that it here and now disclaims any disposition or desire to find fault with what has been done, but, however, taking the liberty to suggest some times on which improvement might possibly be made in the future.

To begin with, the show was, in some respects, too similar to that of last year. Many of the most important exhibits, competitive and trade, were placed in the same location as last year—no doubt, in compliance with the wishes of the exhibitors. Thus the valuable factor of novelty was minimized. Again, there was a very noticeable absence of the large material which is so necessary to impart strength and dignity and impressive "sky line" in an exhibition so vast. Further, we should like to see such exhibits as the rose gardens, rock gardens and others of like character more distinctly bounded and isolated from the jungle of many dissimilar and unharmonizing exhibits about them. As we have already said the foregoing is not intended as criticism but only as suggestive comment. The truth is that the vast floors of the Grand Central Palace are already too small for the dimensions to which the International Flower Show has attained.

The outstanding spectacular features of the show were the rose gardens and cut roses, the flowering plants arranged in garden effect, the rock gardens and the orchid groups. In the estimation of the public the roses plainly took precedence over everything. The flowering plant group prizes brought out six exhibits of dazzling floral exuberance, and much ingenuity in color arrangement, fountain and cascade effect was shown. One of these gardens which in the judges' opinion did not measure up to the qualities of its competitors in that particular class was later chosen by a committee of society ladies as winner of the sweepstakes' cup as the most artistic and beautiful exhibit in the show. It was mainly planted to daffodils and pale yellow Ghent azaleas, surrounded by a white picket fence over which white clematis trailed, and Narcissus poeticus clustered at the base. E. Fardel, gard. for Mrs. Booth, was the artist. The entry by P. W. Popp, which won first prize, is shown in our illustration. It was a beautiful conception in color harmony.

F. R. Pierson's cut rose exhibit was a prime attraction. There were nearly 1,000 blooms, the varieties shown being Killarney Queen, Ophileta, Mrs. Sawyer, Francis Scott Key, White Killarney, Richmond and Hoosier Beauty. The Keys were the finest blooms of the variety we have ever seen.

The Department of Parks contributed an extensive group of foliage and economic plants, cacti and flowering plants, amongst the latter being fine specimens of Jasminum primulinum. The cactus group was undoubtedly the best ever placed on exhibition in this country. A gold medal was awarded to the Department.

The Tea Garden was crowded continually with society ladies and a good sum was netted in this enterprise for the benefit of the Red Cross.

NOTES.

The amaryllises from Howard Gould were a splendid strain.

Robert Craig Co.'s Nephrolepis "Norwood" was honored with a silver medal.

J. R. de Lamar showed some choice and beautiful groups, not for competition. A gold medal was awarded for his Acacia pubescens.

Among the distinguished visitors at the exhibition were ex-Ambassador James W. Gerard, Andrew Carnegie and Major General Wood.

There was a good exhibit of flowering begonias by Hon. P. M. Warburg, gard. Frank C. Luckenbacher, which does not appear in the prize list.

Brasso-Cattleya Jean d'Arc by Clement Moore, which was awarded a gold medal, was sold for the benefit of the American fund for French wounded.

The Roehrs 300 ft. group of flowering and foliage stove and greenhouse plants arranged for effect was not excelled for quality and tasteful arrangement by any exhibit in the hall.

Hyacinth Gounod, light blue, shown in Charles Knight's group was one of the finest novelties in its class. The White L'Innocence in this exhibit carried the best spikes in the show.

The Horticultural Society of New York and the New York Botanical Garden had jointly an elaborately furnished rest room which was a favored resort for the lady visitors especially.

Among the sensational orchid exhibits were the two hybrids, Jean d'Arc and Gen. Pershing, from Clem. Moore, both of which were auctioned for patriotic charitable purposes; Cymbidium Venus from A. N. Cooley, gard. Oliver Lines, Pittsfield, Mass., carrying a spike of fourteen flowers; Cattleya Trianae Elm Court var. from Elm Court Farm, Lenox, Mass., gard. F. Heeremans.

ELVES DANCE OUT OF A NINE-FOOT BASKET OF FLOWERS.

There was something besides opulence and eloquence and general horticultural good fellowship at the banquet tendered by the New York Florists' Club to the Executive Board of the Society of American Florists' at the Biltmore on Saturday night. With a genius for the propagation of novelties, the committee demonstrated that by careful greenhouse methods it is possible to grow two dancing sprites in a basket of flowers.

At the proper stage of the banquet it was thought proper to honor R. C. Kerr, President of the Society of American Florists', by presenting him with some flowers. A signal was given and a nine-foot basket, mounted on wheels and gorgeously topped with the rarest and most colorful blooms of spring, was rolled in and to a position in front of the guests' table.

A. L. Miller and Charles Schenck led the cheering that greeted the novelty and President Kerr had arisen to explain how he felt to be surrounded with so many well wishers when some one pulled a string and one side of the basket opened and Lily Lenora and Irma Komlossy skipped out and, with the grace of woodland elves, danced a floral number specially dedicated to the Society.

Then a thousand ballons with connecting strings released from somewhere rose to the ceiling. In each was a numbered slip. Two of the slips called for chests of silver.

Oh, yes, the New York Florists' Club knows how to have a good time and it isn't afraid to pay the bill.

THE ST. LOUIS SPRING SHOW

The Spring Flower Show of 1917 surpassed anything of the kind ever attempted in St. Louis and from all reports was a success financially. Thousands of people attended and the publicity committee were thus well rewarded for their labors. On entering the spacious Armory a beautiful scene met the eye. L. Jules Bourdet and his assistants created, as it were, a beautiful garden, the decorative scheme of pillars of natural bark and thousands of yards of wild smilax, making a charming setting. The floor and paths were bordered with bulbous plants. Plants sent by the Missouri Botanical Garden were beautiful in their profusion of colors. The Park Department had a splendid display. A beautiful electric fountain played in the centre of geraniums and other flowers and foliage plants. The display of Bourdet Floral Co. was superb. The orchid collection from Missouri Botanical Garden was remarkable. Lilies, azaleas and rhododendrons were wonderful. The Retail Association booth had as an attraction beautifully gowned ladies who paraded with huge floral hats and corsage bouquets of natural flowers. The table decorations were excellent and hard to judge. The carnation and rose displays were very good.

The trades display was extensive. Attractive special booths and exhibits were made by F. C. Weber, F. H. Weber, Grimm & Gorly, Mullanphy, J. W. Boerm, Ayres Floral Co., Joe Witek. Special displays were made by Scruggs Vandervoort & Barney, Stix Fuller & Baer, Poehlmann Bros., St. Louis Seed Co., A. L. Randall, C. Young & Sons and Vaughan's Seed Store. Trade exhibits by American Bulb Co., Burlington Willow Ware, Knight & Struck Co., Schloss Bros., Lion & Co.

NATIONAL ROSE FESTIVAL

After eighteen years of active and useful work the American Rose Society has marked a glorious new milestone. Up until this year the society has been a trailer to bigger organizations helping them and itself as far as lay in its power—all of which was splendid work and laid the foundation for the first exclusive Rose Festival ever held in America. To the high courage and broad personnel of the officers of the society we must all doff our hats. Some among us old-timers in horticultural work and development thought the thing an iridescent dream impossible of accomplishment. But the present magnificent exhibition sets all doubts at rest. They have proved that the impossible can be done. President Pennock and his army of able helpers are entitled to most sincere congratulations.

The show was opened on the 20th inst. with appropriate ceremonies, the mayor of Philadelphia, in which city the event took place, making the opening speech. Then the crowds flocked in and glorious indeed was the spectacle that greeted them.

The First Regiment Armory Hall is one of the largest in the city and it was filled to overflowing with roses. Roses, roses, everywhere! Thousands of American Beauties in their acme of perfection, Russells, Killarneys, Ophelias, Sunbursts, Jonkheers, Wards, down to the millions of Ramblers and Polyanthas.

Six months ago the brave sponsors said the show would be "Queen Rosa in all her glory—the greatest Rose Show ever held in America!" That sounded a little Barnumy, but they have made good. And your scribe joins with joyous shout and cries "All Hail! Up higher yet, your bonnet!"

The layout of the show was excellent. As one entered, to right and left were the groups containing the competing hundreds of the big roses. In the main central the big feature was the rose garden laid out by Habermehl. This had a white marble Venus fountain in the center of a lake surrounded by grass walks, rose beds, statuary with trained specimen roses rising five, eight, ten feet high toned off at the corners with high shapely evergreens. A most imposing, artistic and delightful creation.

Beyond this at the rear center of the hall was the next big exciting feature for the visitor—the Dreer display. The big electric sign just said "Dreer," and it was enough. The crowds flocked there and they were rewarded. They stayed and stayed and struggled, making notes of the one hundred and seventy-one tried and true varieties on exhibition. A King conservatory was the central feature of the Dreer exhibit. This was filled with roses and outside on three sides were the rose beds. Dreer's did fine work at the great show last spring, but this is still bigger and finer. We Quakers are not allowed to use cuss words but "by heck" and "by gracious" are permissible—so there! Translate them strong-er if you want to.

The Michell company had a splendid display on the northwest side, finely illuminated and arranged in Philip Freud's best style. Rose beds with grass and appropriate fixings were beautifully done, and we heard many visitors exclaiming that this was the best thing in the show.

And the side walls. Words fail me. Never have I seen the retail men do such noble work. Every exhibit was a gem in its way. It would be wrong to mention one as better than another because every one was best from some standpoint. It certainly was a revelation and sent all beholders into ecstasies of delight. I could talk all night about them but Uncle Sam's mail closes in about a minute, so you'll have to excuse me for being virtuous. If I had the chance I'd give you the earache!

G. C. WATSON.

The dinner to the judges at the Bellevue-Stratford on Tuesday was a very fine official function of which more anon. On Wednesday evening the smoker given in honor of the visitors' by the Florists' Club of Philadelphia was one grand time. Three hundred guests participated and enjoyed the vaudeville performance and all the other good things provided with open-handed liberality.

THE BOSTON SPRING SHOW

Last of the four big March exhibitions to open its doors, the Spring Show of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society is in full swing as we go to press, and from all indications it is destined to be a full financial success as it certainly is an artistic and floricultural triumph. The quality of the exhibits is very high and the arrangement and layout of the show as a whole is most excellent. The four halls in the Horticultural Building are filled to their full capacity and the open spaces are none too ample for the throngs of admiring visitors.

We shall not attempt to publish the list of awards this week or to describe in detail the various exhibits. We have a plethora of that sort of reading matter for this issue and an account next week will no doubt please our readers fully as well. We shall merely mention now some of the outstanding attractions. Thomas Roland has filled the stage with a charming collection of acacias which we think the prettiest acacia exhibit we have ever seen. A large section of the main hall is occupied by a formal "Flemish" garden by R. & J. Farquhar. It is chastely arranged and exceedingly pretty, nestling within a protecting fringe of fastigiate cedars. While not so pretentious and elaborate as some of Mr. Farquhar's previous efforts, yet it is in its taste and finish in no way inferior to them.

The big promiscuous plant groups for which A. M. Davenport and W. W. Edgar Co. have earned so high repute are better than ever before, and the masses of forced spring flowering trees and shrubs are simply lovely. The tulips are superb as are also the daffodils, which are shown in veritable forests and in infinite variety. Wm. Sim has out-Simmed himself with a great display of polyanthus primula hybrids and added to the interest by staging a fine bed of auriculas, the first exhibited here in any quantity since the days of David Allan, long ago. Obconica primroses are shown in large numbers by several exhibitors and we doubt if their equals have ever been shown anywhere. The improvement in this species has been almost incredible as to form, size and color of flower and vigor of the plant, and Primula malacoides is not far in the rear. Cyclamen are always good in Boston, and those seen this time bear out this reputation. We noticed a new deep pink tulip shown by A. W. Preston, gard. John L. Smith, under the name of "President Wilson." Hydrangeas, lilies and astilbes are admirably displayed by W. W. Edgar Co.

The orchid groups are all placed in the small hall. Julius Roehrs of Rutherford, N. J., has a stunning arrangement of orchid plants, cleverly illuminated from below and the effect is indiscribably impressive. A gold medal for rarity and hybrids, besides a silver medal and $200 cash prize is awarded. F. J. Dolansky has touched the pinnacle of his triumphs with a show of orchids and Farleyense ferns of most remarkable character and the gold medal and $300 cash card which the judges have placed upon it is a richly deserved honor. Thomas Roland has a fine table of ericas in many species.

The carnation section is always a prominent and inspiring feature of the Boston Spring Show. With such masters competing as A. A. Pembroke, S. J. Goddard, Strout's and others well-known in carnationdom this display could not be otherwise than superb, and superb it certainly is.

Several of the retail florists have come in with tasteful examples of their handiwork. Penn, Comley, Boston Cut Flower Co., and others are generously represented. Violets of remarkable size are shown by Edward Brigham and Osgood Bros., have a good showing of pansies. The private estates are very largely represented in the various plant and flower groups and we shall give them due attention in next issue. It is very pleasing to see the snap and ginger which pervades the whole enterprise this time and the ready response of the public to the invigorating influence that has been let loose in this "Corner of Paradise."

AMERICAN ROSE SOCIETY

New Officers Elected

PRESIDENT—Benjamin Hammond, Beacon, N. Y.
VICE-PRESIDENT—William L. Rock, Kansas City, Mo.
SECRETARY—Prof. E. A. White, Ithaca, N. Y.
TREASURER—Harry O. May, Summit, N. J.

At the annual meeting of the American Rose Society held in Philadelphia, on Wednesday, March 21, officers were elected as follows: President, Benjamin Hammond, Beacon, N. Y.; vice-president, W. L. Rock, Kansas City, Mo.; secretary, Prof. E. A. White, Ithaca, N. Y.; treasurer, Harry O. May, Summit, N. J.

The annual address of President S. S. Pennock and reports of Secretary Benj. Hammond and Treasurer H. O. May follow. Further details will be given next week.

PRESIDENT'S ADDRESS.

A year ago we were holding our annual show and meeting as a part of the National Flower Show. The American Rose Society contributed very largely in making this show such a wonderful success, as it was through the combined efforts of our officers and members that there was staged one of the greatest exhibitions of roses ever held in this country. Unfortunately, however, the Rose Society was not directly benefited financially by these efforts.

In view of what the Rose Society had accomplished, it was decided—after very careful consideration—to hold in Philadelphia, March, 1917, a show of our own, composed entirely of roses, not only to further our interests, but also as an educational feature, and an uplift to the society, in placing it in the prominent position it so richly deserves among the important societies of our country.

Everyone visiting our present show at the First Regiment Armory cannot help but realize how well and how faithfully those in charge have worked to bring about the splendid results in making this exhibit the wonderful success it is—a show we can all well be proud of—a band of men who worked and pulled together with but one object in view—SUCCESS; and I want to take this opportunity as your President, for the society to thank not only the officers and chairmen, but every member who so faithfully worked to make this show a success. It has never been my pleasure to be associated with any group of men who threw their hearts and souls into an undertaking with more vim and energy than you have. May this show be the inspiration and forerunner of many successful shows in the future.

This is primarily a show that appeals more to the commercial man than to the amateur, yet there are many points that interest and deal directly with the amateur—the rose gardens, the cut roses, grown commercially, I know, but many of them splendid garden roses, as well as many other, to them, interesting features. The question arises in my mind why it would not be possible to hold in June a national outdoor Rose Festival annually, conducting it on a large scale, bringing exhibits from all leading amateur rosarians within a radius of overnight trips or less, thus gathering together amateurs and their roses from all over the country—an event that would be looked forward to and sought for by groups of rose lovers, in every city, whether small or large. We have with us amateurs, members that are enthusiastic, willing and well able to undertake the carrying on of an annual festival of this character. I should be very glad indeed to have a discussion on this subject at this meeting, and some definite steps taken toward establishing such an annual affair. I am sure we have many amateurs, some right here in Philadelphia, who would be willing to throw their efforts into a movement of this nature. This, with our Spring Show, should increase our membership as nothing else will or could; so I hope everyone—particularly you commercial men—will give this your very earnest support, making for the advancement of the rose, both from a garden and a commercial standpoint. "A Rose for Every Home; A Bush for Every Garden."

The membership of the Society has materially increased in both the active and associate classes. In addition to a healthy growth in the active membership, there has resulted an increase in associate membership to at least twenty times the number recorded one year ago, and this increase is continuing, I am glad to say. Last fall the Society made a proposition to several rose catalog men, some taking advantage of it, some turning it down. The firms who went into this partnership arrangement—I am sure—are well paid for the effort. I know the Society feels the proposition has been a splendid help, and is more than grateful to these firms for their hearty co-operation. To those who are not familiar with this agreement a word of explanation is in order. The dues were payable to the firm soliciting the membership, they retaining half the amount. This as a business proposition—on the surface—looks like poor business, but from the viewpoint of future membership I believe it one of the best moves ever made by the Society—a member once, a member always.

While on this membership business, I should like to recommend a readjusting of the membership dues, not only the active but the associate and affiliated as well. Instead of having two classes as we now have—active and associate memberships—I would suggest we merge them and have only the active membership. This would give the associate member—who at present is not eligible to vote or take part in any proceedings—all the rights of membership. Also, instead of active members paying $3 annually, and associates $1, that the dues for all be $2.

Our affiliated members at present are paying 25c. This I think—with all we are doing at present and all we are planning for the future for these members—should be $1, they receiving the "Annual" and any other literature which may be issued; also admissions to any shows; these "Annuals" to be shipped in bulk to the affiliated society and not distributed individually by the Rose Society.

I hope these recommendations on membership dues will meet with your approval, and that same will be brought up for discussion at this meeting.

The favorable reception accorded to the 1916 Rose Annual is the best comment on the success of this attempt. The editor of the "Annual," Mr. J. Horace McFarland, found ready and cheerful co-operation among the members of the Society who could afford proper help. It is believed that the articles presented in the 1916 "Annual" on possibilities in rose-breeding, on the rose species available from China and elsewhere, on America's efforts in rose-growing and rose-breeding, on the diseases and insects which affect roses, on rose popularity in various parts of the United States and Canada, on rose organizations, and on roses grown for cut-flowers, were of such value that the volume will long remain a standard reference book, comparing favorably with the best issues of the National Rose Society of England.

As an illustration of how this "Annual" was received not only in this country, but in Europe as well, I want to read you from a letter of May 26th, 1916, from Joseph J. Lane, of the "Garden Magazine":

I had the pleasure of being one of those present at the meeting of the American Rose Society during the Philadelphia Flower Show in 1916, because I joined the Society two or three days before. I tell you frankly that the reason I joined the Rose Society was to get a copy of the "Rose Annual," and to affiliate myself with an organization which was so enthusiastically going about its work. The majority of the horticultural organizations as a rule solicit you for your dues and never think of making any plans for you to get something back for your money. I am glad to say that in receiving a copy of the "Rose Annual" I have received sufficient to pay me for my entire dues. Next year I want you to solicit us good and hard for advertising in this book. The "Garden Magazine" and "Country Life in America," also some of our garden books, should be in there, and I will do everything in my power to see that they are.

The heading of a column and a half article in the "Gardeners Chronicle" of July 8th, 1916—an English publication, starts off in this fashion:

"THE AMERICAN ROSE ANNUAL."—The American Rose Society and Mr. McFarland, its Editor, are to be congratulated on the issue of the first 'Annual' under the auspices of the Society. This forms a volume of some 150 pages, the last ten of which are devoted to accounts of Rose Shows."

Then it goes on, giving a thorough resume of the book in its many phases. These are but two instances of many, showing how wonderfully the "Annual" of 1916 was received—indeed a volume to be proud of!

In the late spring of 1916 a fund for research work in rose diseases was started. A liberal response to the call for subscriptions from interested rose-growers all over the country made it possible for the officers to arrange through Dr. H. H. Whetzel—the pathologist of Cornell University—for the employment of Dr. L. M. Massey to undertake the disease study desired. The University itself bears an important part of the cost of the work.

Dr. Massey began work in the early fall, and his accomplishments up-to-date have been most gratifying, even though it was not expected that there would be any particular result for at least a year. For example: his investigation of the new trouble which besets cut-flower rose growers—a form of crown root-gall—is likely to result in the early checking of a disease which certainly, under previously existing conditions, might easily have put many growers entirely out of business. It is most important that every grower, particularly the commercial man, should take careful note of the disease. Dr. Massey has also taken up carefully the study of the difficult black-spot, and in the 1917 "Annual" will be found his article bearing on this most important subject. The research fund was solicited largely through personal effort, and it is my sincere hope that the subscriptions will be renewed and extended, so that the work may be carried on for another year, or as much longer as is necessary to keep the members of the Society fully informed as to rose diseases, and as to the best means for combating them.

The Nursery Trade.

It seems that here is an opportunity where the nurserymen are not taking advantage of their opportunities, in coming in and being represented more strongly in the Society. (President Pennock here quoted from a letter of February 17th, 1917, received from Mr. John Watson, President of the American Association of Nurserymen.)

From this you will see how one of our prominent fellow nurserymen feels not only about the Society, but the introducing of new roses of American origin as well. It would not only give me great pleasure, but immense satisfaction to have the nurserymen and their interests more closely allied with the Rose Society, and I hope we may have their fuller support in the future.

Rose Test Gardens.

Our work in the past of the rose-testing gardens is too well known for me to go over it at this time. These test-gardens—I am glad to say—are bringing good results, but not as good as we would like to have in the way of records of how the gardens are being kept up, as these are of great importance. These test-gardens are going to be one of the very valuable assets of the Society, not only in the actual garden-tests, but in the records of the roses. May we look forward to only a few years hence when every city of any size will take hold and foster a rose-garden such as Portland, Oregon, is undertaking at this time, which is called "The Portland Association National Rose Test Garden"—a wonderful movement not only for Portland, but for the Rose Society, and the rose business in general—which is being backed by such bodies as the chamber of commerce, city councils, and ninety-seven other organizations. Think of it—ninety-nine distinct organizations! This spells progress in the broadest sense of the word, and to my mind should be an incentive for every other city in this country.

I want to read you a quotation from HORTICULTURE of July 15 1916:

"We heard from a number of places where municipal rose gardens are being established this year, or are being planned. It is only a question of time—and not very long—until a rose garden will be regarded as an indispensable feature of every public park, and private estates generally will follow suit. Until the advent of the hardy hybrid teas and ever-blooming Polyanthas, there was little inducement for the making of rose gardens in the northern and eastern United States. Now, there is abundant recompense for all the labor and attention incident to the proper planting and care of the Queen of Flowers, and with prospects as they now appear, the garden rose industry is only in its infancy in this country. In the effort to improve and add to the number of forcing roses, American rosarians have been in the past concentrating all their thoughts on a single ideal, and—no doubt—hundreds of their seedlings have been thrown away because they failed to measure up to the forcing rose standard, which, had they been given an opportunity to qualify, would have proven invaluable as garden varieties. With the rapidly developing demand for the latter comes a new incentive to rose hybridizing in this country, and we shall be surprised and disappointed if American grown varieties do not in the very near future outstrip and out-class for garden use the foreign productions upon which we have been hitherto so largely dependent."

Here is a thought for every American hybridizer to think over thoroughly, and possibly make a profit out of a seeming loss.

Another recommendation which I wish to make is that the editor and advertising manager of the "Annual" be made ex-officio members of the Executive Committee. This I think is an important matter and well worth your serious consideration, as the "Annual" will be of more vital importance to the Society each year.

In conclusion I want to add a word of praise for Mr. Hammond, who has labored long and faithfully as secretary of the Rose Society—his has been a labor of love and not remuneration—and I think we cannot feel too kindly towards him, realizing as we do that to him—more than to any other one man—is due the standing of the American Rose Society today.

SECRETARY'S REPORT.

The year has seen a large advance in the popular interest in the American Rose Society. "There is no success like success." The first rose show held under the auspices of the American Rose Society was in New York City in 1899 and was backed by a goodly number of patronesses. The ladies took hold to make the exhibition a success; from that time to this there has not been a season when we have not had a fine rose show, and at this eighteenth successive annual meeting we can report a great increase of associate members—that is, persons not engaged as florists or nurserymen. Our total membership is 1,092, as follows: 55 life members, 138 active members and 899 associate members, these coming from the states of Washington, Oregon, California, New Mexico, Texas, Louisiana, Alabama, Georgia, Florida, South Carolina, North Carolina, Virginia, Washington, D. C., Maryland, Delaware, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, New York, Connecticut, Rhode Island, New Hampshire, Maine, Vermont, Massachusetts, Ohio, Indiana, Michigan, Illinois, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Iowa, Missouri, Kansas, Arkansas, Tennessee, Kentucky, West Virginia, Nebraska, Colorado, Oklahoma, Utah, North Dakota, South Dakota, Montana, Idaho, and in Canada, Quebec, Nova Scotia, Ontario, Manitoba and British Columbia; also London, England, Denmark, Cuba, San Domingo and Mexico. This large increase within the year past is to be attributed mainly to the service rendered by J. Horace McFarland, who gave the Society the benefit of his publishing company in the printing and make up of the Annual for 1916, a book of decided merit. The funds at the disposal of the American Rose Society had never permitted us to embark in the issuing of such an excellent book. Mr. McFarland, in 1915, offered to do it and if there was a loss on the actual cost, he would stand one-half the deficit with the Society. There was no deficit on the outcome so far.

The present year solicitation slips were sent out by various seed houses and nurserymen and florists in their catalogues, and these returns are mainly responsible for the marked increase of amateur members.

The record gives us one addition to the life membership list—Mrs. Elizabeth C. T. Miller. The life membership fund now is $3,200.00, and this is a most important fund to have grow. A society for permanence needs a substantial basis. Last year we expressed the hope to see our membership grow and this hope is materializing.

During the past year two of our life members have died—Mr. Wm. C. Barry of Rochester, N. Y., who was the second president of the Society, and Mr. S. J. Reuter of Westerly, R. I.; both men of character and standing.

The executive committee has had fourteen separate meetings during the past year, the details of which have been published in the trade and other papers for general information.

An effort was made to have special investigations of the diseases of roses made, and an arrangement was made with Dr. Lewis M. Massey of the College of Agriculture, Cornell University, Ithaca, N. Y., to take up the work.

A new rose test garden has been established for the Pacific Northwest at Portland, Ore. Application was received for Bellingham, State of Washington, and from the Texas Agricultural College, but we were not able to provide for more than one this year.

Several new roses were offered for registration and are recorded in the Annual just published. In the registration of roses there has not been any formal rule of description hitherto. To bring about a full and clear description for a registration, the executive committee appointed a committee to present such form for adoption in future use. The demand for medals of this society for prizes at summer shows has been granted to affiliated societies.

The interest in local June rose shows is becoming more general.

The Society visited officially the Washington test garden, and the Cornell test garden at Ithaca, N. Y.

At Newport, R. I., a special effort is being made to have an excellent outdoor display on July 4th next. The American Rose Society tries to encourage these local shows.

At Barrytown-on-the-Hudson, the usual rose show was held. This local show has been for many years past an event well attended by local people and a society medal was presented. The present exhibition is the first time in five years when the American Rose Society has held a show entirely alone. The people of Philadelphia have shown much interest and the guarantors of an insurance for expenses and prizes number seventy-one.

The growth and development of the Society has reached a point where the future seems assured, and the detail work is steadily increasing to such an extent that your secretary, who has filled the position to the best of his ability since 1905, is obliged to decline re-election to the office, and I may truthfully say that the work done by all officers and others concerned has brought the American Rose Society to its present position, and may its motto, "A Rose for Every Home and a Bush for Every Garden," become a fixed fact in this country of ours.

A VIOLET PROBLEM.

Mr. J. J. M. Farrell:

Dear Sir—Would you kindly inform me what makes violets show their necks instead of their flowers? Is this due to their culture? I have a small house of Princess of Wales violets which were planted last September in benches with a small mulch of cow manure in the bottom of the benches and filled with good loam. Since then they have only had a dressing of wood ashes and a watering with liquid cow manure. The plants are healthy and full of buds, with stems eight to ten inches in length and the stems are fairly strong. We run the house around 42 at night and 50 to 52 on bright days and around 46 on dull days. Any information or remedy that will overcome this trouble will be greatly appreciated. R. J. New York.

It seems to me there is something very wrong in their culture. It might be heavy fumigations, a too rich soil, or a very dark house. There are so many causes that can lead to violets not opening their flowers right that it would be hard to say without more knowledge of all the conditions under which they are growing. Any condition that tends to enfeeble their constitution will produce trouble. Your temperatures are all right. Your compost may be at fault. You probably will not be able to do very much with them this year as their season is drawing to a close now. Following the notes in HORTICULTURE from time to time will give you a good start for another year.

JOHN J. M. FARRELL.

CLUB AND SOCIETY NOTES.

At the May meeting of the Gardeners' & Florists' Club of Boston, E. I. Farrington will talk on "What's New in the Garden," illustrated with slides in colors.

At the regular monthly meeting of the Nassau County Horticultural Society in Glen Cove, N. Y., on March 14th, James Holloway gave a very interesting report of his recent visit to the Davey Tree Convention. The exhibition tables were well filled with very strong competition in all the carnation classes. Awards were as follows: 1st to Frank Watson for pink, James McCarthy for white and Peter McDonald for mixed. The special prize offered by P. W. Popp for the most meritorious exhibit was won by John F. Johnson with a very fine display of Polyanthus, well flowered, in 6 in. pots. Certificate of culture to John W. Everitt for lettuce Golden Ball and special mention to Peter McDonald for antirrhinum Silver Pink. It was decided, if the trustees could procure the exhibition hall, to hold the annual Dahlia Show on Tuesday, Oct. 9th, and the Chrysanthemum Show on Nov. 1st and 2nd. Competition for the next meeting, April 11, will be for one pan of bulbs, one plant of Easter lily and one Hydrangea in pot not to exceed 8 inches.

SEED TRADE

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION

Officers—President, Kirby B. White, Detroit, Mich.; First Vice-President, F. W. Boigliano, Washington, D. C.; Second Vice-President, L. L. Olds, Madison, Wis.; Secretary-Treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.—Convention at Detroit, June 19, 1917.

American Sugar-Beet Seed Industry.

Sugar-beet seed of good quality and in large quantities must be produced in the United States if the highest development of the beet sugar industry in this country is to be reached, say plant specialists of the U. S. Department of Agriculture in an article in the forthcoming Yearbook of the Department. The domestic beet sugar industry, in which more than $100,000,000 is now invested, was almost wholly dependent until the outbreak of the European war on a seed supply from Europe. Since the normal importation of seed was interfered with by hostilities, efforts have been made to grow the necessary seed in this country, but though the production from approximately 4,000 acres of beets was harvested in 1916, this was hardly more than sufficient to plant the acreage of beets required by the natural expansion of the industry. Some seed was imported with great difficulty for the 1916 planting, but several sugar factories remained idle because of the insufficient supply of seed.

No grave difficulties, it is believed, stand in the way of the domestic production of high quality seed sufficient to meet the needs of this country. In practically all instances the American-grown seed has been found superior to the imported seed. This is true of seed grown under various conditions in a number of different portions of the country. The problem, in so far as the mere possible replacement of European seed by American seed is concerned, would seem to be only a matter of the planting of greater acreages in this country. This does not, however, take into account the economic side of beet seed production nor the possibility of improving the quality of the seed. The chief reason for the dependence of America on the importation of seed in the past was the low price at which the supply could be obtained from abroad.

The studies of plant specialists of the Department of Agriculture lead them to believe that the quality of beet seed and of the crops which such seed produce can be improved greatly by selection and plant breeding, and that as a result the cost of production of seed in this country can be reduced. At present there are in this country no distinct types of sugar beets. In many sugar beet fields throughout the country, whatever the name of the so-called variety grown, from 6 to 20 or more distinct types of beets can be found. In fact, scarcely two beets growing side by side in the same field have closely related external characters of leaf or root, and the quality of roots varies in both sugar and purity. Equally wide variations may be found in the beet seed fields, especially with reference to habit of growth of seed stalk and yield of seed. Because of this condition of affairs plant specialists take the view that the first step in the development of a permanent beet seed industry in this country lies in the development of true types with reference to both seed beets and seed production.

The production of beet seed requires two seasons of growth. The mature beets resulting after one season from the seed must be harvested, the leaves removed and the roots carefully siloed with a dirt covering to preserve them in a dormant condition through the winter. These roots are planted at the earliest possible time the following spring and rapidly produce seed stalks from 3 to 6 feet in height. These are harvested with a sickle at the proper time and the seed carefully threshed, cleaned and cured.

Clark Thayer, instructor at Cornell, has arrived in Amherst to fill temporarily the position left vacant by Professor Nehrling.

The Florists' and Gardeners' Club Annual is being distributed. Members of the trade may obtain copies by addressing Harry Saidel, Amherst, Mass.

Professor A. H. Nehrling left Amherst last Saturday to take up his new work as manager of the McDonald Floral Company, Crawfordsville, Indiana.

The students' problems on carnations have been handed in and are generally good, showing a splendid grasp of the subject both as to culture and the details of construction, heating, marketing, and the entire business end. The problems are also so good that it will be difficult to determine which are the best.

Of Interest to Retail Florists

Cincinnati.—The Clifton Floral Co., a new concern, is opening a retail flower store on Ludlow avenue in Clifton.

Washington, D. C.—Announcement has been made that the Louise Flower Shop, at Connecticut avenue and L. streets, will not now be opened until April 2. This promises to be one of the most attractive of the city's flower stores, and it will be outfitted in the most modern manner.

The Chicago Florists' Club announces that this club will carry on a national plan of co-operation advertising for Mothers' Day under the direction of F. Lautenschlager, West Erie Station, Chicago. Full particulars will be given later. Chicago Florists' Club publicity committee.

F. LAUTENSCHLAGER, Chairman.

At the meeting of the Detroit Florist Club on March 15 a novel plan of publicity, to stimulate early Easter buying, was adopted. Members have agreed to make an attractive Flower Show in their stores during the first three days of Easter week. In other words each member will make a special effort to decorate his store in a manner which will be extremely pleasing to the public, and at the same time create a desire for Easter flowers.

These shows will be announced by means of large display banners carried on the sides of all florist cars; cards of a similar design will be displayed in the windows and folders enclosed in every package.

Since the florist business is represented in almost every part of the city the scope of this publicity ought to be very far-reaching.

During Recess

New York Florists' Club.

The annual dinner of the New York Florists' Club is the outstanding social event of the season, horticulturally.

Each year it is pitched on a more ambitious plane until now it would seem that the limit of ingenuity and aspiration had been reached. It was indeed a carnival of fun, frolic and fashion such as the sumptuous ball room of the aristocratic Biltmore is accustomed to when the "four hundred get together. Our illustration gives a partial view of the affair, but unfortunately, the chief table at which were seated the dignitaries of the S. A. F. and other societies, together with the club officials, does not appear in the picture.

The after dinner speaking was brief and quickly over, in order to turn over the hall to the dancers. President Geo. E. M. Stumpp presided. He read telegrams and letters from several invited guests unable to be present and voiced the welcome of the New York Florists' Club to the distinguished visitors present. He then introduced President Cabot Ward, of the Park Board, who made an idealic and patriotic address and expressed his appreciation of the gold medal awarded to the Park exhibit at the show.

Ex-President Weston was then escorted to the platform, where President Stumpp, on behalf of the members of the N. Y. Florists' Club, presented him with a box of table silver. Mr. Weston gratefully expressed his pleasure and thanks.

W. F. Gude was the next speaker. Long association with the big men of the nation at the Capitol has developed Mr. Gude's oratorical abilities to a remarkable degree and he made a speech which evoked much applause. He advocated the exploitation of Mothers' Day by the florists, but from an altruistic standpoint.

President Kerr, of the S. A. F. was next called upon. He extended kindly greetings from the craftsmen in the South and especially from the convention City of 1916. Hon. Philip Brietmeyer was the next and last speaker. He told of the enormous expansion in the retail flower business within the few years since the F. T. D. had taken hold and gave credit also to the flower shows and the growing efficiency in salesmanship for the commercial ascendancy of the florist business.

Each diner received a tiny potted shamrock and American flag in honor of the day, March 17. Coffee was served in earthen ware cups and saucers furnished by A. H. Hews & Co., flower pot manufacturers.

Edward Dornheim, late with Berger Bros., has associated himself with Chas. Allwyne in the growing business at Aldan, Del. Co., Pa. From now on the firm's name will be Allwyne & Dornheim.

In spite of the scoffs of his dear friends Commodore John Westcott has been able to collect fifty dollars for wharfage on the interned "Scotch cruiser McTavish" at Waretown. Now the laugh is with the commodore. A Washington authority on International Law, William F. Gude, advises that the fifty be blown on a dinner to the boys. Sounds reasonable.

St. Louis.—F. H. Weber's new store is looking very fine and business is booming.

J. J. Beneke has been indisposed for quite a while.

ST. LOUIS SHOE NOTES.

Dancing and music and special singers entertained the visitors.

Several thousand school children visited the show on Saturday.

Frank Windler, Joe. Windler, in fact all the Windlers worked hard for the success of the Show.

Morris H. Levine looked anything but a dead one although someone of the same name met an accidental death in New York and he and his family daily receive letters of condolence.

NEWS ITEMS

CHICAGO.

The Paris Flower Shop, 11 E. Jackson Boulevard has suspended business.

James Mara has opened a store at Riverside, Ill., to be known as Riverside Lawn.

Geo. Fischer has leased the store at 183 N. Wabash avenue, and will leave the basement store in time to have Easter in the new location.

Zech & Mann have everything in readiness for a big Easter business. Some of the best growers in this vicinity are regular consignors to this firm.

E. T. Kurowski, president of the J. C. Moninger Co., has suffered severely with an abscess in his ear. He is on the way to recovery but daily trips to the hospital are still necessary.

The Bentley greenhouses consisting of 110,000 sq. ft. of glass, which were wrecked by the tornado at Newcastle, Ind., a week ago will be rebuilt at once by the J. C. Moninger Co.

Sam Seligman who recently severed his connection with the American Bulb Co., of which he was a member has taken up his former occupation and will again travel for Wertheimer Bros.

H. E. Humiston, of the Chicago Feed & Fertilizer Co., has been advanced to the position of manager of the fertilizer department of florists and gardeners which was formerly in charge of Guy Fridley.

St. Patrick's Day furnished the trade with considerable business this year. Besides all the shamrocks sold in the florists' stores, one department store sold 30,000 plants on Friday and could have sold many more on Saturday had they been obtainable. Frank Oechslein had a very heavy stock of shamrock, which cleaned up before the repeat orders came in. The quality was unusually good.

The greenhouse construction companies were well represented at the St. Louis flower show and from their reports it evidently was a good place for business. The American Greenhouse Manufacturing Co. has secured the contract for two additional houses, 36 x 300, for the W. A. Rowe Floral Co., Kirkwood, Mo. Another of their customers who is a rose expert—Chas. Steidle of Olivette, Mo.—will grow Mrs. Russell, Ophelia, White Russell and Mrs. Sawyer as his principal stock next year.

Miss Sietmann, of the J. A. Budlong office force, is ill and Mrs. Philip Schupp is again on duty. Mr. Schupp, manager, says their large range of houses will supply a high grade of Easter stock this year and their shipping trade will be supplied with flowers fresh from their own plants. J. A. Budlong is one of the oldest houses in Chicago, the third generation now taking a part in the business. When the start was made, the land was far out in the country, but now it is well within the city limits.

Mr. and Mrs. Adolph Poehlmann have been celebrating the 25th anniversary of their marriage. Mr. Poehlmann presides over Plant "B" at Morton Grove, where 47 houses, 27 x 350 ft., are devoted to roses, one-seventh of which is Mrs. Chas. Russell. That here is a fine outlook for Easter stock is seen at a glance. At Plant "A" their Easter trade will be supplied with lilies from 10,000 plants of formosum, while 25,000 pots of Giganteum will furnish the lily plants. There will be a large supply of carnations, especially in white and pink, if weather favors the 172,000 plants in the carnation range.

PITTSBURGH.

J. S. Irwin has opened a new flower shop in Monessen. Arthur Godfrey has also started a similar enterprise in Tarentum.

Mrs. C. C. Espy of Brookville, whose flower shop was destroyed by fire about six months ago, has resumed business again in the new Young Men's Christian Association building.

George W. Marshall, manager of the McCallum Co., has been seriously ill for the past ten days with a malady, which has recently appeared and is baffling the skill of physicians hereabouts.

Flower Market Reports

BOSTON We have had occasion more than once of late to say that this market was suffering from a superfluity of material. But the situation at present puts all past experience in the shade if one is to judge by the burden of daffodils, carnations, lilies, callas, tulips, sweet peas and other flowers that stand unsold on the market tables and crowd the wholesalers' ice chests. Everything that goes to make up the daily stock in trade at this season of the year is heavily over stocked, with the exception, perhaps, of roses. These do not appear to suffer so much. Warm days are due and the immediate outlook is far from cheerful for the dealers. Under the circumstances, price quotations have but small significance.

Good stock is moving
CHICAGO fairly well. Cold weather and cloudy days have tended to keep back any excess of roses and the shortening up of this stock has not been to the disadvantage of the grower. Carnations have either been a little less in evidence or more in demand for the counters and ice boxes have held less unsold stock at the close of day than during most of the season. Bulbous stock is still in very great supply, there seemingly being no end to the daffodils and tulips. Lilies are coming rather freely and a limited amount of callas find ready sale. Violets are plentiful and sales are inclined to drag. Sweet peas are here in quantity and cover a wide range in quality and price. There is also quite a supply of miscellaneous stock including calendulas, marguerites, pansies, snapdragons, forget-me-nots, mignonettes, etc. Green is not any too plentiful and demand is good.

Business is good.
CINCINNATI Last week's business finish was excellent. A brisk demand took up a good supply. Roses and carnations are fairly plentiful. Lilies are abundant and excellent. Plenty of good bulb stock is coming in. Callas and Robrum lilies have a fair sale.

Business continues dull and irregular.
NEW YORK Unquestionably the perturbed condition and anxiety over the entire country getting more and more acute daily has an adverse effect on the flower business, and this fact might as well be reckoned with. The people who figure so largely in putting money in circulation in a place such as New York is, are uneasy and cautious and the flower business is naturally one of the first to feel the influence. This week the flower show dominates all, and the usual stir and bustle incident to the season in the wholesale districts is missing. As in previous weeks the overstock on certain lines of staple goods in heavy and sales in quantity are made only at a considerable sacrifice. The prices obtained for bulb flowers such as tulips and the various narcissi would scarcely pay for the cost of the bare bulbs. Carnations, callas, sweet peas, lilies and some of the roses are also on the bad side of the market, with a burdensome surplus and not all of the best quality. Many of the Formosum lilies are badly split and ragged. Cattleyas are now getting on the scarce side and if any lively call should materialize the demand would be filled with difficulty. Of anemones, calendulas, myosotis, pansies, daisies, cornflowers and other promiscuous material there is a surfeit. Smilax is scarce and the demand for nice asparagus sometimes exceeds the available stock. Large quantities of trailing arbutus are coming in daily from southern points.

The-march-to-the PHILADELPHIA grave funeral spirit does not seem so pronounced among the growers' agents this morning. From what little I can gather they are having a fairly good inning. While prices have ruled rather low on most of the staples the accumulations of the past week found a market, and by Saturday night "Jerry" had come out better than I thought he would. "Jerry" only comes out decent after all the others have got theirs. And not even then if the retailers happen to get a suspicion of it. "Jerry" happens to be the small grower who has to take a back seat in the big operations of the big dealers. It's only when things are a little scarce that "Jerry" gets a show. Daffodils were far too plentiful. The same may be said of gardenias. We saw nice fresh gardenia flowers being offered on Chestnut street, Saturday night at two for a nickel. All roses were in good demand especially the red and dark pinks. The medium grades of American Beauty are not much in evidence as yet, but there is quite a good supply of specials and shorts. Carnations are holding their own well—some rose growers think, too well. Some carnation growers are grouching otherwise, and are thinking of going into roses. Can you beat it? Have a heart! Don't be jealous. We are all christians. When a man smites us on one cheek we turn to him the other also. Greens are still at a premium. Frost in Florida! Let us call a meeting of the Frost Protective Association.

PITTSBURGH Business continues fair, cut blooms of practically all kinds bringing good prices. Roses continue on the scarce side, those coming in being of good quality, but not enough by any means to satisfy the demand. Bulb products of all varieties are plentiful and of a desirable quality.

ST. LOUIS The market is well supplied with flowers. Last week all light colored carnations held firm, especially white which brought 5c. for coloring purposes. Roses are coming in fine and are cheaper. Violets are becoming smaller and sweet peas will now be used more freely for street corsage wear. "Green" carnations were every-
